4-day celebration slated for 'Fourth'

Arlington Heights residents can celebrate an old-fashioned Fourth of July in 1976.

The Arlington Heights Bicentennial Commission and Festival '76 committee Wednesday night outlined plans for a four-day Independence Day celebration at Recreation Park. The two groups also discussed plans for other Bicentennial projects.

The Fourth of July celebration will get under way Friday, July 2, with a torchlight parade and a Paul Revere ride. Other opening night activities include speeches by city officials, a carnival and beer garden.

ACTIVITIES ON Saturday, July 3, will begin with an American Legion parade. A carnival, club displays, an ice cream social, art exhibits, bingo, jazz concert and family swim will be included in the Saturday schedule.

A Community Church service, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Church Council, will begin events Sunday, July 4. The carnival, ice cream social and beer garden activities will continue throughout the day. Fireworks will begin after dark.

The celebration will wind up Monday, July 5, with a program for handicapped children, the carnival, a flea market and square dancing. The Arlington Heights Park District will sponsor old-time games including egg throw and sack races. The evening will end with square dancing.

Bicentennial and Festival committee members decided to move the Fourth of July celebration from Hersey High School to Recreation Park because of the park's central location. Dwight Walton, Bicentennial Commission chairman, said police and fire officials said the site was adequate to handle the expected crowds.

WALTON ALSO outlined a number of Bicentennial projects which will begin early next year, including the selection of historical sites within the village. Plaques will be placed at sights designated by the Arlington Heights Historical Society.

The commission is also planning a spelling bee, a town meeting program, ecology days, an Arlington Heights historical magazine and Bicentennial plays for 1976.

Trustee seeks ruling on Magnus Farm zoning

An Arlington Heights trustee is urging talks between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect over the possible rezoning of Magnus Farm, a home for the aged.

Trustee Madeline Schroeder said the talks should be held to make the property, on Central Road between Roosevelt and Douglas avenues, compatible with both towns. There are no plans to tear down the home, but officials want a zoning decision before future development decisions are made.

The property is zoned for 17-units per acre by Cook County. The county is holding hearings to determine if the land should be zoned for a lower density.

MOUNT PROSPECT and Arlington Heights have expressed an interest in annexing the land. The unincorporated site is flanked by Dana Point apartments in Arlington Heights and by single-family houses in Mount Prospect.

"It would be a good idea if Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights held talks on what will happen there. No matter who gets it, it will have an effect on the other community," Mrs. Schroeder said.

At her recommendation, the village planning department is preparing a history of the property for the Arlington Heights Village Board. The report will be presented at the next board meeting, Oct. 6.

Mrs. Schroeder said she wants the board to make some recommendation to the county zoning board, based upon the report and meetings with Mount Prospect officials.

"They (Cook County) will have another hearing in late October or November and they've asked for written comments," she said, adding that county zoning officials have weighed Arlington Heights' recommendations heavily in their recent rulings.

SHE SAID ANY recommendation made to the county officials would "carry more weight," if it was the result of meetings between the two villages.

A meeting between representatives of the municipalities would be "a perfect opportunity for the intergovernmental cooperation we talk about here," Mrs. Schroeder said.

She also urged revival of the village's comprehensive planning commission.

"The commission hasn't met in over six months. This is where these talks would normally take place," she said.

"I certainly hope Mr. (James T.) Ryan (Arlington Heights village president) will make some appointments as needed to the commission," because of the consideration of Magnus Farm, Mrs. Schroeder said.

Sidewalks on Dist. 21 agenda

Parents of Tarkington School students are expected to attend the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education meeting tonight when the board discusses sidewalk installation that would end bus service to areas close to the school.

The board meets at 8 p.m. in the administration center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said the district is considering installing sidewalks in several areas so that children may walk safely to schools. This would end costly bus service to areas less than 1.5 miles away from the schools, he said.

One of the areas considered for sidewalks is the Tahoe Village and Mallard Lake apartment complexes in Wheeling. Children from those complexes are bused to Tarkington School, 310 Scott St., Wheeling, which is closer than the 1.5 mile legal limit for busing, Gill said.

Gill said he was not aware of any specific opposition to installing sidewalks, but a Tarkington parent had called him to inquire about the meeting.

The board also will critique reports of the district's citizens' committees, formed last spring to study four topics over the summer. About 75 residents and staff members participated in investigations into staffing, report cards, testing, and health safety and facilities, Gill said. These were topics the district administration felt required citizen input, Gill said.

CIA illegally opened U. S. mail for 20 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For 20 years prominent Americans — including Richard M. Nixon and Nobel Peace Prize winners Linus Pauling and Martin Luther King Jr. — had their mail illegally opened and photographed by the CIA, it was revealed Wednesday.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, who disclosed the program, said letters to and from such senators as Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Mass., and himself also were scrutinized — even a letter he wrote to his mother-in-law while on a trip to Russia.

Church charged the program — codenamed "HT Lingual" — violated both the Constitution and federal statutes and promised full public hearings within a few weeks to expose this "far-flung" tampering with the liberties of Americans.

But James Angleton, a former CIA counterintelligence chief, testified before the Church committee that the mail-opening program was an "indispensable" espionage tool aimed primarily at gleaning information from Soviet-bloc nations.

Church said the intercept snared one letter addressed to Nixon — in June, 1968, while he was campaigning for the presidency he won that November. He said it was from Ray Price, a major Nixon speechwriter, while he was traveling in the Soviet Union and included comments on Nixon's election chances.

Two years later, Nixon approved — then revoked — a mail intercept program, according to evidence thus far made public without knowing it already was in existence. Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., a member of the committee, asked that Nixon be called as a witness but a decision was postponed.

Other targets of the mail-opening program, Church said, included the Ford and Rockefeller Foundations and Harvard University, as well as Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., John D. Rockefeller IV, and the Rev. and Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said a CIA "watch list" included Pauling, author John Steinbeck and labor leader Victor Reuther.

A committee spokesman said the covert mail program dating back 20

Arlington Park Race Track will end its 1975 racing season today as it always does — with a photo finish.

The results flash on the faces of those who have steered the giant racing complex to the most successful season in its 48-year history.

For some, like Rolling Meadows Police Sgt. Timothy Lonegran, who has directed thousands of cars in and out of the race track's parking lots during the past 94 days, the job is over.

Others, like groom Mike Dassouki, will work harder today than usual as they ready their high-priced thoroughbreds for a truck ride to another race track in some other town.

Each man and woman who contributes to the summer ritual that is racing at Arlington Park understands his or her job in human terms that transcend multi-million dollar signs and split-second track records that are the obvious trappings of winning and losing.

Herald staff writer Kurt Baer and photographer Dom Najolia met with four of these people. Their stories and photos appear on page 8.

At Euclid Avenue, NW Highway

New traffic signal controler OKd

The purchase of a new traffic signal controller for the Euclid Avenue-Northwest Highway intersection has been approved by the Arlington Heights Village board.

The $20,000 controller will replace one extensively damaged by lightning several weeks ago.

Village administration, in a request for the funds, called the controller "vitally important" to the busy intersection.

SEVERAL CABLES in the old controller were damaged or destroyed when it was struck by lightning. After the cables were replaced, the controller began malfunctioning.

The administration said, ". . . after several attempts to keep the equipment running, it was decided that it is unlikely that satisfactory repairs can be made to the controller to maintain safe operation of the intersection."

The old controller is an "electro-mechanical" design, one no longer manufactured. Spare parts for the system were flown into the village from Peoria to keep it running.

The problems were compounded because "key personnel who designed and built the controller" are no longer with the company.

THE ADMINISTRATION recommended and the board approved a control system similar to the one in operation at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Central roads.

The new controller would have solid state components and would have an override system to change the lights as needed because of the Chicago and North Western Ry.'s Arlington Park commuter station near the intersection.

The traffic lights would also be fitted with "opticom" controllers. The system automatically changes the signals to accommodate emergency vehicles coming through the intersection.

The old controller has been returned to the manufacturer in "one last attempt" to repair it. Delivery on the new controller is expected to take about six months.

Village post office promotes 4 workers

Four employes of the Arlington Heights Post Office were recently promoted.

James Dudek, 2505 W. Fremont Ave., Rolling Meadows, was named to the newly created position of general superintendent of delivery and collection; Marjorie Burgy, 615 S. Mitchell St., Arlington Heights, to the position of superintendent of window services; George W. Kleeman, 1 Villa Verde Dr., Buffalo Grove, to the position of superintendent, support services; and Peter Caracci, 325 E. Seegers Rd., Arlington Heights, to the position of supervisor, mails.

Thieves snare drum, tom-toms from hotel

About $920 worth of drum equipment was reported stolen late Tuesday from the nightclub at the Arlington Park Hilton, Arlington Heights.

Robert Stone of Wheeling, a drummer, told police a snare drum, a floor tom-tom and various stands and cymbals were stolen sometime before 11:40 p.m. Tuesday from the stage of the Top of the Towers.

Polls for Harper vote open from noon to 7

Polls will be open from noon to 7 p.m. in Saturday's Harper College bond referendum.

Voters are being asked to approve $12 million in bonds. Of the total, $2,106,000 would be used to buy a 117-acre second campus for the college at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, $7,050,000 would be used to complete construction on the college's Palatine campus and $2,883,500 would be used for construction on the second campus.

College officials have said they will not make a final decision on whether to start construction on the second campus until 1977. The second campus would not be ready for use until 1981 at the earliest.

Anyone who is unsure about where to vote may call the college, 397-3000, ext. 218 or 380.

14 new encephalitis cases reported

Fourteen new cases of encephalitis, eight of them in Cook County, were reported Wednesday to the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

There were six confirmed cases, two probable cases and six suspected cases throughout the state.

Cook County had three new confirmed cases, one probable case and four suspected cases. All of the Cook County residents listed in the new reports were hospitalized in Chicago, Oak Lawn, Berwyn and East Chicago, Ind.

The state said the new cases bring the statewide total of all reported cases to 344 and the countywide total to 172. Of those totals, there have been 135 confirmed cases statewide and 69 confirmed cases in Cook County.

Polls for Harper vote open from noon to 7

Polls will be open from noon to 7 p.m. in Saturday's Harper College bond referendum.

Voters are being asked to approve $12 million in bonds. Of the total, $2,106,000 would be used to buy a 117-acre second campus for the college at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, $7,050,000 would be used to complete construction on the college's Palatine campus and $2,883,500 would be used for construction on the second campus.

College officials have said they will not make a final decision on whether to start construction on the second campus until 1977. The second campus would not be ready for use until 1981 at the earliest.

Anyone who is unsure about where to vote may call the college, 397-3000, ext. 218 or 380.

14 new encephalitis cases reported

Fourteen new cases of encephalitis, eight of them in Cook County, were reported Wednesday to the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

There were six confirmed cases, two probable cases and six suspected cases throughout the state.

Cook County had three new confirmed cases, one probable case and four suspected cases. All of the Cook County residents listed in the new reports were hospitalized in Chicago, Oak Lawn, Berwyn and East Chicago, Ind.

The state said the new cases bring the statewide total of all reported cases to 344 and the countywide total to 172. Of those totals, there have been 135 confirmed cases statewide and 69 confirmed cases in Cook County.

For Ford, bodyguards would 'walk across live coals'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service bodyguards of Gerald R. Ford feel they are protecting a friend as well as a President.

"The agents are all pro. It's their duty to protect the President, and hell, they'd do that even if the people elected an Al Capone for President. But for this President they'd walk across live coals," said a presidential friend and aide.

Ford began understanding the ways of his walking shadows early in office, the day he sat at his Oval Office desk talking to a friend and his knee accidentally touched the alarm button.

Doors slammed open, agents with guns drawn pounced in from the hallway, the secretary's office and the Rose Garden porch. Ford, his jaw dropping, saw the agents keep their guns at his friend's head and repeatedly ask, "Are you sure you're all right, Mr. President?"

"The President calls the agents by their first names. He plays tennis with them. He won't let them do things like carry his suitcase or walk his dog because that's not their job and he respects that and them," the Ford friend said.

"You know, we did have a President who not only didn't call the agents by their first names but didn't even know their last names."

Ford, while in San Francisco where Monday Sara Jane Moore missed him with a pistol shot, learned one of his agents was in bed sick. The President fetched a drug store greeting card that said "Get well' and scrawled "And that's an order" before sending it to the ailing agent.

The agent's colleagues took the card to him and were joking about it when the bedside telephone rang. To the laughter of the agents, one said, "Oh, that's the President."

It was.

The Secret Service men do not let themselves become part of the executive family. They may joke with Ford as does his photographer and friend David Hume Kennerly.

But Kennerly has his camera eye on Ford while agents such as Larry Buendorf must watch the faces in the crowd, as in Sacramento Sept. 5 when he grabbed pistol-packing Lynnette Fromme.

Sometimes it is the agent who is the center of the plot. Working this summer as a newspaper photographer in Topeka, Kan., Ford's daughter Susan trapped one of her agents with the old bucket-of-water-on-the-door trick and snapped his picture as he was drenched.

The agents, including the marksman in the dark eyeglasses whom Ford has nicknamed the "Brooklyn Flash," sometimes tip Ford. It was data from the agents that allowed Ford on a recent trip to ask a startled Kennerly by name about his adventures with his girlfriend of the day.

Perhaps the most delicate job of the Secret Service men is protecting Ford while he plays golf. Ford, who can remain cool even in such stress as in Sacramento and San Francisco, permits himself his only "doggone it all" on the links.

This has led agents to formulate what they call Murphy's law. Murphy's law: "The distance to which the President must be secured is in direct correlation to the quality of the last golf shot he hit — to wit, if he hits a bad shot, one can consider him secured up to a distance of 150 feet. If he hits a good shot he should be secured up to 5 feet."

The joking and unobserved law means that agents should step back and give Ford room for his "doggone it all" verbage should he hit a bad shot.

President took 'on spot' advice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford took the advice of Secret Service agents not to shake hands in a crowd outside a San Francisco hotel, where a woman fired a gun at him moments later, the White House said Wednesday.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford "always" takes such on-the-spot advice from his bodyguards.

Sara Jane Moore, 45, was part of "one of the crowds the Secret Service suggested the President might well pass up. The President passed it up."

Nessen added Ford was satisfied with his Secret Service protection, and planned to travel to Chicago next week and shake hands with crowds. "I think we will see the President hand-shaking again in public," Nessen said, because Ford wants to meet face-to-face with Americans "to get over to the people his concerns."

First lady Betty Ford, meanwhile, said she wants her husband to continue traveling, but wishes he would be more cautious and "just stay away from the people."

Mrs. Ford, her eyes flashing at some of the questions with a delegation of the Women's Stock Broker Association, said "perhaps there should be some curtailment" of her husband's handshaking and closeness to crowds in view of the second assassination attempt against him in California.

Egypt will take 1st Sinai accord step

Israel's chief military negotiator at the military protocol talks with Egypt in Geneva said Wednesday Egypt will take the first step to implement the interim Sinai peace pact by moving technicians into the Ras Sudar oilfields on Oct. 5. Maj. Gen. Herzl Shafir, the armed forces chief of operations, told reporters in Tel Aviv that Israel will turn over the entire Abu Rudeis oilfield complex on Dec. 12 and will complete its military withdrawal from the area by next Feb. 22.

In Washington, meantime, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee set aside a request to send American technicians to the Middle East until the White House makes public secret agreements involved in the Sinai accord. The decision spoiled administration hopes for fast approval of its commitment to send 200 American radar technicians to the Sinai peninsula.

Indonesian airliner crash kills 24

An Indonesian airliner attempting to land in a heavy fog overshot the runway and crashed in a burst of flames Wednesday, killing 24 passengers — 23 persons aboard and a woman standing in a nearby field. All 36 known survivors of the crash at Palembang airport in South Sumatra were injured. Two persons were missing. Authorities said the Garuda Airways plane apparently struck a rubber tree, exploded and crashed in a field near the runway.

Angleton, who took over the program in 1955, said he understood it was authorized by the CIA's chief of clandestine services. He also said he knew all along that it was illegal.

Charles Daly, Harvard's vice president for governmental affairs, said of the disclosures: "We are sickened by reports of this and other criminal actions taken by persons who are supposed to be busy defending our rights instead of stealing them."

Coretta King commented: "Suspicions over the years that the CIA was unlawfully introducing into domestic affairs and citizens' privacy have been confirmed. The important consequence of these dastardly actions should be the establishment of a permanent, legally constituted body that will check this runaway agency from dragging us closer to a police state."

A spokesman for the Ford Foundation said the mail interception came as "news to us, and we don't feel we want to comment until the committee completes its investigation."

The Postal Service said in reply to an inquiry that mail openings are not legal for any purpose unless authorized by court order or search warrant.

"We want to know why the mail of such groups as the Ford Foundation, Harvard University, and the Rockefeller Foundations was regularly opened by the CIA," Church said.

Church said that evidence so far showed "the president did not know that the mail was being opened."

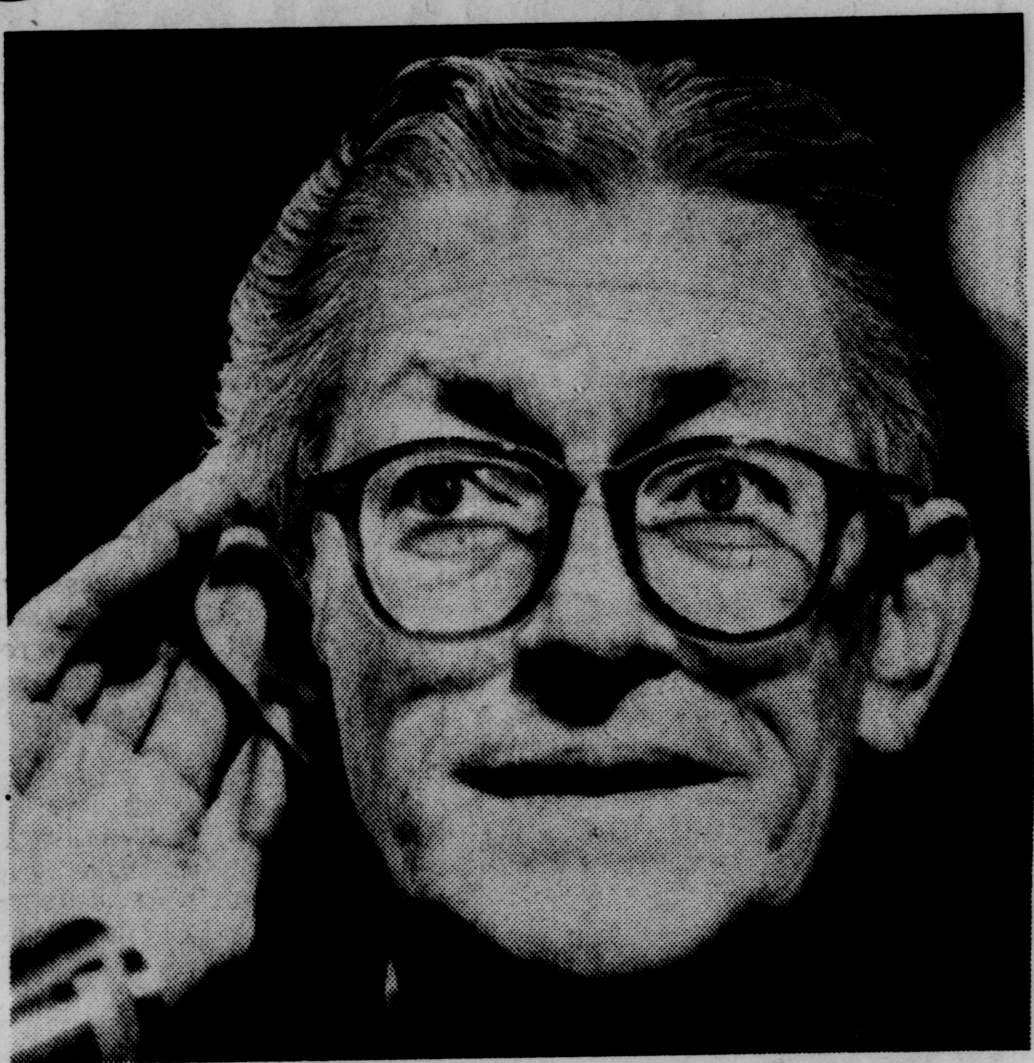
The chairman told witness James Angleton, former counter intelligence chief, the CIA had failed its responsibility to the president by not informing him of the mail surveillance program.

Angleton said if Nixon had ever asked for a review of the intelligence system and procedures, he would have been told of the mail cover.

"But that is exactly what he did do," Church said. "The president wanted to be informed, he wanted the information, yet he was misinformed . . . What possible justification was there to misrepresent the matter to the commander-in-chief?"

"I have no satisfactory answer," Angleton replied. "I don't believe there is one," Church said.

Angleton described the mail program as "routine in nature" and as "an indispensible way of gaining intelligence on the Soviets who regard this country as their main enemy."



JAMES ANGLETON, former CIA counter-intelligence chief reports the basic thrust of the CIA mail-opening program was confined to a "watch list" of specific individuals and groups.

U.S. judge orders Nixon testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A. U.S. District Judge Wednesday ruled that former President Richard M. Nixon must submit to questioning under oath in connection with a damage suit involving alleged illegal wiretaps by the White House "plumbers."

Judge Lewis Smith said a former president cannot claim executive privilege and confidentiality to avoid giving testimony about White House operations needed for the civil damage suit of Morton H. Halperin, former member of Nixon's National Security staff.

Smith ordered that the deposition be taken at some location at Nixon's west coast home or nearby.

He said an incumbent President can invoke executive privilege on behalf of a former President but pointed out that President Ford has not done so in this case.

"Mr Nixon makes the claim of executive privilege on his own behalf as a private citizen," Smith ruled.

Halperin filed the suit against Nixon and a number of his top aides and other White House personnel for damages he claims from a wiretap on his home telephone from 1969 to 1971.

Nixon sought a "protective order" to block Halperin's move to have him placed under oath and questioned by lawyers about the wiretaps.

Judge Smith acknowledged in a four-and-one-half page opinion that a former President "should not be subjected to endless subpoenas and depositions concerning actions taken during his administration."

He said the interest of the litigant must be balanced against a former president's undue privacy invasions.

"In weighing the opposing interests at stake here the court finds that plaintiffs have met this burden and are entitled to depose defendant Nixon," he said.

'Modest' OPEC oil price hike seen

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Leading oil producers agreed Wednesday to raise oil prices Oct. 1, but most of them said it would be a "modest" hike that would keep world inflation from soaring out of control.

Iranian Minister Jamshid Amouzegar told reporters after a five-hour meeting of oil ministers of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries they hoped to reach a decision on the exact size of the increase Thursday.

Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, said there were sharp differences of opinion over the size of the increase.

"The differences are greater than I expected," said Yamani, who went into the meeting publicly favoring a continuation of the oil price freeze that OPEC agreed upon nine months ago.

The ministers haggled over the price question in informal discussions on the sidelines of their closed-door meeting.

An Iranian source spoke of a 7 to 10 per cent increase in the current $10.46 a barrel for Saudi Arabian crude, the benchmark price in the OPEC pricing system. Each percentage of increase would add about $1 billion to the world's oil bill, which already has gone up 500 per cent in the past five years.

A 10 per cent increase in oil prices, which some OPEC officials regard as a likely compromise, would raise the price per barrel by $1.05 to a total $11.51. A 7 per cent hike would boost prices 73 cents to a total $11.19.

Ministers attending the OPEC meeting left no doubt in statements to reporters that prices would be increased when the current nine-month freeze ends Sept. 30. Even Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister who favors continuation of the freeze, acknowledged that "a lot of people" in the meeting oppose a freeze.

Nessen added Ford was satisfied with his Secret Service protection, and planned to travel to Chicago next week and shake hands with crowds. "I think we will see the President hand-shaking again in public," Nessen said, because Ford wants to meet face-to-face with Americans "to get over to the people his concerns."

First lady Betty Ford, meanwhile, said she wants her husband to continue traveling, but wishes he would be more cautious and "just stay away from the people."

Mrs. Ford, her eyes flashing at some of the questions with a delegation of the Women's Stock Broker Association, said "perhaps there should be some curtailment" of her husband's handshaking and closeness to crowds in view of the second assassination attempt against him in California.

Egypt will take 1st Sinai accord step

Israel's chief military negotiator at the military protocol talks with Egypt in Geneva said Wednesday Egypt will take the first step to implement the interim Sinai peace pact by moving technicians into the Ras Sudar oilfields on Oct. 5. Maj. Gen. Herzl Shafir, the armed forces chief of operations, told reporters in Tel Aviv that Israel will turn over the entire Abu Rudeis oilfield complex on Dec. 12 and will complete its military withdrawal from the area by next Feb. 22.

In Washington, meantime, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee set aside a request to send American technicians to the Middle East until the White House makes public secret agreements involved in the Sinai accord. The decision spoiled administration hopes for fast approval of its commitment to send 200 American radar technicians to the Sinai peninsula.

Indonesian airliner crash kills 24

An Indonesian airliner attempting to land in a heavy fog overshot the runway and crashed in a burst of flames Wednesday, killing 24 passengers — 23 persons aboard and a woman standing in a nearby field. All 36 known survivors of the crash at Palembang airport in South Sumatra were injured. Two persons were missing. Authorities said the Garuda Airways plane apparently struck a rubber tree, exploded and crashed in a field near the runway.

Experts begin RFK 'second gun' tests

Seven firearms experts began private tests Wednesday on exhibits in the murder trial of Sirhan B. Sirhan to try to answer the question of whether more than one gun was used in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. The experts worked in a Los Angeles jury room, equipped as a laboratory, in the county courthouse.

Three Patty psychiatrists appointed

A federal judge in San Francisco Wednesday appointed three psychiatrists, including an expert on "brainwashing" techniques, to examine Patricia Hearst. U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter named Drs. L. J. West, chief of the psychiatric department at UCLA, Seymour Pollack, University of Southern California, and Donald G. Lunde, Stanford University. West is the expert on "brainwashing." He interviewed and directed treatment for many returning Vietnam veterans who had been held as prisoners of war.

Faye forms as bulldozers work in Florida

As bulldozers pushed through Florida streets Wednesday, clearing away debris left by Hurricane Eloise, tropical depression Faye continued to strengthen and hurricane forecasters said the system could be designated as a tropical storm soon. The system, with winds of 40 miles per hour, was located about 800 miles south-southwest of Bermuda and moving west-northwest.

THE TINIEST Indian of all at the annual Harvest Festival in Utica, Ill. was Justin Delgado, 21-months. A member of the Oneida tribe, he took part in several dances in thanks for successful crops. Fifty Indians from various midwest tribes took part in the festival hosted by the Winnebago Indians.

Angleton, who took over the program in 1955, said he understood it was authorized by the CIA's chief of clandestine services. He also said he knew all along that it was illegal.

Charles Daly, Harvard's vice president for governmental affairs, said of the disclosures: "We are sickened by reports of this and other criminal actions taken by persons who are supposed to be busy defending our rights instead of stealing them."

Coretta King commented: "Suspicions over the years that the CIA was unlawfully introducing into domestic affairs and citizens' privacy have been confirmed. The important consequence of these dastardly actions should be the establishment of a permanent, legally constituted body that will check this runaway agency from dragging us closer to a police state."

A spokesman for the Ford Foundation said the mail interception came as "news to us, and we don't feel we want to comment until the committee completes its investigation."

The Postal Service said in reply to an inquiry that mail openings are not legal for any purpose unless authorized by court order or search warrant.

"We want to know why the mail of such groups as the Ford Foundation, Harvard University, and the Rockefeller Foundations was regularly opened by the CIA," Church said.

Church said that evidence so far showed "the president did not know that the mail was being opened."

The chairman told witness James Angleton, former counter intelligence chief, the CIA had failed its responsibility to the president by not informing him of the mail surveillance program.

Angleton said if Nixon had ever asked for a review of the intelligence system and procedures, he would have been told of the mail cover.

"But that is exactly what he did do," Church said. "The president wanted to be informed, he wanted the information, yet he was misinformed . . . What possible justification was there to misrepresent the matter to the commander-in-chief?"

"I have no satisfactory answer," Angleton replied. "I don't believe there is one," Church said.

Angleton described the mail program as "routine in nature" and as "an indispensible way of gaining intelligence on the Soviets who regard this country as their main enemy."

JAMES ANGLETON, former CIA counter-intelligence chief reports the basic thrust of the CIA mail-opening program was confined to a "watch list" of specific individuals and groups.

U.S. judge orders Nixon testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A. U.S. District Judge Wednesday ruled that former President Richard M. Nixon must submit to questioning under oath in connection with a damage suit involving alleged illegal wiretaps by the White House "plumbers."

Judge Lewis Smith said a former president cannot claim executive privilege and confidentiality to avoid giving testimony about White House operations needed for the civil damage suit of Morton H. Halperin, former member of Nixon's National Security staff.

Smith ordered that the deposition be taken at some location at Nixon's west coast home or nearby.

He said an incumbent President can invoke executive privilege on behalf of a former President but pointed out that President Ford has not done so in this case.

"Mr Nixon makes the claim of executive privilege on his own behalf as a private citizen," Smith ruled.

Halperin filed the suit against Nixon and a number of his top aides and other White House personnel for damages he claims from a wiretap on his home telephone from 1969 to 1971.

Nixon sought a "protective order" to block Halperin's move to have him placed under oath and questioned by lawyers about the wiretaps.

Judge Smith acknowledged in a four-and-one-half page opinion that a former President "should not be subjected to endless subpoenas and depositions concerning actions taken during his administration."

He said the interest of the litigant must be balanced against a former president's undue privacy invasions.

"In weighing the opposing interests at stake here the court finds that plaintiffs have met this burden and are entitled to depose defendant Nixon," he said.

'Modest' OPEC oil price hike seen

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Leading oil producers agreed Wednesday to raise oil prices Oct. 1, but most of them said it would be a "modest" hike that would keep world inflation from soaring out of control.

Iranian Minister Jamshid Amouzegar told reporters after a five-hour meeting of oil ministers of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries they hoped to reach a decision on the exact size of the increase Thursday.

Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, said there were sharp differences of opinion over the size of the increase.

"The differences are greater than I expected," said Yamani, who went into the meeting publicly favoring a continuation of the oil price freeze that OPEC agreed upon nine months ago.

The ministers haggled over the price question in informal discussions on the sidelines of their closed-door meeting.

An Iranian source spoke of a 7 to 10 per cent increase in the current $10.46 a barrel for Saudi Arabian crude, the benchmark price in the OPEC pricing system. Each percentage of increase would add about $1 billion to the world's oil bill, which already has gone up 500 per cent in the past five years.

A 10 per cent increase in oil prices, which some OPEC officials regard as a likely compromise, would raise the price per barrel by $1.05 to a total $11.51. A 7 per cent hike would boost prices 73 cents to a total $11.19.

Ministers attending the OPEC meeting left no doubt in statements to reporters that prices would be increased when the current nine-month freeze ends Sept. 30. Even Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister who favors continuation of the freeze, acknowledged that "a lot of people" in the meeting oppose a freeze.

Cheri peels off uniform to join 'Cat'

- While topless dancer Cat Futch, was strutting aboard the USS Finback, Cheri Foltz was in a Navy uniform typing disciplinary reports on wayward sailors. The girls now have something in common. Last month, Cheri peeled off her Navy uniform to become a professional dancer at the Red Garter, a topless cocktail lounge not far from the Orlando Naval Training Center. Cheri said she got fed up with "military hypocrisy," like the decision to punish Cmdr. Connelly D. Stevenson for letting the gyrating "Cat" perform topless on the Finback. She also knocked Navy discipline, citing one case at Great Lakes where a man roller skated nude in front of the women's barracks. Cheri never danced professionally with or without clothes, but said: "Now I love being on stage. I guess I'm an exhibitionist. I like to get up there and turn men on."

Kirk Center garden dedication set

Dedication ceremonies for the Fragrance and Recreational Garden for the Handicapped, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Woman's Club, will be in Kirk Center, 520 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine, Sunday at 2 p.m.

Nearly two years of work and thousands of dollars in donated materials and volunteer time went into the garden at Kirk Center, a school for handicapped children from 10 Northwest suburban school districts.

Dr. Samuel A. Kirk, in whose honor Kirk Center was named, and Edward H. Gilbert, superintendent of High School Dist. 214, will participate in the dedication. Kirk is a noted leader in the field of mental retardation.

The garden designed by landscape architect Harold O. Klopp, who donated his services, gives special consideration to the needs of handicapped children. Fragrant flowers and herbs, plants of varying textures and vegetables are planted within a series of stone walls to allow easy access to the handicapped. Plants are labeled in braille for the blind and blacktop pathways have been installed for those in wheelchairs.

THE GARDEN FEATURES an aviary and a fountain. There is also an indoor aviary to accommodate the birds during cold weather. The garden will be used as part of Kirk Center's vocational training program to teach gardening skills.

All labor has been done by volunteer workers. Lions Clubs from Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Schaumburg raised $2,050 towards the cost of pathways.

More than 100 individual and business contributors have brought the garden to its present stage. Funds are still needed and can be mailed to Mrs. Eldred Stake, 536 S. Evanston St., Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.

Guests may tour the garden following dedication ceremonies.

Woman hurt fighting fire

A Palatine woman was injured Wednesday afternoon when she and her teenaged daughter attempted to put out a fire in the basement of their home, 552 N. Williams Dr.

Judy Templeton, 36, was listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday night at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. She suffered burns on the face and smoke inhalation.

The fire caused between $10,000 and $15,000 damage to the home, Fire Chief Orville Helms said. He reported he had not determined the cause of the fire, which erupted about 5:30 p.m.

MRS. TEMPLETON'S daughter, Kathy, 15, said the blaze apparently started while her 3-year-old brother was playing with matches.

Helms said the fire started in the basement of the house and crept up the walls into the bedroom area, gutting the rear portion of the structure. Palatine firefighters quickly extinguished the fire.

Kathy said she was taking a bath when smoke filled the bathroom through the vent. She locked herself in, but then changed her mind and ran to her room to put on clothing, she said.

Kathy then rushed to the basement to help her mother in trying to extinguish the flames, but they were unsuccessful, she said.

Local man joins United as plans head

Robert C. Arnold, 408 S. Banbury Rd., Arlington Heights, has joined United Airlines as director of plans administration at the company's corporate headquarters, Elk Grove Township.

He previously had been with Cresap, McCormick & Paget, Chicago management consultants.

Arnold had been with the Chicago firm since April 1961 and was responsible for the firm's central region corporate planning consulting practice. Among his various projects at Cresap, McCormick & Paget were team efforts with United personnel to develop and then implement a corporate planning process at United.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., he received a bachelor's degree from the University of Missouri in 1961 with a Master's degree in business administration in 1964.

Arnold is a member of the Society for Management Information Systems, Midwest Planning Assn. and Investment Analysts Society, Chicago.

Four Arlington Heights residents have been elected vice presidents of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., Chicago.

James M. O'Keane and James M. Voss were named vice presidents in the commercial banking department.

Theodore C. Kauss Jr. was named a vice president in the trust department, and Stephen W. Scheetz was named a second vice president in the commercial banking department.

O'Keane and Voss were promoted from second vice presidents. O'Keane recieved both his bachelor's (1967) and master's (1968) degrees from the University of Wisconsin. Voss received a bachelor's degree in 1964 from Northwestern University, and in 1965 received a master's degree, also from Northwestern.

Sacred Heart High School

A "Big Sister - Little Sister" picnic will be held for freshmen at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows by the junior class from 2-5 p.m. Sunday.

The girls will pair up to share a home-packed lunch and compete in games for prizes. The junior class players will also present a skit.

Woman hurt fighting fire

A Palatine woman was injured Wednesday afternoon when she and her teenaged daughter attempted to put out a fire in the basement of their home, 552 N. Williams Dr.

Judy Templeton, 36, was listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday night at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. She suffered burns on the face and smoke inhalation.

The fire caused between $10,000 and $15,000 damage to the home, Fire Chief Orville Helms said. He reported he had not determined the cause of the fire, which erupted about 5:30 p.m.

MRS. TEMPLETON'S daughter, Kathy, 15, said the blaze apparently started while her 3-year-old brother was playing with matches.

Helms said the fire started in the basement of the house and crept up the walls into the bedroom area, gutting the rear portion of the structure. Palatine firefighters quickly extinguished the fire.

Kathy said she was taking a bath when smoke filled the bathroom through the vent. She locked herself in, but then changed her mind and ran to her room to put on clothing, she said.

Kathy then rushed to the basement to help her mother in trying to extinguish the flames, but they were unsuccessful, she said.

Local man joins United as plans head

Robert C. Arnold, 408 S. Banbury Rd., Arlington Heights, has joined United Airlines as director of plans administration at the company's corporate headquarters, Elk Grove Township.

He previously had been with Cresap, McCormick & Paget, Chicago management consultants.

Arnold had been with the Chicago firm since April 1961 and was responsible for the firm's central region corporate planning consulting practice. Among his various projects at Cresap, McCormick & Paget were team efforts with United personnel to develop and then implement a corporate planning process at United.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., he received a bachelor's degree from the University of Missouri in 1961 with a Master's degree in business administration in 1964.

Arnold is a member of the Society for Management Information Systems, Midwest Planning Assn. and Investment Analysts Society, Chicago.

Four Arlington Heights residents have been elected vice presidents of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., Chicago.

James M. O'Keane and James M. Voss were named vice presidents in the commercial banking department.

Theodore C. Kauss Jr. was named a vice president in the trust department, and Stephen W. Scheetz was named a second vice president in the commercial banking department.

O'Keane and Voss were promoted from second vice presidents. O'Keane recieved both his bachelor's (1967) and master's (1968) degrees from the University of Wisconsin. Voss received a bachelor's degree in 1964 from Northwestern University, and in 1965 received a master's degree, also from Northwestern.

30 days given to circus to prepare contract case

Owners of a circus charged with violating state charitable trust laws during two recent performances in Schaumburg have been granted a 30-day continuation to present their case.

Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen granted the continuance after the attorney representing Carson and Barnes Circus Co. asked for more time. Cohen also extended a restraining order preventing the circus from removing from the bank or state any funds raised during the performances.

The restraining order was issued last month after the attorney general's office filed suit against the circus owners. Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott charged the owners with forcing the Schaumburg Lions Club into an illegal contract for two performances in August.

Scott said the contract is a "clear violation" of laws requiring charities to receive at least 75 per cent of gross receipts of such events. Scott is seeking to nullify the contract and obtain more money for the Lions Club.

Trainers, grooms: keep moving on

Mike Dassouki

Mike Dassouki has been grooming horses for 10 years and it doesn't matter much to him whether he does his work in Arlington Heights, Hot Springs, Ark., or New Orleans, La.

"Arlington Park is the same as any other track — they're all about the same to the horsemen," he says.

Dassouki will be busy today helping trainer Paul Adwell load some 50 horses from their Arlington Park stalls into tractor trailers for the short and familiar expressway ride to Hawthorne Race Track in Cicero.

Adwell has enjoyed a good summer at Arlington Park — that means winners. But Dassouki does not share the daily fortunes of winning, or the anguish of losing. "We're paid the same either way," he said.

TRAINER BILL Herndon is one of the little men in thoroughbred racing with just five horses and one groom to move from Arlington Park.

"It's tough on a small guy trying to get started," says the 28-year-old Herndon. "It takes a lot of money and you've got to have some luck."

Herndon is headed for Oak Lawn and Hot Springs, Ark. A native of Little Rock, the grip will reunite him with his wife and two children.

"It gets kind of old sometimes, traveling around like this. But everyone's got to do something," he says.

HIS YOUNG GROOM, who's spent only five months on the race track backstretch, agrees.

"I had a friend who worked at the track and he told me to give it a try. Working here is better than being on the street getting in trouble," he says.

Herndon wants to stay in the tricky business of horse training, in part because his father raised horses before him. Though he had only one winning horse at Arlington Park this summer, Herndon still appreciated the 94-day meeting.

"You don't have to ship your horses around so much — that costs money," he says.

At the height of the summer racing season, there are as many as 2,000 horses and 700 stable employes in the backstretch at Arlington Park. By tonight, there may not be more than 20.

President: 'very successful season'

John F. Loome is the proud captain of a ship that is enjoying some very smooth sailing.

His 1975 racing meet at Arlington Park will set all-time attendance and betting records for an Illinois race track, outdistancing in 94 days the previous record compiled over a 103-day meeting. "It's been a very successful season," he says.

In numerical terms, Arlington Park has played to nearly 1.5 million people this summer. By the time the last race is run this afternoon, wagering will total nearly $160 million.

"Of course you can say figures show an increase in gambling all over the country," Loome says. "But the fact that our attendance also is up substantially is the most promising sign of all."

UNDER A PROPOSED new Illinois racing law that would lower admission prices and increase the size of purses for horsemen, Loome is looking forward to even better days ahead.

"If the bill is signed, track operators like ourselves will be warranted in spending money to improve their racing plants and we intend to improve both Arlington and Washington parks," he said.

Confident words from a man who just two years ago, told the Illinois Racing Board that times were so bad that another poor season could spell the end of horse racing at Arlington Park.

"We had been given racing dates for a time when we were not designed to run," Loome says recalling the dark 1973 season. "A year ago the (racing) commission gave us the right dates and then (this year) it expanded on them. The results are in the numbers," he said.

LOOME SAYS he now will "get going on a plan for racing dates for next year." The racing board will hold hearings in November and announce the 1976 racing schedule before the start of the New Year.

"Everybody keeps talking about the old days on the race track. Well, the old days are gone, just like my youth. There is no way I'm going to bring them back. What we're doing is looking ahead."

Part of the future may include Sunday racing at Arlington Park — a day that could equal or surpass the attendance and betting figures now compiled on Saturdays.

Maitre d': satisfies diner's whim

Sometimes John Christ maitre d' of Arlington Park's Classic Club, has to work a miracle to satisfy the whims and appetites of 2,400 diners that can pack his restaurant on a big summer racing day.

Christ has 32 years experience in the restaurant business — nine years at Arlington Park and the previous 23 at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago.

"This room is like a second home to me, really," says the European-raised maitre d', who described business in the Classic Club this summer as "very good, the best we ever had."

Christ will trail the horses to Hawthorne Race Track after today where he will oversee operation of the clubhouse restaurant. At the close of racing there, he is his own man.

"Until we get the new dates for Arlington Park, I play it by ear. At the end of November, I might go to Washington Park, or take a little break until we start the action again."

Christ and his staff cater to some of Arlington Park's highest rollers. From his reservation desk on the race track's fifth floor, he commands a sweeping view of the dirt oval and grassy lake-spotted infield.

It is a picture window on a scene that could not be created today, and there is a hint of sadness that it is time to draw the blinds again.

Cop: his job means getting cars in and out

Rolling Meadows Police Sgt. Timothy Lonegran has opened and closed 12 racing seasons at Arlington Park.

Without him and the other police officers who get racing fans in and out of the track each day, Arlington Park would be a much nastier place.

"My main problem is local residents sometimes feel they should have priority (over race track goers) in getting home. And they get impatient if they have to wait while we balance the volume of traffic," he says.

The City of Rolling Meadows provides as many as six patrolmen to assist cars in and out of the race track gates on a busy racing day. The men volunteer for the special duty. Their salaries are paid by the race track.

"It's a good detail really, especially for a young patrolman," Lonegran says. On a typical day, a cop will spend an hour before the 2 p.m. post time, and an hour and a half after the last race waving and whistling at cars.

THE MAIN difference between the two shifts is obvious. "You've got the losers coming out and potential winners going in," Lonegran says, and that can affect a motorist's disposition.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case says the end of racing at Arlington Park today makes little difference to him, or his police officers. "They're all special details. We never shortchange the city."

"It's just another season. We handle it."

But the prospect of Sunday racing poses a horse of a different color.

"Sunday racing would interfere with famlies who want to take a drive. There are a lot more people in town going to and from church, or visiting their friends," Case said.

"We'd also have a manpower shortage. The fellas like to get one weekend off once and a while."

Mike Dassouki

Mike Dassouki has been grooming horses for 10 years and it doesn't matter much to him whether he does his work in Arlington Heights, Hot Springs, Ark., or New Orleans, La.

"Arlington Park is the same as any other track — they're all about the same to the horsemen," he says.

Dassouki will be busy today helping trainer Paul Adwell load some 50 horses from their Arlington Park stalls into tractor trailers for the short and familiar expressway ride to Hawthorne Race Track in Cicero.

Adwell has enjoyed a good summer at Arlington Park — that means winners. But Dassouki does not share the daily fortunes of winning, or the anguish of losing. "We're paid the same either way," he said.

TRAINER BILL Herndon is one of the little men in thoroughbred racing with just five horses and one groom to move from Arlington Park.

"It's tough on a small guy trying to get started," says the 28-year-old Herndon. "It takes a lot of money and you've got to have some luck."

Herndon is headed for Oak Lawn and Hot Springs, Ark. A native of Little Rock, the grip will reunite him with his wife and two children.

"It gets kind of old sometimes, traveling around like this. But everyone's got to do something," he says.

HIS YOUNG GROOM, who's spent only five months on the race track backstretch, agrees.

"I had a friend who worked at the track and he told me to give it a try. Working here is better than being on the street getting in trouble," he says.

Herndon wants to stay in the tricky business of horse training, in part because his father raised horses before him. Though he had only one winning horse at Arlington Park this summer, Herndon still appreciated the 94-day meeting.

Education backers in dollar dilemma

by WANDALYN RICE

Long-time education supporters in the Illinois General Assembly find themselves torn between their old loyalties and the state's deteriorating financial situation in the upcoming battle to override Gov. Daniel Walker's education vetoes.

The fight shaping up when the legislature goes back in session Oct. 22 probably will see Chicago Democrats firmly favoring override, many Republicans firmly opposed and a number of legislators in the middle, according to many observers.

Despite an assertion Wednesday by Gerald L. Sbarboro, a member of the Chicago Board of Education, that supporters of the Chicago schools have already lined up nearly enough votes to override the vetoes, other observers say the outcome of the fight is far from certain.

"Right now it's a pretty even proposition (on the overrides)," Donald Eslick, the Illinois Board of Education's chief lobbyist said. "It could go either way."

WALKER'S BUDGET cuts include an $81 million reduction veto in the state's general school aid formula, cuts in appropriations for special education and a veto of a bill to change the state school aid formula to aid a number of school districts.

Much of the battle on the overrides is likely to focus on the school aid formula appropriation, where an override will benefit all the state's school districts. And it is on that override that some legislators who have long supported state education appropriations express uncertainty.

State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst, one of the authors of the state's school-aid formula, said, "I'm in support of the veto override if we have the money. I think we'll be in a much better position to judge that by the middle of October."

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a member of the House education committee, said, "I firmly believe in fully funding the present school aid formula and I will vote for the overrides if I possibly can." However, she said, "In these kinds of times, we really don't know that an override would not mean a tax increase."

Both Chapman and Hoffman said they are concerned by reports by State Comptroller George Lindberg that the state's general revenue from the income tax and sales tax is running behind projections because of the recession.

LINDBERG HAS SAID the governor's budget cuts in education, public aid and other areas do not go far enough in cutting state expenditures. He has also said the General Assembly should not override the budget cuts without risking worsening the state's financial situation.

Mrs. Chapman, chairman of the House Human Resource Committee, said she is convinced that the state will need an additional $100 million to meet public aid obligations this fiscal year.

Chicago Democrats loyal to Mayor Richard J. Daley are expected to vote unanimously for an override of the school aid veto in order to provide more money to the Chicago Public Schools, which are expected to be financially strapped because of the recent teachers' contract settlement.

The problem, said William Henkel, a lobbyist for a group of suburban school districts, will be whether Daley's forces will be able to muster enough Republicans and downstate Democrats to override the vetoes.

Use of salt won't affect constipation

I am 50 years old and have been bothered with constipation for a long time. I use a lot of table salt on most everything I eat. My husband says this is the reason for my constipation. Your opinion, please.

No. The salt is absorbed from your digestive tract and eliminated through your kidneys, as long as you have good kidney function. Too much salt, though, may be harmful to your kidneys or may even be related to developing high blood pressure. Moderation in salt use is a good idea.

Constipation is caused from many factors. The problem is often related to improper eating habits, unwise use of laxatives and poor bowel habits. It is usually possible to overcome these problems by changing your way of living. This involves changes in eating habits and bowel training.

I have a stomach disorder which is driving me crazy. After I eat or drink almost anything I have a heavy feeling in my stomach accompanied by indigestion. If left unattended I usually end up belching up undigested food for hours. Although not painful, this is very annoying. To eliminate this discomfort I usually drink a glass of water mixed with baking soda, belch up the contents in my stomach, and find immediate relief.

I went to my doctor in regard to this approximately three years ago. After various tests were given (ulcer check, etc.) I was given a clean bill of health.

Last year I separated from my wife and within days these symptoms completely disappeared. Five months ago we went back together and — you guessed it — the symptoms returned, although our marriage seems much better.

Perhaps the problem is psychological and in turn creating physical havoc on my system, but this is an unprofessional guess, and even if accurate, where do I begin? Please help!

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb

Your unprofessional guess is probably right. You are describing esophageal or cardio-spasm. The spasm occurs in the muscles in the lower esophagus just where the esophagus joins the stomach.

Why do I think so? Because you said you belched up undigested food hours later. If the food had gotten into your stomach and had been there several hours it would be at least partially digested by the acid digestive juices in the stomach.

That also is why your doctor didn't see anything. The spasm comes and goes, like a muscle cramp. When you see a person with this problem and he doesn't have the spasm during the examination you can't see it or establish the diagnosis. It is like the intermittent rattle in your car. It is always gone when you get it to the garage.

Go back to your family doctor and try again. He may be lucky enough to get x-ray or fluoroscopy studies of you when you are in spams. He also can refer you to a mental health clinic or psychologist for some professional counseling. You probably need to resolve some sources of conflict that are causing you anxiety and tension, and you won't be able to do it alone.

Just because something is psychological is no reason not to try to resolve it. The problem is just as real as if you had an irritation in your esophagus from some disease. Meanwhile, stop all cigarets, coffee, colas and tea.

I am 50 years old and have been bothered with constipation for a long time. I use a lot of table salt on most everything I eat. My husband says this is the reason for my constipation. Your opinion, please.

No. The salt is absorbed from your digestive tract and eliminated through your kidneys, as long as you have good kidney function. Too much salt, though, may be harmful to your kidneys or may even be related to developing high blood pressure. Moderation in salt use is a good idea.

Constipation is caused from many factors. The problem is often related to improper eating habits, unwise use of laxatives and poor bowel habits. It is usually possible to overcome these problems by changing your way of living. This involves changes in eating habits and bowel training.

I have a stomach disorder which is driving me crazy. After I eat or drink almost anything I have a heavy feeling in my stomach accompanied by indigestion. If left unattended I usually end up belching up undigested food for hours. Although not painful, this is very annoying. To eliminate this discomfort I usually drink a glass of water mixed with baking soda, belch up the contents in my stomach, and find immediate relief.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb

I went to my doctor in regard to this approximately three years ago. After various tests were given (ulcer check, etc.) I was given a clean bill of health.

Last year I separated from my wife and within days these symptoms completely disappeared. Five months ago we went back together and — you guessed it — the symptoms returned, although our marriage seems much better.

Perhaps the problem is psychological and in turn creating physical havoc on my system, but this is an unprofessional guess, and even if accurate, where do I begin? Please help!

Your unprofessional guess is probably right. You are describing esophageal or cardio-spasm. The spasm occurs in the muscles in the lower esophagus just where the esophagus joins the stomach.

Why do I think so? Because you said you belched up undigested food hours later. If the food had gotten into your stomach and had been there several hours it would be at least partially digested by the acid digestive juices in the stomach.

That also is why your doctor didn't see anything. The spasm comes and goes, like a muscle cramp. When you see a person with this problem and he doesn't have the spasm during the examination you can't see it or establish the diagnosis. It is like the intermittent rattle in your car. It is always gone when you get it to the garage.

Go back to your family doctor and try again. He may be lucky enough to get x-ray or fluoroscopy studies of you when you are in spams. He also can refer you to a mental health clinic or psychologist for some professional counseling. You probably need to resolve some sources of conflict that are causing you anxiety and tension, and you won't be able to do it alone.

Just because something is psychological is no reason not to try to resolve it. The problem is just as real as if you had an irritation in your esophagus from some disease. Meanwhile, stop all cigarets, coffee, colas and tea.

Sewage-treatment funds in danger

by LEA TONKIN

Illinois and neighboring states will lose $500 million in sewage-treatment funds if Congress changes the allocation of construction funds within the next few weeks, said Nancy Flowers of the Lake Michigan Federation, Chicago.

"Poor treatment of municipal sewage has been the major source of phosphorus which causes eutrophication, and Lake Michigan has been particularly burdened with high phosphorus levels," Miss Flowers said. The changes in allocation are contained in HR 5247, which is before conference committee. Passage of the bill will mean a delay in construction of needed sewage treatment facilities and an economic loss to Illinois, she said.

Illinois and five neighboring states had received a heavy share of U.S. sewage-treatment construction funds in previous years, she said. The new division of funds would slash an estimated $500 million from area funding, including about $100 million in Illinois.

"People do have time to write to their representatives," Miss Flowers said. She urged the public to express disapproval of HR 5247.

MSD leads fight against user-charge sewer lines

Villages and cities throughout Cook County are being asked to join the Metropolitan Sanitary District's fight against a user-charge system for sewer service.

Sanitary district officials testified Wednesday before a congressional committee, urging that current laws requiring user charges be changed to exclude homeowners and other domestic users of sewer systems.

Sanitary District Pres. Nicholas J. Melas asked the House Public Works Subcommittee on water resources and transportation to accept the current system of sewer financing through property taxes instead of requiring yearly expenditures of $6 million to bill users separately.

IN A LETTER sent this week to local municipalities, Sanitary District Trustee Jerome A. Cosentino urged officials to contact their congressmen to also urge that the federal user-charge requirement be modified.

Cosentino said setting up a user-charge system will increase the district's budget by 7 per cent without benefits to taxpayers. The user-charge system also would transfer some sewage treatment costs from industry and business to middle-income homeowners, Cosentino said.

He urged local officials to write their congressmen immediately.

Melas explained Wednesday to the subcommittee in Washington that the district agrees with the over-all objectives of federal legislation to require cleaner water. But, he said, the user-charge approach, "will require a nonproductive use of local funds and . . . will have no impact whatsoever on the efforts to clean up our waters."

MELAS SAID in addition to the $6 million annual billing cost to set up the system for the first time, to send bills to more than 1.3 million users would cost an additional $1 million.

He said local officials, including MSD trustees, " will bear the brunt of the public uproar over this inefficient and unproductive use of their monies.

Melas asked Congress to amend the law to conform with a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's recommendation that "real estate taxes combined with appropriate industrial surcharges" replace user charges.

He pointed out even with user charges the sanitary district will have to continue to collect property taxes to support flood-control work and operation of locks and gates on the Chicago River.

Colitz resumes post on zoning board

Ira Colitz, acquitted Monday of federal extortion charges in a Wheeling zoning payoff scheme, will resume his duties on the County Zoning Board.

Colitz, 59, of Chicago, had resigned his $12,000-a-year post on the board after his indictment Jan. 30, 1974.

But County Board Pres. George Dunne, a business associate of Colitz, refused to accept his resignation, thus keeping Colitz technically as a member of the board.

Acquitted with Colitz was Nicholas Phillips, 40, of Prospect Heights, a planner for the zoning board.

The two were found innocent of charges that they extorted $50,000 from Wickes, Inc., to influence zoning by the Village of Wheeling in 1971 for a furniture warehouse at 351 W. Dundee Rd.

Conservation parley set

Citizen involvement in conservation decisions will be encuraged at the Conservation Conference 3 slated Oct. 17-19, said Director Tony Dean of the Illinois Dept. of Conservation. The meeting will be at the Southern Illinois University Touch of Nature environmental center near Carbondale.

Among the conference discussion topics are the pros and cons of establishing a fish and game commission in Illinois, land acquisition priorities for the department, and use of wildlife resources.

Registration information is available from the Illinois Dept. of Conservation, Conservation Conference 3, I&E Division, 603 State Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706. Although the early registration deadline is past, late registration will be accepted Oct. 17.

Nature slides featured

Favorite nature slides will be shown by members of the Prairie Woods Audubon Society chapter of the National Audubon Society at the group's Oct. 16 meeting in Arlington Heights. The 7:30 p.m. meeting will be held at the Arington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton Ave.

Pollution hearing Friday

The Illinois Pollution Control Board Chicago hearing on proposed water-pollution-control amendments will be Friday at the Metropolitan Sanitary District offices, 100 E. Erie, starting at 9:30 a.m.

Voting records released

The Illinois Environmental Council recently published an account of state legislators' environmental voting records for the spring session of the 79th General Assembly. Votes on 38 selected bills are included in the survey, although no attempt is made to give environmental ratings to legislators. A copy of the report is available for $1. Write Illinois Environmental Council, 225½ E. Monroe St., Springfield, Ill. 62701.

Wender, professor of psychiatry and head of child psychiatry at the University of Utah School of Medicine, will conduct a number of lectures including:

- Labels. What they mean, what they don't mean.
- Attentional deficits. Their role in school and social learning.
- Hearing and visual learning problems.
- The effect of the teacher on the child with learning disabilities.
- Development of the LD child within the family and the family's reaction to the child.
- Behavioral and emotional developmental patterns and prevention and treatment of the problems of the LD child.
- The role of medication.
- Controversial treatment approaches including diet, allergy, multivitamins, motor patterning and optometric exercises.
- Case histories.

Reservations can be made by writing COULD, P.O. Box 704, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Lunch is not included.

North County 4-H elects new officers

The North Cook County 4-H Federation recently elected its officers for 1975-76.

The new officers are president, Frank Wollney; vice president, John Cramer; secretary, Julie Jacobs; treasurer, Julie Gibeau, and reporter, Marianne Halm.

Also elected were Connie Johnson, Holly Vogt, Randy Kiner and Bill Dunteman to the recreation committee.

Mediators may settle future consumer gripes

Future consumer complaints about products that don't work or fall apart, probably will be heard by an impartial panel with authority to resolve the issues, Virginia Knauer, special assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, said Wednesday.

If the consumer and manufacturer reach an impasse, the mediators would recommend solutions to difficult complaints. The approach has already been met with success, she said.

"The major appliance manufacturers and their retailers were the first to try this approach," Mre. Knauer said. "Appliance complaints have dropped from first to about fifth in my mail."

The third-party complaint handling system would consist of several consumer leaders and experts, she said. In addition to resolving complaints, the panels would provide a mechanism for industry to communicate with consumer leaders and learn what consumers want.

MRS. KNAUER made her prediction at the Business-Consumer Relations Seminar at the Marriott Hotel in Chicago. The all-day session was sponsored by the U.S. Dept. of Commerce and the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

"The consumer," Mrs. Knauer explained, "is you and me and the President and the newest born baby. They are all of us." She said she was optimistic that consumers and businesses will get along better. What is needed, she said, was more information to enable consumers "to choose on the basis of the qualities that are important to them."

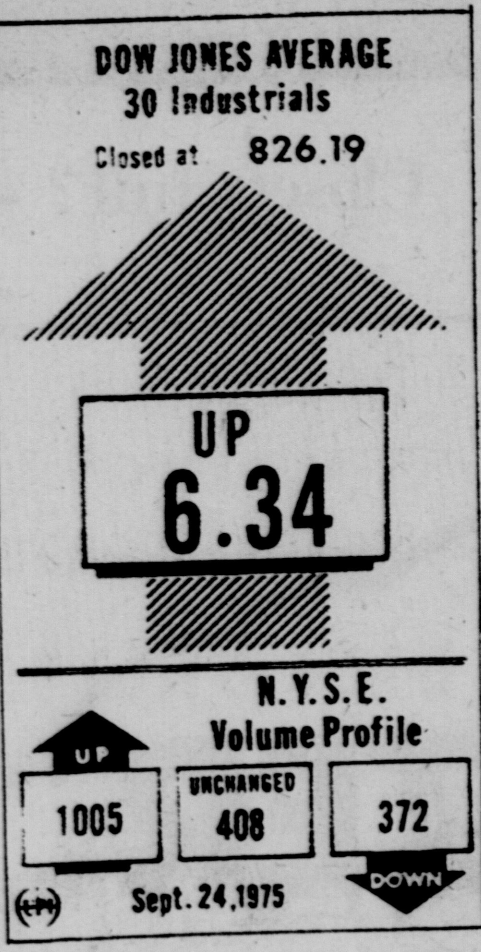
"They (the consumers) are beginning to complain that nobody ever told them what a big refrigerator with all the options could do to the electric bill. Now they want the information, in plain English, that will enable them to compare appliances."

BARBARA HACKMAN Franklin, the commissioner of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, said consumers are growing steadily in sophistication and assertiveness and the business sector must make strides to satisfy their needs.

"Consumers have tended to buy fewer things more carefully, and the trend toward wiser, more careful shopping is expected to continue," she said. "Consumers are demanding value for their money and they are making their views known when products fall short of expectations. More questions are being asked about performance, durability, cost and safety."

She said there is an indication many consumers misuse products and it is unfair to put all the blame on manufacturers. She suggested better warnings be placed on packages. She said the industry is producing safer products than ever before.

According to statistics, an estimated 20 million Americans are injured in or near the home in accidents involving consumer products. Of these, 110,000 are permanently disabled and 30,000 are killed.



Prices broadly higher as Dow climbs to 826

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices moved broadly higher Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had been ahead more than 12 points during the afternoon, finished with a gain of 6.34 points to 826.19. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.80 to 85.74. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 28 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,005 to 372, among the 1,785 issues crossing the tape.

Volume rose to 16,060,000 shares from the 12,800,000 traded Tuesday.

Oils and related issues gained. Phillips gained 1-7/8 to 59¾, Atlantic Richfield 1¾ to 101¼, Superior Oil 2 to 180, Getty 1½ to 183¼, Natomas 1 to 26½ and Ohio Standard 1-3/8 to 74. Baker Oil Tools gained 2-1/8 to 57½. Kerr-McGee 2-1/8 to 86 and Halliburton, Schlumberger and Hughes Tool a point or more each.

Polaroid led the Big Board Actives, gaining ¼ to 35½ on 353,800 shares. MacMillan exdividend followed, off 1/8 to 54¼ on 181,400 shares, including a block of 156,900 shares at 5¼. National Semiconductor was third, up 1-1/8 to 44-5/8 on 163,600 shares.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share gained seven cents. Volume totaled 1,610,000 shares, compared wth 1,370,000 traded Tuesday.

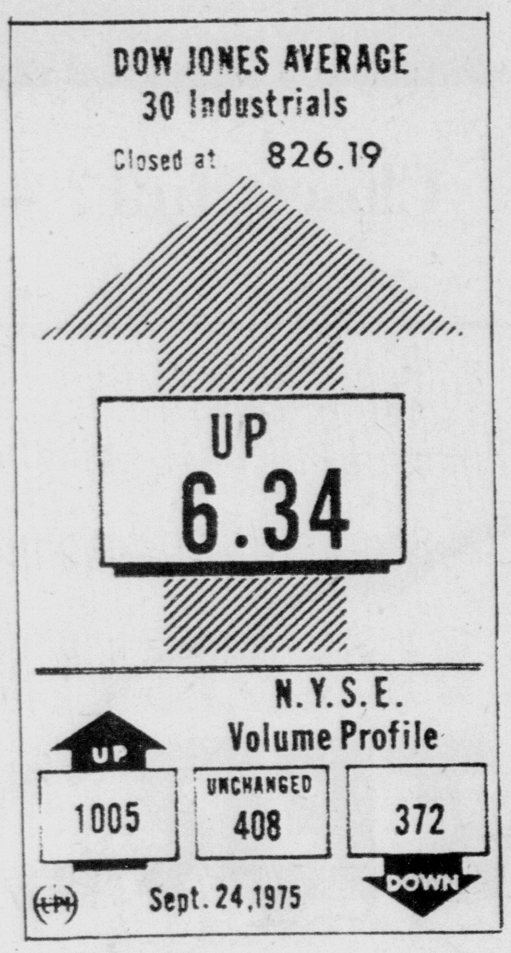
"Consumers are demanding value for their money and they are making their views known when products fall short of expectations. More questions are being asked about performance, durability, cost and safety."

She said there is an indication many consumers misuse products and it is unfair to put all the blame on manufacturers. She suggested better warnings be placed on packages. She said the industry is producing safer products than ever before.

According to statistics, an estimated 20 million Americans are injured in or near the home in accidents involving consumer products. Of these, 110,000 are permanently disabled and 30,000 are killed.



Prices broadly higher as Dow climbs to 826

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices moved broadly higher Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had been ahead more than 12 points during the afternoon, finished with a gain of 6.34 points to 826.19. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.80 to 85.74. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 28 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,005 to 372, among the 1,785 issues crossing the tape.

Volume rose to 16,060,000 shares from the 12,800,000 traded Tuesday.

Oils and related issues gained. Phillips gained 1-7/8 to 59¾, Atlantic Richfield 1¾ to 101¼, Superior Oil 2 to 180, Getty 1½ to 183¼, Natomas 1 to 26½ and Ohio Standard 1-3/8 to 74. Baker Oil Tools gained 2-1/8 to 57½. Kerr-McGee 2-1/8 to 86 and Halliburton, Schlumberger and Hughes Tool a point or more each.

Polaroid led the Big Board Actives, gaining ¼ to 35½ on 353,800 shares. MacMillan exdividend followed, off 1/8 to 54¼ on 181,400 shares, including a block of 156,900 shares at 5¼. National Semiconductor was third, up 1-1/8 to 44-5/8 on 163,600 shares.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share gained seven cents. Volume totaled 1,610,000 shares, compared wth 1,370,000 traded Tuesday.

Referendums raise ethical queries

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

Referendum campaigns are made up of late-night meetings, hard work, gallons of civic-association coffee, tons of store-bought cookies and some sticky ethical questions.

There are two groups of public officials who are dealing with these realities as Harper College and Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 head toward a Saturday showdown with voters.

The issues in the two referendums are different. Dist. 59 is broke and is trying to convince the public to raise taxes to get the district out of debt. Harper College is growing and is trying to persuade the voters to agree to an expansion program.

Despite the difference in the issues, however, the realities of the campaign are the same. Officials, board members, administrators and citizen backers have been out nearly every night for weeks talking to citizen groups and neighborhood coffees trying to explain the issues and answer the occasional hostile questions.

THE ETHICAL QUESTION confronting public officials during a referendum campaign is the least talked about aspect of any referendum campaign. The question can be phrased simply, though the answers are far from obvious: How much campaigning is appropriate when a governmental body is trying to convince voters to spend more of the money that supports it?

The law is clear in one respect. The government cannot spend taxpayers' money to urge voters to vote "yes" on a referendum. That is why the flyers and other literature you will see on the Dist. 59 or Harper referendums never specifically say "Vote Yes." The material must be informational, not propaganda.

It is true, however, that board members or other officials talking to voters cannot and do not hide their biases. If they didn't believe in the referendum, it would be a sorry thing, after all. And as long as they aren't paying taxpayers money, they can talk up the referendum and urge "yes" votes.

Ethical questions arise, however, when a "get-out-the-vote" campaign is launched. In Dist. 59, teachers are being asked to furnish names of potential voters for lists of those who will be called and asked to vote Saturday.

HARPER COLLEGE ran into some trouble earlier this week when officials inadvertently gave an unlisted telephone number of a former student to a volunteer who was calling as part of a "get-out-the-vote" campaign.

It is true that neither Dist. 59 nor Harper officials can be sure the people they will call on election day will vote in favor of the referendum. In fact, some of the people they call may specifically go out and vote against the referendum.

Nonetheless, there is a real ethical question involved when teachers are asked to furnish names for lists or when lists of former college students are supplied for volunteers.

Generally, the question is resolved in favor of using such practices, and there is little sign that anyone is actually hurt by it. Most officials running a referendum would draw the line at anything that looked like coercion — forcing teachers to "produce" yes voters, for example, or threatening other employes unless they work for the campaign.

THOSE WORKING for a referendum are quick to point out that, while the law limits what a public body can do to campaign for a referendum, there is no limit on what opponents can do to urge defeat.

Also, a high-profile campaign, even when it avoids ethical problems, can sometimes antagonize voters who are already hostile to the idea of a tax increase, thus causing more trouble for the public officials who want to see the referendum passed.

Referendum campaigns, therefore, are not easy, and in many ways it's a wonder there are so many, considering the disadvantages involved. But they will continue, and one thing will remain consistent.

Whatever decisions officials make on the question of ethics, the voters will decide whether the officials are right or wrong.

RTA suburban service topic at meeting tonight

Service to suburban areas by the Regional Transportation Authority will be discussed tonight by suburban RTA board member D. Daniel Baldino at the Palatine Township Republican Club meeting.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at Palatine Township Hall, 34 N. Plum Grove Rd., and is open to the public. Baldino said he will talk about what has and has not been done by the RTA to serve the suburban areas.

Political briefs

Hearing on hospital costs

Public hearings on a legislative proposal to slow the rising costs of hospital care will be conducted Wednesday at Harper College in Palatine.

The legislation is sponsored by State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, chairman of the Human Resources Committee of the Illinois House.

It would create the Illinois Health Finance Commission, which would be empowered to regulate hospital rates. As drafted, Mrs. Chapman's bill would create a 7-member commission to be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Jaycee General Assembly

A number of political leaders from the Northwest suburbs will participate in the fall General Assembly of the Illinois Jaycees Oct. 11 at the Sheraton O'Hare North Hotel, Rosemont.

U. S. Representatives Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, will participate in a panel on national politics and government during the morning session.

Also Saturday morning, State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, will be members of a panel on state government.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan will deliver the opening address at the assembly.

The luncheon speaker will be former U. S. Atty. James R. Thompson, a Republican candidate for governor, Gov. Daniel Walker will address the banquet Saturday evening.

Bicentennial dinner dance

Wheeling Township Republicans have adopted a Bicentennial theme for their annual dinner dance Oct. 18 at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel.

The U.S. Marine Corps Band from Great Lakes Naval Station will present a demonstration of American flags from 1776 to the present. The Hoffman Hallmark Chorus will present a special Bicentennial program.

Guests are encouraged to attend in 18th Century costumes. A costume parade will be judged by area legislators.

The dinner will begin at 7 p.m. with a cocktail hour. Dinner will be at 8 p.m. Tickets may be obtained by calling township GOP headquarters at 259-0750. Cot is $40 per couple.

Uncle Sam and MONY have a great idea for people with no pension plan.

Recently enacted U.S. Government legislation has made possible generous tax benefits for people with no pension plan.

Under the Pension Reform Act, you can contribute annually up to 15% of your earnings—not to exceed $1500—to a pension plan. You can deduct the entire amount from your taxable income for the year and pay no current income taxes on it whatsoever. In fact, you pay no taxes on it until retirement when, most likely, you will be earning less and in a far lower tax bracket. What's more, the money contributed draws interest and increases rapidly in your retirement fund. And you pay no taxes on the interest, either, until retirement.

Through MONY, I have long specialized in pension plans. If you are not participating in a pension plan, I can show you how to get one of your own quickly and easily—while you save on taxes. Just fill in the coupon below.

Herald opinion

Handgun law need urgent

When will our political leaders begin to take the uncompromising steps needed to end the soaring handgun murder rate in this nation?

Will it take a more competent gunwielder than either Lynette Fromme or Sara Jane Moore to prod our Congress to action? Or will it require the continuing escalation of the slaughter of ordinary American citizens before our hesitant leaders take firm steps to outlaw these easily concealed tools of death?

Statistics tell a grim story. In the United States there were 10,340 murders by handguns in 1973, one every 48 minutes. That was 53 per cent of all slayings that year and nearly twice the number as in 1967.

In 1968, after the assassinations of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy, Congress passed a law banning mail order sales of weapons and the importation of cheap guns. Yet eight years and countless ineffective state laws later, there are between 40 million and 90 million handguns in this nation. That figure is growing by 2½ million handguns every year.

More and more Americans, including police officers, oppose this proliferation. A November 1974 Gallup poll showed that 71 per cent of the persons it surveyed thought all firearms, including rifles and shotguns, should be registered. Top police officials have argued in favor of controls, for they see close up the carnage created by firearms.

To many Americans, handguns provide a psychological security against the nation's soaring crime rate. But, as any police official can tell you, too often these weapons, purchased for protection, end up as instruments of death. In turn, this fuels the fears of more and more Americans.

Opposition to handgun controls is loud and well-organized. The more thoughtful critics argue that criminals would be the last to yield their arsenals to the authorities and that handgun clubs have a legitimate role in our society. Other, less rational, critics view handgun possession as an almost sacred right which must exist without control or compromise.

Despite the inflamed rhetoric of these handgun defenders, guns DO kill people — far too many people. A federal law banning the possession of handguns, except by legitimate gun clubs and collectors, is a necessary step towards ending this slaughter.

Until such a law is passed, our entire political leadership, and every man and woman in this country, will continue to live under the shadow of the handgun. Until we curb this menace, no single citizen can avoid the resulting fear which should have no place in our free and democratic society.

We've urged President Ford to plan his public appearances more wisely, and Monday's attempted assassination only underscores the need for him to exercise such restraint.

The President should keep in touch with the American public, but he doesn't have to be unduly reckless about it. In these times it's only common sense that he spend less time in large crowds and more time in the White House.

They followed dream of being own bosses

Frank Hynes, Christine Day, Nancy Barkman, Harry Marcowitz and Wallace Daughtry have done something we'd like you to know about.

The five, profiled in a recent Herald series titled The Entrepreneurs, had the gumption to start their own businesses.

Despite problems and hard times, they have followed the dream of being their own bosses.

At a time when big business, labor and government hold economic sway over most of our lives, these entrepreneurs are striking out on their own and proving that free enterprise is still a viable proposition.

By the odds, they should have failed. Most small businesses do. Indeed, the time and money they have risked does not seem worth the effort to those of us who prefer the security of a salary.

We wish them continued success and hope that the system which allows them to thrive never forgets the importance of the little guy.

Woods: Harper vote needed

Fence post
letters to the editor

As chairman of the Citizens' Long-Range Planning Committee for Harper College (1972), I would like to share with you my views and the reasons for my unqualified support for the Harper referendum on Saturday, Sept. 27.

About 10 years ago, Harper College district voters placed their faith in the sound planning of the Harper Board and passed a $7.5 million referendum to establish a college on 200 acres of raw land. The validity of this action has been verified by the most objective test of all — time.

Now, the voters need to consider another referendum. Timing is critical, and passage is essential if Harper is to finish what it started in its first decade and move effectively into the second.

AN EXAMPLE of the good planning by the college is the opening of the Willow Park Center. The decision to open the center this year in Wheeling was two-fold: 1) to measure the immediacy of the demand for increased educational offerings and facilities, and 2) to test the need for additional facilities to serve the growing northeastern portion of the college district which composes approximately 50 per cent of the population. Although only courses not requiring laboratories or other specialized equipment could be offered in the extension center, the response of approximately 2,000 students has demonstrated to the board of trustees the need and support for an educational facility in the eastern area of the district.

The enrollment data really gives the Harper Board no choice. The Wheeling/Buffalo Grove Prospect Heights/North Arlington Heights area of the district now comprises about 35 per cent of the total Harper enrollment. An extension center is a temporary solution, at best. The residents of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect have the same needs and the same right to educational services and programs close to home as other areas of the district. In addition, an increasingly overcrowded situation on the Palatine campus will be relieved. The length of time that campus buildings take from blueprint to occupancy is at least five years.

The village boards of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling have passed resolutions supporting the referendum, thereby going on record as realizing the need for immediate action to ensure that the eastern area of the district will be able to meet the educational demands of a rapidly growing population.

As with the Palatine campus, building would proceed in phases with the Illinois Community College Board and the Illinois Board of Higher Education monitoring all factors before committing their 75 per cent of the total cost. Furthermore, Harper College has a record of careful planning which has been responsible for the adaptability and smooth operation of the college for its first 10 years.

Harper must move ahead if it is to remain an educational force of the caliber which the people of this area expect from their community college. The present Palatine campus is bursting at the seams and is still without a physical education facility and badly needed classrooms and laboratories, as well as an area for teaching dramatic arts. Areas of the college never designed for classroom use have been pressed into service.

Passage of the Saturday, Sept. 27, referendum is essential. The maintenance of Harper's high educational standards and its leadership in the community is achievable at a minimal cost.

I strongly urge my fellow citizens to vote "yes" on Saturday, Sept. 27.

Need for second campus planning cited

In reply to your Sept. 17 editorial opinion opposing Harper's referendum, three of your statements need clarification.

First, you expressed concern about duplication of administrative costs and classes, and travel between campuses by students and faculty. If another college is needed and erected in the eastern part of our district in the future, say under another name, establishing a separate district, the duplication of administrative costs would be far greater than if Harper were to build a second campus.

Certainly the basic programs will be duplicated. Even now there are certain courses that, because of demand, are offered in many of our more than 30 extension centers. But specialized programs and the required support courses (i.e. medical-dental and vocational-technical) will be offered in one or the other. Not at both campuses. It would be too costly to put the same equipment in both locations. So travel by students should not be necessary. As to the faculty, you might ask them how much they travel right now, to our many extension centers.

Secondly, I agree that "projecting future habits of people is an uncertain thing." That's why some of us on the board wanted greater substantiation of need before agreeing to commit funds to build at the second site. Thus we have $2.8 million with a stipulation that those bonds not be sold before 1977. If there is no need for building at that time, the bonds simply will not be issued.

If, on the other hand the need is proved, we don't have to come back in a couple of years asking for more money in another referendum. That raises a third point.

A REFERENDUM costs well over $10,000 just for the machinery — polling places, judges, ballots, etc. None of us wants to go through that cost (and all the work) again in just a couple of years. You encourage your readers to defeat the referendum in the hope that "Harper's board will come back in a few months with the second campus construction stripped from its requests."

I say no! We'd be misleading the public. We would not show the "integrity and foresight" you praise us for, and we'd probably be back in two years asking the voters for that $2.8 million, judging from Willow Park and St. Viator enrollments.

One final thought. The voters should keep in mind the fact that Harper cannot build any buildings without approval by the Illinois Community College Board, the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the state legislature. After all, they still put up the other three-fourths of the money.

'Early dismissal' queried

I wonder if the parents of the Maine Township High School District 207 have not somehow mistakenly altered their priorities.

I speak of the attendance record at the Maine high schools, especially as concerns a practice called early dismissal.

An ever-increasing number of students are requesting and receiving permission to leavy school before the school day has ended merely by submitting a parent permission form.

The resultant decreased enrollment for the last three class periods of the day places a heavy burden on the facilities and staff during the early part of the school day, but more importantly this practice cheats our young people.

IF WE CAN BUILD four multi-million dollar physical plants and pay a staff to man these plants, a good share (up to 1/3) of our tax dollar is being wasted because many students are not in attendance to make use of the facilities and the experience of the personnel.

Our students will be a part of the work force for almost 40 years in the future. Except for dire family financial problems or work-study programs, few if any benefits are derived by a 16 or 17-year-old student leaving school early in the day to work at a part-time job, a job to which the parents must often provide round-trip transportation.

We are told by urbanologists and sociologists that the future will offer even more leisure time to our young people than we enjoy today. Would not the student derive greater benefits preparing for that leisure time and increasing world involvement by taking more classwork in art, music, drama, or language than by adding a few more years to his skill at punching a time clock?

Likewise, extra-curricular organizations such as language clubs, international club, stamp club, ski club, model railroading club, thespians, gymnastics club, bowling club, simulation club, glee club and chess club are but a few of the groups that will be equally profitable to him once the student is a part of the labor force. These groups teach responsibility and social values and encourage creativity and a questioning attitude. To fail to take advantage of these courses and extra-curricular offerings is to take only part of the educational experience offered to every student.

THE FACILITIES are available and the faculty and staff are on duty. Let's encourage our students to attend school for a full day to take advantage of all that is offered instead of leaving school early to harass our town's businessmen, become bored with the ennui of unplanned time or earn a paltry $1.75 an hour peddling milk shakes and hamburgers.

Leaders must face threats

by BOB LAHEY

It had been only a few hours earlier. Sen. Charles H. Percy, sipping coffee, mused about the "kooks and nuts" who present a threat to the lives of all prominent public officials.

"It's a fact of life you live with," said Percy, echoing the words of every president in memory.

Then, there it was again, on the 6 o'clock news: the President cringing away from the sound of gunfire, bodyguards manhandling him into his armored limousine, police and Secret Service agents diving into the crowd to wrestle with a wound-be assassin.

For the second time in 17 days, one of the kooks and nuts had surfaced.

WHETHER THEY ever confront them, most senators, governors and other high-ranking officials are aware that the kooks are out there.

Matter of factly, Percy told of two incidents when he was warned of threats on his life. Once he joined former Gov. Richard Ogilvie at a vacation campground in a national forest in the State of Washington.

Surprised to find the recreation area "overrun" with state troopers, Percy inquired if the governor always required that much security. "They're for you," Ogilvie informed him. "They received a warning that you are to be killed."

When Percy ran against Gov. Otto Kerner in 1964, Kerner called him one day to ask that he cancel his campaign appearances. The state police, Kerner said, had information that there was a "contract" out for Percy's life and his assassination was scheduled that day.

"YOU DON'T KNOW what they think," said Percy, "they just seem to want notoriety."

That they receive the notoriety they seek is one thing that Percy said he regrets in a situation about which little can be done. "When that girl (Lynette Fromme) gets her picture on the cover of Time and Newsweek, you don't know how many kooks and nuts will want to emulate her."

There is, of course, validity in that statement. But Percy's manner indicated that he recognizes that is only a part of the problem. Not all of them get the idea from the news media.

"You just have to be terribly vigilant," Percy shrugged.

AND THEN, on the 10 o'clock news, there is the President, still appearing somewhat shaken, vowing again that he will not be deterred from meeting the people. He will continue to go where they are.

So will the kooks and nuts.

Herald opinion

Handgun law need urgent

When will our political leaders begin to take the uncompromising steps needed to end the soaring handgun murder rate in this nation?

Will it take a more competent gunwielder than either Lynette Fromme or Sara Jane Moore to prod our Congress to action? Or will it require the continuing escalation of the slaughter of ordinary American citizens before our hesitant leaders take firm steps to outlaw these easily concealed tools of death?

Statistics tell a grim story. In the United States there were 10,340 murders by handguns in 1973, one every 48 minutes. That was 53 per cent of all slayings that year and nearly twice the number as in 1967.

In 1968, after the assassinations of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy, Congress passed a law banning mail order sales of weapons and the importation of cheap guns. Yet eight years and countless ineffective state laws later, there are between 40 million and 90 million handguns in this nation. That figure is growing by 2½ million handguns every year.

More and more Americans, including police officers, oppose this proliferation. A November 1974 Gallup poll showed that 71 per cent of the persons it surveyed thought all firearms, including rifles and shotguns, should be registered. Top police officials have argued in favor of controls, for they see close up the carnage created by firearms.

To many Americans, handguns provide a psychological security against the nation's soaring crime rate. But, as any police official can tell you, too often these weapons, purchased for protection, end up as instruments of death. In turn, this fuels the fears of more and more Americans.

Opposition to handgun controls is loud and well-organized. The more thoughtful critics argue that criminals would be the last to yield their arsenals to the authorities and that handgun clubs have a legitimate role in our society. Other, less rational, critics view handgun possession as an almost sacred right which must exist without control or compromise.

Despite the inflamed rhetoric of these handgun defenders, guns DO kill people — far too many people. A federal law banning the possession of handguns, except by legitimate gun clubs and collectors, is a necessary step towards ending this slaughter.

Until such a law is passed, our entire political leadership, and every man and woman in this country, will continue to live under the shadow of the handgun. Until we curb this menace, no single citizen can avoid the resulting fear which should have no place in our free and democratic society.

We've urged President Ford to plan his public appearances more wisely, and Monday's attempted assassination only underscores the need for him to exercise such restraint.

The President should keep in touch with the American public, but he doesn't have to be unduly reckless about it. In these times it's only common sense that he spend less time in large crowds and more time in the White House.

They followed dream of being own bosses

Frank Hynes, Christine Day, Nancy Barkman, Harry Marcowitz and Wallace Daughtry have done something we'd like you to know about.

The five, profiled in a recent Herald series titled The Entrepreneurs, had the gumption to start their own businesses.

Despite problems and hard times, they have followed the dream of being their own bosses.

At a time when big business, labor and government hold economic sway over most of our lives, these entrepreneurs are striking out on their own and proving that free enterprise is still a viable proposition.

By the odds, they should have failed. Most small businesses do. Indeed, the time and money they have risked does not seem worth the effort to those of us who prefer the security of a salary.

We wish them continued success and hope that the system which allows them to thrive never forgets the importance of the little guy.

Woods: Harper vote needed

letters to the editor

As chairman of the Citizens' Long-Range Planning Committee for Harper College (1972), I would like to share with you my views and the reasons for my unqualified support for the Harper referendum on Saturday, Sept. 27.

About 10 years ago, Harper College district voters placed their faith in the sound planning of the Harper Board and passed a $7.5 million referendum to establish a college on 200 acres of raw land. The validity of this action has been verified by the most objective test of all — time.

Now, the voters need to consider another referendum. Timing is critical, and passage is essential if Harper is to finish what it started in its first decade and move effectively into the second.

AN EXAMPLE of the good planning by the college is the opening of the Willow Park Center. The decision to open the center this year in Wheeling was two-fold: 1) to measure the immediacy of the demand for increased educational offerings and facilities, and 2) to test the need for additional facilities to serve the growing northeastern portion of the college district which composes approximately 50 per cent of the population. Although only courses not requiring laboratories or other specialized equipment could be offered in the extension center, the response of approximately 2,000 students has demonstrated to the board of trustees the need and support for an educational facility in the eastern area of the district.

The enrollment data really gives the Harper Board no choice. The Wheeling/Buffalo Grove Prospect Heights/North Arlington Heights area of the district now comprises about 35 per cent of the total Harper enrollment. An extension center is a temporary solution, at best. The residents of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect have the same needs and the same right to educational services and programs close to home as other areas of the district. In addition, an increasingly overcrowded situation on the Palatine campus will be relieved. The length of time that campus buildings take from blueprint to occupancy is at least five years.

The village boards of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling have passed resolutions supporting the referendum, thereby going on record as realizing the need for immediate action to ensure that the eastern area of the district will be able to meet the educational demands of a rapidly growing population.

As with the Palatine campus, building would proceed in phases with the Illinois Community College Board and the Illinois Board of Higher Education monitoring all factors before committing their 75 per cent of the total cost. Furthermore, Harper College has a record of careful planning which has been responsible for the adaptability and smooth operation of the college for its first 10 years.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

Dateline 1775

MONTREAL, Sept. 25 — Ethan Allen's unauthorized move to take Montreal failed disastrously. He was unable to make contact with Maj. Brown and his men as planned. Confronted with a force of 40 British regulars with Canadian and Indian help, the hero of Ticonderoga surrendered and was confined in irons aboard a British warship.

Dist. 59 has 'no fringes left to cut'

(Following is a letter from the president of the School Dist. 59 Board in response to a letter in the Fencepost from Harold Harvey, a former president of the board):

Your letter addressed to The Herald indicates that you have indeed been away from Dist. 59 for a long time. I would like to set the record straight, not only for your benefit, Mr. Harvey, but for the readers who might have been misguided by some of the statements contained in your letter to the press.

First of all, you characterize our school board's request for approval of an increase in the educational fund as "irresponsible and without merit." While you were a member and president of this school board, the district decided to go to the voters twice for such approval. Were those decisions "irresponsible and without merit?" If not, what made them different? You know, Mr. Harvey, as well as I, that the fact that the voters turned down the board on both of those occasions meant that our school district simply went more heavily into debt. The present board of education doesn't consider that healthy. We do realize there was no other choice.

THE BOARD'S DECISION to appeal to the voters this time is not capricious. It is predicated on the fact that the new state equalizer formula requires us to raise our tax rate in order to receive the fair share of state aid due us. None of the surrounding school districts has this problem since they raised their tax rates sufficiently high years ago. Dist. 59's tax rate has, for many years, been the very lowest compared to 16 surrounding elementary school districts. We've always been proud and happy about that fact; now it has turned into a liability for the taxpayers here because their state taxes for education are going to other school districts, not to Dist. 59. Even our most watchful and informed critics, like the members of the press and Mr. Stecker, recognize this fact and have recommended that we take this responsible step of increasing taxes in accordance with state law. The only question remaining is why we are going beyond the 15 cent increase. The reason is that former administrations have plunged our district into very heavy debt. The interest payments on this debt enrich only the bankers — but they do nothing for the education of our children. The board is strongly committed to erasing this debt and ridding the taxpayers of the burden of large interest payments.

You talk about making cutbacks in the "fringe program." Mr. Harvey, since your children left Dist. 59 and since you've left office here, our educational program has eroded slowly in many ways. We have no "fringe programs," we have only those programs which we feel are worthwhile educational experiences for our children. We have no "luxury programs," we have no "experimental programs." We are not the "big spenders" of the area. In fact, compared to the same 16 nearby suburban elementary school districts, we are 12th from the top in educational expenditures, not near the top where we once were. We have only the minimum requirements of the state in physical education, art and music. We have good programs in reading, math, social studies and science; and we are making our greatest effort in the areas of improving these basic studies so that our Dist. 59 children will compare favorably with children from other districts when they go on to further their education. This board of education would be derelict in its duties Mr. Harvey, if we permitted further shrinkage in the basic 3R program, which is what your recommendation to the voters suggests.

When you criticize Dr. Bardwell for his decentralized form of administration, you should realize that you are contradicting yourself. Dr. Bardwell's form of administration reduces the central office expenditures which do not directly benefit the children in our schools. The centralized form of administration which we had, and which you seem to favor, created the largest administrative expenditures that this district has ever known; the largest contract obligations for this school district; the greatest encumbrance of debt in our school district's history; and an expensive bureaucracy which is not necessary to provide a quality education for our children. This is not opinion, Mr. Harvey, this is provable fact, — and you are warmly invited to look at the record for yourself.

THE EIGHT PER CENT wage increase to our teachers is not unrealistic. It is perhaps one of the lowest contract settlements of any surrounding school district. It would have been nice if teachers had agreed to no salary increase at all — but that's not realistic. Our having demanded such a condition would simply have meant that our children would not have returned to school — their teachers would have been out on strike. We didn't want that; the parents have told us they didn't want that; the teachers didn't want that. It required reasonable understanding on both sides to reach an equitable settlement. We feel that was accomplished more successfully this year than in the past three years.

What you referred to as a "low-key" referendum is the result of your unfamiliarity with Dist. 59's activities. Last summer, in a mailing to 6,726 families, we indicated that the board was contemplating holding a referendum this fall. Four newspapers, with wide coverage in this area, have been reporting all about our referendum in news articles, editorials and letters such as yours. At least 50 meetings are being held in 23 different locations, at which facts concerning the referendum are being shared. The School Community Council has opened up the township hall, Sept. 17, and issued invitations to the entire taxpaying body, including representatives of the industrial park, to hear the facts, the pros and cons concerning the referendum and to raise every possible question on anybody's mind. Our Dist. 59 Autophone gave a 48-hour continuins announcement of the meeting.

The next issue of The Fifty-Niner, our district's newsletter to approximately 6,720 families, will be almost entirely devoted to the facts concerning the referendum in accordance with our obligation to informthe public. Twenty-one newsletters to parents, sent by 21 principals, will mention some underlying facts of the referendum and call attention to voting times and places. Mr. Harvey, this could hardly be characterized as low-key! On the other hand, if you legitimately question why we haven't done more to inform all the taxpayers, the answer is threefold: one of the previously made budget cuts (in your term in office) eliminated the distribution of school news to the whole taxpaying body of Dist. 59 and provided for it to be sent to parents only. Secondly, we are not, as you know, legally permitted to spend school funds to "merchandise" our story; therefore we are not expending any additional monies for printing, mailing, slide presentations or any other "selling" accessories. And thirdly, we feel the above-described "campaign" is adequate, and entirely within the strict limits of the law.

It's good to be back in touch with you again, Mr. Harvey. Even though you're not a Dist. 59 parent, we hope you'll join us, as a taxpayer and a businessman in Dist. 59, in helping to provide a good education for all the children in Dist. 59, which you said is a continuing need.

'Alternatives more costly'

During the past several weeks I have studied the financial projections of School Dist. 59 and discussed the options available with board members, administration and two outspoken critics, Mr. Stecker and Mr. Harvey.

After considering all factors including declining student enrollment, a stable tax base and continued inflation, I urge you to vote "yes" on Saturday, Sept. 27, for the following reasons.

- Over the past seven years the educational program has been reduced to minimum state standards. Dist. 59 is near the lowest in annual expense per pupil in comparison to nearby districts.
- The Dist. 59 tax rate is the lowest compared to 15 nearby elementary school districts.
- To maintain the present minimum educational standards, receive our entire share of state aid and begin to reduce our inefficient debt, a "yes" vote is necessary.

THE SCHOOL district has several other options available for raising the necessary funds (teacher orders or tax anticipation warrants), but they are all more expensive and will result in a greater tax increase. The district is asking for a 25 cent tax rate increase. If the referendum is not approved, we will have to borrow additional funds, pay the interest equal to an extra 2.5 cents and giv up a portion of our state and equivalent to 3.2 cents. Therefore a no vote will effectively raise our taxes 30.7 cents instead of the more efficient 25 cents.

Let me emphasize that last point again because it is unique in this situation — the citizens that vote "no" trying to keep our tax rate the lowest will actually be voting for a greater tax increase. Please call me if you desire a more complete explanation.

Dist. 59 has 'no fringes left to cut'

(Following is a letter from the president of the School Dist. 59 Board in response to a letter in the Fencepost from Harold Harvey, a former president of the board):

Your letter addressed to The Herald indicates that you have indeed been away from Dist. 59 for a long time. I would like to set the record straight, not only for your benefit, Mr. Harvey, but for the readers who might have been misguided by some of the statements contained in your letter to the press.

First of all, you characterize our school board's request for approval of an increase in the educational fund as "irresponsible and without merit." While you were a member and president of this school board, the district decided to go to the voters twice for such approval. Were those decisions "irresponsible and without merit?" If not, what made them different? You know, Mr. Harvey, as well as I, that the fact that the voters turned down the board on both of those occasions meant that our school district simply went more heavily into debt. The present board of education doesn't consider that healthy. We do realize there was no other choice.

THE BOARD'S DECISION to appeal to the voters this time is not capricious. It is predicated on the fact that the new state equalizer formula requires us to raise our tax rate in order to receive the fair share of state aid due us. None of the surrounding school districts has this problem since they raised their tax rates sufficiently high years ago. Dist. 59's tax rate has, for many years, been the very lowest compared to 16 surrounding elementary school districts. We've always been proud and happy about that fact; now it has turned into a liability for the taxpayers here because their state taxes for education are going to other school districts, not to Dist. 59. Even our most watchful and informed critics, like the members of the press and Mr. Stecker, recognize this fact and have recommended that we take this responsible step of increasing taxes in accordance with state law. The only question remaining is why we are going beyond the 15 cent increase. The reason is that former administrations have plunged our district into very heavy debt. The interest payments on this debt enrich only the bankers — but they do nothing for the education of our children. The board is strongly committed to erasing this debt and ridding the taxpayers of the burden of large interest payments.

You talk about making cutbacks in the "fringe program." Mr. Harvey, since your children left Dist. 59 and since you've left office here, our educational program has eroded slowly in many ways. We have no "fringe programs," we have only those programs which we feel are worthwhile educational experiences for our children. We have no "luxury programs," we have no "experimental programs." We are not the "big spenders" of the area. In fact, compared to the same 16 nearby suburban elementary school districts, we are 12th from the top in educational expenditures, not near the top where we once were. We have only the minimum requirements of the state in physical education, art and music. We have good programs in reading, math, social studies and science; and we are making our greatest effort in the areas of improving these basic studies so that our Dist. 59 children will compare favorably with children from other districts when they go on to further their education. This board of education would be derelict in its duties Mr. Harvey, if we permitted further shrinkage in the basic 3R program, which is what your recommendation to the voters suggests.

When you criticize Dr. Bardwell for his decentralized form of administration, you should realize that you are contradicting yourself. Dr. Bardwell's form of administration reduces the central office expenditures which do not directly benefit the children in our schools. The centralized form of administration which we had, and which you seem to favor, created the largest administrative expenditures that this district has ever known; the largest contract obligations for this school district; the greatest encumbrance of debt in our school district's history; and an expensive bureaucracy which is not necessary to provide a quality education for our children. This is not opinion, Mr. Harvey, this is provable fact, — and you are warmly invited to look at the record for yourself.

THE EIGHT PER CENT wage increase to our teachers is not unrealistic. It is perhaps one of the lowest contract settlements of any surrounding school district. It would have been nice if teachers had agreed to no salary increase at all — but that's not realistic. Our having demanded such a condition would simply have meant that our children would not have returned to school — their teachers would have been out on strike. We didn't want that; the parents have told us they didn't want that; the teachers didn't want that. It required reasonable understanding on both sides to reach an equitable settlement. We feel that was accomplished more successfully this year than in the past three years.

What you referred to as a "low-key" referendum is the result of your unfamiliarity with Dist. 59's activities. Last summer, in a mailing to 6,726 families, we indicated that the board was contemplating holding a referendum this fall. Four newspapers, with wide coverage in this area, have been reporting all about our referendum in news articles, editorials and letters such as yours. At least 50 meetings are being held in 23 different locations, at which facts concerning the referendum are being shared. The School Community Council has opened up the township hall, Sept. 17, and issued invitations to the entire taxpaying body, including representatives of the industrial park, to hear the facts, the pros and cons concerning the referendum and to raise every possible question on anybody's mind. Our Dist. 59 Autophone gave a 48-hour continuins announcement of the meeting.

The next issue of The Fifty-Niner, our district's newsletter to approximately 6,720 families, will be almost entirely devoted to the facts concerning the referendum in accordance with our obligation to informthe public. Twenty-one newsletters to parents, sent by 21 principals, will mention some underlying facts of the referendum and call attention to voting times and places. Mr. Harvey, this could hardly be characterized as low-key! On the other hand, if you legitimately question why we haven't done more to inform all the taxpayers, the answer is threefold: one of the previously made budget cuts (in your term in office) eliminated the distribution of school news to the whole taxpaying body of Dist. 59 and provided for it to be sent to parents only. Secondly, we are not, as you know, legally permitted to spend school funds to "merchandise" our story; therefore we are not expending any additional monies for printing, mailing, slide presentations or any other "selling" accessories. And thirdly, we feel the above-described "campaign" is adequate, and entirely within the strict limits of the law.

It's good to be back in touch with you again, Mr. Harvey. Even though you're not a Dist. 59 parent, we hope you'll join us, as a taxpayer and a businessman in Dist. 59, in helping to provide a good education for all the children in Dist. 59, which you said is a continuing need.

'Alternatives more costly'

During the past several weeks I have studied the financial projections of School Dist. 59 and discussed the options available with board members, administration and two outspoken critics, Mr. Stecker and Mr. Harvey.

After considering all factors including declining student enrollment, a stable tax base and continued inflation, I urge you to vote "yes" on Saturday, Sept. 27, for the following reasons.

- Over the past seven years the educational program has been reduced to minimum state standards. Dist. 59 is near the lowest in annual expense per pupil in comparison to nearby districts.
- The Dist. 59 tax rate is the lowest compared to 15 nearby elementary school districts.
- To maintain the present minimum educational standards, receive our entire share of state aid and begin to reduce our inefficient debt, a "yes" vote is necessary.

THE SCHOOL district has several other options available for raising the necessary funds (teacher orders or tax anticipation warrants), but they are all more expensive and will result in a greater tax increase. The district is asking for a 25 cent tax rate increase. If the referendum is not approved, we will have to borrow additional funds, pay the interest equal to an extra 2.5 cents and giv up a portion of our state and equivalent to 3.2 cents. Therefore a no vote will effectively raise our taxes 30.7 cents instead of the more efficient 25 cents.

Let me emphasize that last point again because it is unique in this situation — the citizens that vote "no" trying to keep our tax rate the lowest will actually be voting for a greater tax increase. Please call me if you desire a more complete explanation.

Relax

Mind control . . . and yoga tennis

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Before you read this I want you to do a little exercise. Take 10 very deep breaths and count each one as you exhale, concentrating on your breathing and trying to get a feel for what your body is doing.

Then, on the last breath, exhale in short bursts like a locomotive. Repeat this breathing three times, finally holding the last breath for several seconds before exhaling slowly.

You have just performed the yoga exercise called the Breath of Fire and if you were playing tennis chances are the ball would begin to look bigger and move more slowly. Your concentration would be at a peak and you could lock all your senses onto that green ball and watch its seams spin right up to the moment you smash it back off your racket.

Rick Champion is concerned with tennis and he feels the best tennis is played by those people who don't let their minds interfere in their game.

Champion, the author of "Yoga Tennis" and a walking advertisement for the relaxing effects yoga exercises can have on your tennis game as well as your entire life, says, "The average tennis player lets his mind get in the way of hitting a shot. He thinks too much about what he should be doing and doesn't let the shot flow.

"That forehand has already been hit in a sense and all it takes for him to squeeze off a perfect shot is to let that perfect forehand flow out from his body without trying to conceptualize every part of it."

The Breath of Fire is just one of the breathing exercises Champion demonstrated at a clinic held over the weekend at the Right Tennis Club in Schaumburg. If you tried it, even if you're not a tennis player, you would have felt more relaxed, at peace with yourself.

"That is what you have to achieve to play consistently good tennis or to perform any other human movement with ease and grace," Champion said. "Find the point of relaxation and let every movement radiate out from that point.

"Become an observer of your own body and let the body do it for you.

"Become aware of the rhythm of your breathing. Play the game to that rhythm, let your body move in its most natural manner.

"It will mean the difference between looking like Bjorn Borg or the Tin Man."

Champion is a firm believer in the power of the human physique. With his wife Maxine and small son he flows across the country in a camper from their base in Arizona, revealing to people a potential of the human body they never felt possible.

Champion addressed a woman of slight build to hold her arm out in front of her and to watch for how much strength it took to keep him from bending it at the elbow. She grimaced and strained but Champion had no trouble.

"Now remember how much strength you had to apply to hold it even that long," Champion said, "but this time pick a point out on the wall beyone your hand and concentrate on it. Don't pay any attention to me or your arm."

Champion was unable to bend the woman's arm. After a moment he was the one straining and grimacing.

"What she was doing is a perfect example of what yoga tennis tries to accomplish," he said. "She had transferred her thinking process out of her body to a point away from her. She didn't need nearly as much strength to keep me from bending her arm. A relaxed muscle is much stronger than a tense one.

"The concept follows that if you can transfer your anxiety about a particular shot away from you into a concentration on the ball, the shot will follow smoothly on its own with a minimum of effort."

Champion instructs his students to look at a tennis ball and tell him what they see. It is round and green. On some is written Wilson B. It has seams. The seams run forever.

"Yoga is a Hindu word for 'union,' " Champion explains. "It is a union, a yolking of sorts, with the infinite. A harmony of body and mind.

"The tennis ball is a very good reminder of this unnion with the infinite. If you hold the ball a certain way you can see the Tao symbol. It looks like two drops of water fused around each other and is a symbol of the universe in the Orient. Yin-yang. Good and bad. Everything."

Understanding our universe, and most importantly finding the center of our personal universe, is Champion's ultimate goal. Without knowing the center of his universe, Champion would be helpless trying to teach anyone how to play yoga tennis or find their center.

"Everyone has a center or one-point where everything is in perfect balance," Champion explains. "When you cough, try to feel the very first place the cough starts from. For most people it is just below their navel.

"That is their one-point. Their center of physical balance."

Champion and Tolly Riaz, a former member of the Pakistani Davis Cup team and the instructor who will continue the yoga tennis clinics each Sunday, conduct an experiment in balance.

"By standing with my feet slightly spread," Champion said, "and with all my concentration centered on my one-point, Tolly can't push me over.

"Balance is one of the keys to movement. If you can play one-pointed, with all the movements radiating out from the center, your game, your mind and your body will be at peace.

"And that peace will show in the way you play."

Top harrier teams face tests today

Rolling Meadows will try to knock off undefeated Hoffman Estates, and Forest View will attempt to whip unbeaten Prospect when Mid-Suburban League cross country dual meets resume this afternoon.

In other meets, Fremd (2-0) visits Hersey (1-1), Palatine (2-0) runs at Arlington (1-1), Wheeling (0-2) hosts Buffalo Grove (0-2), and Elk Grove (0-3) visits Conant (0-2).

The Rolling Meadows Mustangs (2-1) will welcome Hoffman to their course with the intention of bumping the Hawks from the unbeaten ranks. The Hawks are 2-0 after polishing off Forest View in their South division confrontation last week.

Prospect (3-0) has been coming on strong of late and will journey to Forest View (1-1) to try to keep pace with Hoffman.

Palatine and Fremd, the North division powerhouses, will be tuning up for next week's key showdown battle. Fremd will run against an Arlington team that won its first dual meet last week, and Palatine faces a young and promising Hersey crew.

The St. Viator harriers will also be in action today, entertaining Notre Dame in an East Suburban Catholic League encounter.

Fan frustration builds; booing and blitzing day

Paul Logan

Associate Sports Editor

"Here's the receiver we need right here," shouted a fan near the Bears' dressing room Sunday.

"Hey Johnny Morris, where's your uniform? Come on back, Johnny."

Morris, who was heading for a postgame interview, represented a living memory of Chicago's glory years in pro football.

Johnny was noted for catching anything he could touch. Not so for 1975's present crop of receivers in the league opener with Baltimore. Five times they dropped passes from Bobby Douglass.

All five should have been caught. Three of them came at critical times early in the game on third down. If Bear receivers had held on, the outcome might have been a lot closer.

This was one game where the blame of defeat had to be spread around. Maybe just 10 per cent of the fault for losing 35-7 rested with Douglass.

Only once did the Bears have very good field position at a start of a series (at the Bear 49). Only a few times did Douglass have enough time to throw. One of his interceptions was due to his offensive line's poor protection.

This is not meant to be a special rah-rah column in defense of Douglass. I've wanted to see the Bears change Bobby to some other position (full-back, tight end, outside linebacker or strong safety) for several years.

A week before he called his first signal in the 1975 season, the boos were ringing in his ears. Now head coach Jack Pardee was critical of the boo birds after the Houston game, saying they were partly to blame for hurting the team's morale. But after Sunday's humiliating loss, he didn't take such a hard hat stand:

"I understand the fans' frustration. But it's no more so than the team's."

When a team plays so poorly in every department, anybody paying $8 for a ticket (plus $2 to park, $ .50 for a program and other inflated refreshment prices) is justified in showing dissatisfaction. However, the fans might have been expecting too much. Namely, victory.

If you start eight rookies, you can't expect anything but a lot of mistakes. And with a roster that has 14 first-year men out of 43 with an average over-all experience of just 2.84 years (the youngest team in the National Football League), you have to expect defeats in the early going.

Still, the Bears have enough talent right now to at least make a game of it with the likes of a Baltimore or a Philadelphia. But the whole team seemed to collapse at once.

And when that happens, Bobby's broad shoulders must carry the brunt of the abuse. For so many years he's been the boo birds' main man. Last Sunday they didn't wait until he had failed in his first offensive play. Their negative roar greeted his introduction.

"I expected that," said Douglass as he slowly dressed Sunday. "They've been doing it off and on for the last seven years.

"I don't like it, but it's not going to be affecting me at this point."

The key words are "at this point." He says it's affecting his family. He's only human. And just like the rest of us, Douglass can tolerate just so much abuse before he cracks. He admitted as much.

I have to feel sorry for Douglass because his talent — being a hard-nosed football player — wasn't developed properly. When it was obvious that he only had the super quarterback size and not the talent, the Bear think tank was too stubborn to admit it.

A few more games like Sunday's and — whether it's Douglass' fault or not — his career might be over. Truly a wasted career.

Hank Stram, the highly respected former coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, made a very good point during a recent halftime interview at the Bear-Dolphin game. He said he'd love to coach a team that would be going against Douglass as a drop back, pocket passer.

Stram said Bobby should have some roll-out plays, giving him the run or pass option. Such plays would give the defense nightmares not knowing what this gifted scrambler would do next.

If the Bears are convinced that Bobby's the best quarterback they've got and choose to go with him most of the season, Pardee should follow the advice of Stram.

Ideally, such a young team should have a young quarterback to build around. If Douglass, Gary Huff or Bob Avellini aren't the answer, this should be the final season to find out.

Maybe the Bears' only hope is to suffer through one more so-so or losing season and then draft a quality quarterback.

Until this issue is decided, the booing will probably continue. But there's one thing Bear rookies should remember — the fans are booing nearly a decade of frustration.

It's no offense against you youngsters. But a couple more games like last Sunday's and fans will forget the Dooley and Gibron regimes.

"Hey Johnny Morris, where's your uniform? Come on back, Johnny."

Morris, who was heading for a postgame interview, represented a living memory of Chicago's glory years in pro football.

Johnny was noted for catching anything he could touch. Not so for 1975's present crop of receivers in the league opener with Baltimore. Five times they dropped passes from Bobby Douglass.

All five should have been caught. Three of them came at critical times early in the game on third down. If Bear receivers had held on, the outcome might have been a lot closer.

This was one game where the blame of defeat had to be spread around. Maybe just 10 per cent of the fault for losing 35-7 rested with Douglass.

Only once did the Bears have very good field position at a start of a series (at the Bear 49). Only a few times did Douglass have enough time to throw. One of his interceptions was due to his offensive line's poor protection.

This is not meant to be a special rah-rah column in defense of Douglass. I've wanted to see the Bears change Bobby to some other position (full-back, tight end, outside linebacker or strong safety) for several years.

A week before he called his first signal in the 1975 season, the boos were ringing in his ears. Now head coach Jack Pardee was critical of the boo birds after the Houston game, saying they were partly to blame for hurting the team's morale. But after Sunday's humiliating loss, he didn't take such a hard hat stand:

"I understand the fans' frustration. But it's no more so than the team's."

When a team plays so poorly in every department, anybody paying $8 for a ticket (plus $2 to park, $ .50 for a program and other inflated refreshment prices) is justified in showing dissatisfaction. However, the fans might have been expecting too much. Namely, victory.

If you start eight rookies, you can't expect anything but a lot of mistakes. And with a roster that has 14 first-year men out of 43 with an average over-all experience of just 2.84 years (the youngest team in the National Football League), you have to expect defeats in the early going.

Still, the Bears have enough talent right now to at least make a game of it with the likes of a Baltimore or a Philadelphia. But the whole team seemed to collapse at once.

And when that happens, Bobby's broad shoulders must carry the brunt of the abuse. For so many years he's been the boo birds' main man. Last Sunday they didn't wait until he had failed in his first offensive play. Their negative roar greeted his introduction.

"I expected that," said Douglass as he slowly dressed Sunday. "They've been doing it off and on for the last seven years.

"I don't like it, but it's not going to be affecting me at this point."

The key words are "at this point." He says it's affecting his family. He's only human. And just like the rest of us, Douglass can tolerate just so much abuse before he cracks. He admitted as much.

I have to feel sorry for Douglass because his talent — being a hard-nosed football player — wasn't developed properly. When it was obvious that he only had the super quarterback size and not the talent, the Bear think tank was too stubborn to admit it.

A few more games like Sunday's and — whether it's Douglass' fault or not — his career might be over. Truly a wasted career.

Hank Stram, the highly respected former coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, made a very good point during a recent halftime interview at the Bear-Dolphin game. He said he'd love to coach a team that would be going against Douglass as a drop back, pocket passer.

Stram said Bobby should have some roll-out plays, giving him the run or pass option. Such plays would give the defense nightmares not knowing what this gifted scrambler would do next.

If the Bears are convinced that Bobby's the best quarterback they've got and choose to go with him most of the season, Pardee should follow the advice of Stram.

Ideally, such a young team should have a young quarterback to build around. If Douglass, Gary Huff or Bob Avellini aren't the answer, this should be the final season to find out.

Maybe the Bears' only hope is to suffer through one more so-so or losing season and then draft a quality quarterback.

Until this issue is decided, the booing will probably continue. But there's one thing Bear rookies should remember — the fans are booing nearly a decade of frustration.

It's no offense against you youngsters. But a couple more games like last Sunday's and fans will forget the Dooley and Gibron regimes.

Top harrier teams face tests today

Rolling Meadows will try to knock off undefeated Hoffman Estates, and Forest View will attempt to whip unbeaten Prospect when Mid-Suburban League cross country dual meets resume this afternoon.

In other meets, Fremd (2-0) visits Hersey (1-1), Palatine (2-0) runs at Arlington (1-1), Wheeling (0-2) hosts Buffalo Grove (0-2), and Elk Grove (0-3) visits Conant (0-2).

The Rolling Meadows Mustangs (2-1) will welcome Hoffman to their course with the intention of bumping the Hawks from the unbeaten ranks. The Hawks are 2-0 after polishing off Forest View in their South division confrontation last week.

Prospect (3-0) has been coming on strong of late and will journey to Forest View (1-1) to try to keep pace with Hoffman.

Palatine and Fremd, the North division powerhouses, will be tuning up for next week's key showdown battle. Fremd will run against an Arlington team that won its first dual meet last week, and Palatine faces a young and promising Hersey crew.

The St. Viator harriers will also be in action today, entertaining Notre Dame in an East Suburban Catholic League encounter.

Mount Prospect

SENIOR DIVISION

LIONS 6, CARDINALS 0

The Lions made several key errors but held on to win as Steve Anderskow carried in on a 10 yd. sweep. Providing the blocks were Mike Johnson, Pat Bernard, Jeff Lanas and Jeff Koepke. Scott Wierzbinski and Dino Dipaolo were noted for fine blocks while Scott Holden did some nifty ball handling for Steve Sheridan and Bob Roemisch. Defensive standouts were Mike Kellerman, Ed Sadogierski and Jeff Bolger. Defensively the Cardinal quintet of Frank Apuzzo, Brett Blaney, Gary Divito, Mark Fassnacht and Mike Fleischer were outstanding. A superb game at offensive tackle was turned in by Jim Graham.

COLTS 25, BEARS 6

The Colts looked impressive as they scored in every quarter. Mike Kolls waltzed in from the 15 with a lateral from Tom Conlin. Kolls notched his second score behind the blocking of Kevin Jachec and John Lesniak. The Colts took to the air as John Frugo pumped a 25 yarder to Jeff Zender for the TD. Mike Schmidt joined the scoring parade with a 45 yd. sweep. Extra point was scored by Kolls. Drew Rolley was outstanding as the Bear punter. Bob Cherwin was excellent on defense with Scott Wertz who picked up a loose fumble and ran 60 yds. for the touchdown.

GIANTS 7, PACKERS 0

Joe Natola's 75 yd. TD run sparked the Giants to a hard fought victory. Penalties nullified two other scores. Phil Toepper and Tom Wojtkiewicz made good yardage. Glen Nelson, Steve Jacks, Gene Thiel, Ed Kostur, Kevin Littleton and Tim Quirk opened some big holes. Defensive standouts included Tom Holland, Howie Schiff, Jeff Miller and Jim Holan. Packer quarterback Mike Matella hit Bryan Albers with several long bombs with excellent blocking from Emillo Tenuta and Bill Flynn. As the game progressed the Pack got stronger with hard hitting Dan O'Connor and Joe Iaccino leading the aroused defense.

JUNIOR DIVISION

EAGLES 9, COWBOYS 0

The Eagles captured their third victory with a defense of Mark Zielinski, Mike Donner, Rich Saccone and Jeff Ralph that has not allowed its opponents to score. Pat Ruane returned an intercepted pass 45 yds. to the one yard line where they were unable to score. Defensive star Bob McKenney tackled a Cowboy in the end zone for a safety. With 4th quarter pinpoint passing by Bob Holloway and fine running behind John Maher, Corey Douglas and Bred Kay the Eagles marched to paydirt as the speed of back Mark Szymanski brought home the TD. The Cowboy offense was limited to the excellent running of Tom Bray. The defense played an outstanding game with most of tackles by John Sersen, fumble recoveries by Larry Fumagalli and Frank Gargano.

REDSKINS 7, BROWNS 0

The Skins fooled the Browns with a reverse as Bill Retzke scored the winning TD. Offensive blocking was provided by Steve Balmes, Tom Grenderson and Tom Buyers. The extra point was added by Tom Coughlan. The second half was a defensive battle led by the ballhawking of Mike Jachec, Bill Anderson, Jim Gibbons, Chris Dombeck and Steve Balmes. The Browns' offense which ran up good yardage was led by Dale Reilly, Scott Wexler and Chuck Gering.

STEELERS 14, JETS 13

After having two TD's called back the determined Steelers mounted a 4th quarter scoring drive to sneak by a tough Jet team and remain undefeated. Bob Nielsen's two TD's, running behind the blocking of John Payne, Randy Mc Leod and John Hurd, put the Steelers on the board. John Hurd scored the important extra point. The Jets did not submit a game report.

RAIDERS 19, FALCONS 0

While a fine Raider defensive kept the Falcons from getting on the board; Mike Stathakis scored once on a short run and another on an intercepted pass. Ernie Kuehl finished the tally with a QB sneak. Mark Lee, Tim Kelly, Jerry Van Rooyan and Joey Kuehl were the offensive power behind the Raider attack. The fighting Falcons couldn't penetrate the Raider defense and absorbed its first loss despite a 70-yd. kickoff return by Levin Latham. The defensive line of Matt Lilleton, Marcel Staniak, Rich Gerrard and Tony Latham kept the Raiders busy. Brett Gorgol picked off a few stray enemy aerials.

CHIEFS 33, VIKINGS 0

The offensive Chief machine led by the blocking of John McDermott, Dave Belda, Glenn Garlish and Brendan Burke enabled the Chiefs to score in every quarter. Kevin Maloney, Bill Nicholson and Randy Rachman also crossed the goal line for TD's. Gus Vivorito and Scott Manning added extra points. On defense Darren Bowman, Bob Anderson and Jeff Sauer were leading tacklers. Bill Nicholson added to the highlights with an intercepted pass and fumble recovery. The Vikings did not submit a game report.

49'ERS 6, RAMS 6

Interceptions by 49'ers Roger Kent, Pete Kriescher and Mark Anderson and a fumble recovery by Scott Francis kept the 49'ers close until Mark Anderson could plunge over to tie the game. Good running by Brian Krzyak, Chris Dell and John Laansma behind the blocking of Mike Scully, Jamie McGough, Brian Korf, Chris Braun and Steve Gregorzyk made the scoring drive possible. The Rams showed much improvement with the excellent running and touchdown by Grant Fuchs. Outstanding team support on defense by Norman Colbert and Tom Ray helped the Rams stay in the game. Offensive stars were Jim Limperis, Brian Krause and Dom Boragina.

BANTAM DIVISION

WOLVERINES 12, SPARTANS 7

The Wolves came from behind to win its 3rd game and move into sole possession of 1st place. Outstanding defense by linebackers Mike Sersen, Jay Koziol, Tim Caffaro and Jim Foloky kept the Wolves in good field position. The offense came alive with TD's by Jay Kozoil and Jim Wilcox and the super running of Mike Olandese with superb upfront blocking by Dan Georgen. The Spartans scored early on a 40-yd. pass interception by Mark Predovich. The defense was led by a blocked punt by Darren Hansen.

BADGERS 0, TIGERS 0

A vaunted Tiger defense led by Sam Mangiamele, Rich Teufel, Bob Russel, Scott Skipple and Kurt Paisley stunned the potent Badger offense with superb defensive plays. The upset-minded Tiger offense almost broke it open in the 4th quarter but couldn't score. A strong Badger defense led by Tom McEneely and Doug Barker kept the team in contention throughout the contest. The running of Kevin McTigue and the pass receiving of Jeff Walker tried to get the offense rolling; but the Tiger defense forced the Badgers to settle for a tie.

ILLINI 7, HOOSIERS 6

The Illini scored early on an 18-yd. run by QB Randy Strandquist. Tim Boudart carried in the extra point for the winning score. The Illini squirt offense of Matt Gilloglio, Matt Jenks, Joe Joyce, Bernie Mullen, Tim D'Uever, John Caufield, Doug Shoenbeck and Matt Polan blocked well. Defense standouts were Ken Gavre, Paul Johnson and Pete Endre. Dan Zender broke off left tackle for a 35-yd. TD run to bring the Hoosiers back in the game in the 4th quarter, but Rich Behnke's plunge for the PAT failed by inches. Zender, Mike Kelliher and Louis Hass on defense were instrumental in containing the Illini.

WILDCATS 6, BRUINS 6

The Cats came from behind on a strong sustained drive to punch in the tying touchdown by QB John Jennings. Great running by Brian Mitalo, Mark Variano and Dan Mollsen, with super blocking by Jules Charpentier kept the offense rolling. Special praise to Dan Carrico, Andy Axelrad and Tom Fergin for heads up-defense. A fine TD run by Gary Gelfand gave the Bruins a temporary lead. Strong running was also provided by Dave Zipparro and Kelly Johnston. Defense standouts were Bob Olson, John Roemisch, Joe Grolli and Mike Davidson.

BUCKEYES 9, GOPHERS 7

Defensive end Blair Anderson scored a safety and then Mike Baron ran back the kickoff as the Buckeyes notched the 1st win. Hard line blocking by Pete Gutzmer, Mike Fletcher, Scott Brice, Tom Cedarholm, Ed Woydyla and John Vogt allowed Mike O'Brien, Matt Bozik and Anderson to run for daylight. Gopher back Tim Kellner opened the scoring on a 30-yd. gallop behind the blocking of Bill Bertucci, Joe Johnson and Joe Bertucci. The extra point was added by Gary Krawchuk. The defense was led by Jim O'Callaghan's interception and fumble recoveries by Eric Boggs, Scott Sauer and Pat Girolomo.

BOILERMAKERS 6, HAWKEYES 6

Mark Mooney moved the ball well for the Boilermakers as he ran off tackle to socre the touchdown. The strong Boiler offense was led by Jim Arredia, Dan Golec and Tom Best. Defensive standouts were Joe Burdi with an interception and Brian Gorney, a fumble recovery. Other defensive stars were Roger Nelson, Tom Cannan, Tom Hilb and Gino Giannola. The Hawkeyes settled for their second tie when

Mount Prospect

LIONS 6, CARDINALS 0

The Lions made several key errors but held on to win as Steve Anderskow carried in on a 10 yd. sweep. Providing the blocks were Mike Johnson, Pat Bernard, Jeff Lanas and Jeff Koepke. Scott Wierzbinski and Dino Dipaolo were noted for fine blocks while Scott Holden did some nifty ball handling for Steve Sheridan and Bob Roemisch. Defensive standouts were Mike Kellerman, Ed Sadogierski and Jeff Bolger. Defensively the Cardinal quintet of Frank Apuzzo, Brett Blaney, Gary Divito, Mark Fassnacht and Mike Fleischer were outstanding. A superb game at offensive tackle was turned in by Jim Graham.

COLTS 25, BEARS 6

The Colts looked impressive as they scored in every quarter. Mike Kolls waltzed in from the 15 with a lateral from Tom Conlin. Kolls notched his second score behind the blocking of Kevin Jachec and John Lesniak. The Colts took to the air as John Frugo pumped a 25 yarder to Jeff Zender for the TD. Mike Schmidt joined the scoring parade with a 45 yd. sweep. Extra point was scored by Kolls. Drew Rolley was outstanding as the Bear punter. Bob Cherwin was excellent on defense with Scott Wertz who picked up a loose fumble and ran 60 yds. for the touchdown.

GIANTS 7, PACKERS 0

Joe Natola's 75 yd. TD run sparked the Giants to a hard fought victory. Penalties nullified two other scores. Phil Toepper and Tom Wojtkiewicz made good yardage. Glen Nelson, Steve Jacks, Gene Thiel, Ed Kostur, Kevin Littleton and Tim Quirk opened some big holes. Defensive standouts included Tom Holland, Howie Schiff, Jeff Miller and Jim Holan. Packer quarterback Mike Matella hit Bryan Albers with several long bombs with excellent blocking from Emillo Tenuta and Bill Flynn. As the game progressed the Pack got stronger with hard hitting Dan O'Connor and Joe Iaccino leading the aroused defense.

EAGLES 9, COWBOYS 0

The Eagles captured their third victory with a defense of Mark Zielinski, Mike Donner, Rich Saccone and Jeff Ralph that has not allowed its opponents to score. Pat Ruane returned an intercepted pass 45 yds. to the one yard line where they were unable to score. Defensive star Bob McKenney tackled a Cowboy in the end zone for a safety. With 4th quarter pinpoint passing by Bob Holloway and fine running behind John Maher, Corey Douglas and Bred Kay the Eagles marched to paydirt as the speed of back Mark Szymanski brought home the TD. The Cowboy offense was limited to the excellent running of Tom Bray. The defense played an outstanding game with most of tackles by John Sersen, fumble recoveries by Larry Fumagalli and Frank Gargano.

REDSKINS 7, BROWNS 0

The Skins fooled the Browns with a reverse as Bill Retzke scored the winning TD. Offensive blocking was provided by Steve Balmes, Tom Grenderson and Tom Buyers. The extra point was added by Tom Coughlan. The second half was a defensive battle led by the ballhawking of Mike Jachec, Bill Anderson, Jim Gibbons, Chris Dombeck and Steve Balmes. The Browns' offense which ran up good yardage was led by Dale Reilly, Scott Wexler and Chuck Gering.

STEELERS 14, JETS 13

After having two TD's called back the determined Steelers mounted a 4th quarter scoring drive to sneak by a tough Jet team and remain undefeated. Bob Nielsen's two TD's, running behind the blocking of John Payne, Randy Mc Leod and John Hurd, put the Steelers on the board. John Hurd scored the important extra point. The Jets did not submit a game report.

Scoreboard

RAIDERS 19, FALCONS 0

While a fine Raider defensive kept the Falcons from getting on the board; Mike Stathakis scored once on a short run and another on an intercepted pass. Ernie Kuehl finished the tally with a QB sneak. Mark Lee, Tim Kelly, Jerry Van Rooyan and Joey Kuehl were the offensive power behind the Raider attack. The fighting Falcons couldn't penetrate the Raider defense and absorbed its first loss despite a 70-yd. kickoff return by Levin Latham. The defensive line of Matt Lilleton, Marcel Staniak, Rich Gerrard and Tony Latham kept the Raiders busy. Brett Gorgol picked off a few stray enemy aerials.

CHIEFS 33, VIKINGS 0

The offensive Chief machine led by the blocking of John McDermott, Dave Beida, Glenn Garlish and Brendan Burke enabled the Chiefs to score in every quarter. Kevin Maloney, Bill Nicholson and Randy Rachman also crossed the goal line for TD's. Gus Vivorito and Scott Manning added extra points. On defense Darren Bowman, Bob Anderson and Jeff Sauer were leading tacklers. Bill Nicholson added to the highlights with an intercepted pass and fumble recovery. The Vikings did not submit a game report.

49'ERS 6, RAMS 6

Interceptions by 49'ers Roger Kent, Pete Kriescher and Mark Anderson and a fumble recovery by Scott Francis kept the 49'ers close until Mark Anderson could plunge over to tie the game. Good running by Brian Krzyak, Chris Dell and John Laansma behind the blocking of Mike Scully, Jamie McGough, Brian Korf, Chris Braun and Steve Gregorzyk made the scoring drive possible. The Rams showed much improvement with the excellent running and touchdown by Grant Fuchs. Outstanding team support on defense by Norman Colbert and Tom Ray helped the Rams stay in the game. Offensive stars were Jim Limperis, Brian Krause and Dom Boragina.

BANTAM DIVISION

WOLVERINES 12, SPARTANS 7

The Wolves came from behind to win its 3rd game and move into sole possession of 1st place. Outstanding defense by linebackers Mike Sersen, Jay Koziol, Tim Caffaro and Jim Foloky kept the Wolves in good field position. The offense came alive with TD's by Jay Kozoil and Jim Wilcox and the super running of Mike Olandese with superb upfront blocking by Dan Georgen. The Spartans scored early on a 40-yd. pass interception by Mark Predovich. The defense was led by a blocked punt by Darren Hansen.

BADGERS 0, TIGERS 0

A vaunted Tiger defense led by Sam Mangiamele, Rich Teufel, Bob Russel, Scott Skipple and Kurt Paisley stunned the potent Badger offense with superb defensive plays. The upset-minded Tiger offense almost broke it open in the 4th quarter but couldn't score. A strong Badger defense led by Tom McEneely and Doug Barker kept the team in contention throughout the contest. The running of Kevin McTigue and the pass receiving of Jeff Walker tried to get the offense rolling; but the Tiger defense forced the Badgers to settle for a tie.

ILLINI 7, HOOSIERS 6

The Illini scored early on an 18-yd. run by QB Randy Strandquist. Tim Boudart carried in the extra point for the winning score. The Illini squirt offense of Matt Gilloglio, Matt Jenks, Joe Joyce, Bernie Mullen, Tim D'Uever, John Caufield, Doug Shoenbeck and Matt Polan blocked well. Defense standouts were Ken Gavre, Paul Johnson and Pete Endre. Dan Zender broke off left tackle for a 35-yd. TD run to bring the Hoosiers back in the game in the 4th quarter, but Rich Behnke's plunge for the PAT failed by inches. Zender, Mike Kelliher and Louis Hass on defense were instrumental in containing the Illini.

WILDCATS 6, BRUINS 6

The Cats came from behind on a strong sustained drive to punch in the tying touchdown by QB John Jennings. Great running by Brian Mitalo, Mark Variano and Dan Mollsen, with super blocking by Jules Charpentier kept the offense rolling. Special praise to Dan Carrico, Andy Axelrad and Tom Fergin for heads up-defense. A fine TD run by Gary Gelfand gave the Bruins a temporary lead. Strong running was also provided by Dave Zipparro and Kelly Johnston. Defense standouts were Bob Olson, John Roemisch, Joe Grolli and Mike Davidson.

BUCKEYES 9, GOPHERS 7

Defensive end Blair Anderson scored a safety and then Mike Baron ran back the kickoff as the Buckeyes notched the 1st win. Hard line blocking by Pete Gutzmer, Mike Fletcher, Scott Brice, Tom Cedarholm, Ed Woydyla and John Vogt allowed Mike O'Brien, Matt Bozik and Anderson to run for daylight. Gopher back Tim Kellner opened the scoring on a 30-yd. gallop behind the blocking of Bill Bertucci, Joe Johnson and Joe Bertucci. The extra point was added by Gary Krawchuk. The defense was led by Jim O'Callaghan's interception and fumble recoveries by Eric Boggs, Scott Sauer and Pat Girolomo.

BOILERMAKERS 6, HAWKEYES 6

Mark Mooney moved the ball well for the Boilermakers as he ran off tackle to socre the touchdown. The strong Boiler offense was led by Jim Arredia, Dan Golec and Tom Best. Defensive standouts were Joe Burdi with an interception and Brian Gorney, a fumble recovery. Other defensive stars were Roger Nelson, Tom Cannan, Tom Hilb and Gino Giannola. The Hawkeyes settled for their second tie when

Cubs spoil Seaver's no-hit bid; win 1-0

Tom Seaver lost his fifth serious bid for a no-hitter with two out in the ninth inning Wednesday and the Chicago Cubs went on two win a 1-0 game in the bottom of the 11th inning when relief pitcher Skip Lockwood walked Bill Madlock with the bases loaded.

Seaver, who had a perfect game until Don Kessinger led off the seventh inning with a walk, gave up his first hit when Rookie Joe Wallis looped an 0-2 pitch to right field with two out in the ninth.

It was the third time in Seaver's career that he went into the ninth inning working on a no-hitter without achieving success. He has four one-hitters to his credit.

Lockwood gave up a leadoff single to Rick Monday in the 11th and Wallis walked on a 3-2 count. After Jose Cardenal sacrificed, Andy Thornton was passed intentionally to fill the bases. Madlock, who had not played since Sept. 9 when a Bruce Kison pitch fractured his right thumb, walked on a 3-1 pitch to end the Cubs' five-game losing streak. Reliever Ken Crosby pitched the last inning and was credited with the victory.

With one out in the 10th, Seaver gave up his second hit when Manny Trillo singled to left. George Mitterwald doubled to center and Trillo, who was waved home, was easily thrown out at the plate.

Seaver threw just 54 pitches through the first six innings in retiring 18 straight batters. The closest the Cubs came to getting a hit was when Rick Reuschel hit a deep drive to left center in the third inning and Mike Vail caught up with it just in front of the wall on an over the shoulder grab.

The Mets first hit off Reuschel came with two out in the fourth when Rusty Staub singled to right. On the first pitch, Dave Kingman doubled to left, but Staub was cut down at the plate on a perfect throw from Jose Cardenal to Mitterwald. Seaver had a perfect game going against the Cubs with one out to go in the ninth at Shea Stadium on July 9, 1969, when outfielder Jimmy Qualles dropped a pop fly single into left field for the Cubs only hit of the game.

Rain dampens AL East chase

Rain was the big winner in American League baseball on the east coast Wednesday. The chief loser was Boston although they failed to even put a bat or a mit in their hands. Continuous rain forced postponement of a scheduled twi-night double header between the East Division-leading Red Sox and the hosting New York Yankees, the second consecutive day the two clubs have been washed out.

In the meantime Baltimore's slated twin bill with visiting Detroit was trimmed to one game by the same stormy weather Wednesday. In the single contest the Orioles did manage to squeeze in, they bounced the Tibers 8-1 to move within 3½ games of first place.

Although the Yankees ar idle Thursday, the Red Sox will be at home to Cleveland, eliminating the possibility of completing their series then. No determination has been made yet by league officials as to when the games will be made up, if at all, but the rematch could be set for next Monday after the regular schedule ends if they become critical. The Detroit-Baltimore series meanwhile will continue Thursday . . . if the heavens hold up the moisture.

NFL strike still undecided

The threat of a National Football League strike for this weekend was averted by a prior agreement from both sides, but the players will be busy marking ballots or designing bullets for a showdown vote expected to be counted by next Tuesday.

The NFL Players Association promised there would be no strike and the owners said there would be no lockout during this period of soul-searching.

An early indication of how the voting would go however, was generated from Orchard Park, N. Y. where the Buffalo Bills voted 42-1 Wednesday to reject the contract proposal offered by the National Football League Management Council earlier this week.

"We rejected the contract, but we have no plans to strike at all," said Bills' player representative Reggie McKenzie.

Nuggets and Nets to NBA?

The Denver Nuggets, who compiled pro basketball's best regular season record a year ago, and the New York Nets have petitioned the National Basketball Association for admittance, sources said Wednesday. The move, which was expected to be announced during a Thursday afternoon news conference in Denver, was reportedly designed to force a merger between the 10-team American Basketball Association — to which Denver and New York belong — and the older NBA.

Hawks, Kennedy-King collide

Harper travels to Gately Stadium

Harper's best offensive football in 1974 was played against the Statesmen of Kennedy-King, and the two schools will renew the feud tonight at 7:30 at Gately Stadium.

Prentis Rhodes' squad has a 2-1 record as they prepare to avenge the 45-14 loss Harper saddled them with last year. In that game, the Hawks scored in every quarter and piled up 530 yards and 23 first downs.

Harper evened their record at 1-1 with a 21-6 win over Illinois Valley Saturday. Running back Butch Allen and quarterback Dave Patterson headlined the offense in that contest. Allen ticked off 70 yards on the ground and Patterson tossed two touchdown passes before missing the second half with an injury.

The Harper defense, which snatched four passes from Kennedy-King quarterback Charles Walton last year, was tight against Illinois Valley, holding them to minus-48 yards on the ground in the second half.

Rhodes has Walton back at quarterback, heading up a squadron of backs and receivers who will be among the fastest Harper faces all year.

Alvin Overstreet, who rushed for 85 yards against the Hawks last year, is operating at fullback. He chewed out 120 yards in one half against Concordia and has 380 yards rushing this season.

Charlie Neal and Walter Kimmons will share the split end duties while the flanker time will be divided between Ray Hartsfield and George McCormack. Hartsfield burned the Harper secondary for 127 yards on six catches last year.

Prentis Rhodes' squad has a 2-1 record as they prepare to avenge the 45-14 loss Harper saddled them with last year. In that game, the Hawks scored in every quarter and piled up 530 yards and 23 first downs.

Harper evened their record at 1-1 with a 21-6 win over Illinois Valley Saturday. Running back Butch Allen and quarterback Dave Patterson headlined the offense in that contest. Allen ticked off 70 yards on the ground and Patterson tossed two touchdown passes before missing the second half with an injury.

The Harper defense, which snatched four passes from Kennedy-King quarterback Charles Walton last year, was tight against Illinois Valley, holding them to minus-48 yards on the ground in the second half.

Rhodes has Walton back at quarterback, heading up a squadron of backs and receivers who will be among the fastest Harper faces all year.

Alvin Overstreet, who rushed for 85 yards against the Hawks last year, is operating at fullback. He chewed out 120 yards in one half against Concordia and has 380 yards rushing this season.

Charlie Neal and Walter Kimmons will share the split end duties while the flanker time will be divided between Ray Hartsfield and George McCormack. Hartsfield burned the Harper secondary for 127 yards on six catches last year.

Hawk harriers drop opening conference duel

Harper's rebuilt cross country squad dropped its first N4C dual meet, 24-31, to a tough Triton team Tuesday, but Harper coach Bob Nolan liked what he saw from his running Hawks.

Despite first and second place efforts by Triton's Rick Lotter (24:47) and Greg Katsion (24:49), Harper made the score close and, according to Nolan, it could have been closer.

"The guys were jockeying for position all race," said the Hawk coach. "They had a kid who moved up all the way from their sixth man to fourth place."

Nolan got strong performances from his first three harriers, especially second-year Hawk Rick Reithal, who was third over-all in 26:08 for the five-mile course. Reithal ran a minute ahead of his pace in Harper's last meet, a dual against Lake County which was supposed to include league foe Illinois Valley, but didn't.

"For most of the guys it was an improvement over their last times," Nolan said. "We've got the kind of team that will improve as the season goes on."

Steve Erickson was fifth for Harper in 27:13, followed in sixth by Bob Borucki (27:29) and in eighth by John Messinger (28:43). Mike Hommowun was ninth (28:52) and Dennis Fagan 11th (30:16).

Harper's next meet is Tuesday at Palatine Hills Golf Course against DuPage.

The black sheep of Canadian liquors.

There's a breed of men with gypsy blood. Like these men, Yukon Jack is a black sheep, a liquor that goes its own way.
Soft-spoken and smooth, Yukon Jack is unlike any Canadian spirit you've ever tasted. Its hundred-proof potency simmers just below the surface.
Straight, on the rocks or mixed, Yukon Jack is a taste born of hoary nights when lonely men struggle to keep their fires lit and their cabins warm.

AROUSE YOUR ANIMAL INSTINCTS

Step inside a Giraffe tonight and let your senses soar.

Hear the Giraffe, speaking through the music and the flashing silver screens on every wall. See the Giraffe, dancing in the colors that are leaping from the floor. Feel the Giraffe, in the icy warmth of the liquid in your hand.

The Giraffe is a discotheque, wild and waiting every night.

Bring someone you love, or want to.

The black sheep of Canadian liquors.

There's a breed of men with gypsy blood. Like these men, Yukon Jack is a black sheep, a liquor that goes its own way.
Soft-spoken and smooth, Yukon Jack is unlike any Canadian spirit you've ever tasted. Its hundred-proof potency simmers just below the surface.
Straight, on the rocks or mixed, Yukon Jack is a taste born of hoary nights when lonely men struggle to keep their fires lit and their cabins warm.

Ask Andy

Thunderstorms—weather warfare

WHAT IS LIGHTNING MADE OF?

A dark storm spreads far and wide and towers high in the sky. Weathery warfare begins with a dazzling flash of lightning, like a crooked fiery dagger. Then comes the thunder, like the roar of distant guns. Actually the thunderstorm is a sort of battlefield. But the opposing armies are airy breezes, warm and cool, damp and dry. The lightning and thunder are caused by electricity.

On a frosty morning, your hair tends to crackle and cling to the brush. This strange event is caused by static electricity. It happens because atoms are surrounded by tiny electrons, and many of them are eager for a chance to leave home.

These tiny atomic particles are mini-charges of negative electricity. And negative electricity attracts positive electricity. Free electrons in your hair are attracted to positive charges in the brush. When the two meet the charge is neutralized, often with a quiet crackle.

Something like this happens in a dramatic thunderstorm, only on a much grander scale. The cloud is a frantic turmoil of airy breezes, blowing hot and cold, damp and dry, in all directions. In the wild hurly-burly, whole armies of electrons are brushed away from airy atoms and molecules.

These tend to gather in a certain part of the storm cloud, where they build up an enormous charge of negative electricity. Meantime, as atoms loose negative charges, they are left with extra positive charges. So opposite charges build up in other parts of the raging storm.

The positive and negative fields attract each other, even across miles of misty cloud. Suddenly this force becomes too strong, and the two opposites meet in a flash of lightning. This is called an electrical discharge because, for the moment, the two opposite charges are neutralized.

The moist cloud tries to resist the seething flash of energy. So the lightning zigs and zags to find the easiest path. In a split second, another flash follows along the same crooked path.

In less than a moment, the air around the lightning's path becomes very hot. Hot air expands, but here it is trapped by the cool, moist air around it. So it explodes with a roar of thunder. The lightning is an electrical discharge between two parts of a cloud or between a cloud and the ground. The thunder is heated air, exploding in the path of the lightning.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Darrell Shepherd, 11, of Enid, Okla., for his question:

WHY DO LIGHTNING BUGS LIGHT UP?

Lightning bugs, or fireflies, take to the air on a summer evening. Actually these insects are beetles that go through an egg, larva and pupa stage. The winged types are adults, and most experts agree that their fiery flashes are mating signals. There are many species, and each has its own code. In our most common species, the male flashes a split-second signal — then waits for six seconds. During the pause, the female replies with a flash. This goes on until the male and female locate each other.

This explanation may be true for the winged adults, whose main role is mating. But larvae also flash. Some experts suspect that they flash to inform their kinfolk they have found a supply of food. But this does not explain why the eggs sometimes glow in the dark. Only recently, researchers learned how the lightning bug creates his wondrous light. Obviously we now need more research to learn the full details of why he does it.

This finesse traps knave

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Dinadan, the worst knight and bridge player, knows his limitations. He steers clear of challenges at both sword and card play. When Lancelot opened one notrump, Dinadan raised the peerless one to three instead of showing his five-card heart suit.

The defense started with four club tricks. Then, East shifted to a spade. Lancelot, who had discarded one spade from each hand, rose with his ace and started on diamonds.

He had no reason to try a finesse for the jack of that suit. When it failed to drop, it was all up to the heart suit.

Lancelot stopped to analyze the opening lead and decided that if West had been dealt a five-card major suit he would have led it. Hence, his distribution would be 4-4-2-3.

Thus hearts were going to break 4-2. After that analysis it was no problem to finesse against the jack of hearts and score the notrump game.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

'Check the record' of moving firms

Families on the move should check a moving company's performance record before they sign a contract for services.

The Interstate Commerce Commission requires moving firms to give prospective shippers a printed summary of annual performance records, said an ICC spokesman. The report indicates the percentages of "on-time" moves and moves involving delays or extensive claims.

"This is not a case of offering the performance record to a potential client," said Robert W. Fernstrom, president of Fernstrom Moving System, Rosemont. "We must give a copy of the report to the prospective shipper and secure a receipt from him acknowledging the transaction. Later, if our company receives the move, the receipt becomes part of our permanent file."

THE ICC requirement "shouldn't scare any reputable company," Fernstrom said. The performance report should enable a client to understand the service history of the company, he said.

The performance record includes the following items: the moving company's name and address, ICC registration number and type of account, the percentage of shipments picked up one to five days later than specified in the service order, the percentage of shipments picked up more than five days late and percentage of shipments on which there is a 10 per cent or greater error in estimation of charges.

The report also must show the percentage of shipments on which a $50 or greater claim for loss or damage is filed, percentage of claims filed for expenses resulting from a carrier delay, average length of time required to settle claims and other information.

Plenty of planning a must for firms moving to 'sticks

by LEA TONKIN

Pulling up corporate stakes and heading for suburbia can give an executive gray hair, said Gerald Howard, president of Exhibitgroup Chicago, Elk Grove Village.

Howard knows. He is among area executives who've led a company move from Chicago to the suburbs. His advice to fellow movers, along with the comment of relocation experts, is basically simple: plan ahead.

Howard said he started planning the Exhibitgroup move a year in advance of the August 1974 move-in date. At first, he scouted for a Chicago location roomy enough to accommodate the company's separate plant and warehouse operations.

"WE WERE pretty well locked into the Chicago exhibit halls," Howard said. "It would have made life simpler to stay in the city." Exhibitgroup Chicago, a division of Greyhound Exhibitgroup Inc., designs, builds and services trade show exhibits used at McCormick Place and other Chicago locations.

When Howard began the search for a new plant, a move to the suburbs seemed unlikely.

"It was something we resisted like getting a case of the plague," he said. Howard found little space in Chicago to accommodate his needs, and "what was available was terribly expensive," he said.

Turning to the suburban real estate market, Howard worked with an area development firm in the hunt for a new location. A building in Bensenville and the present plant site at 2800 Lively Blvd., Elk Grove Village seemed good locations. "We wrestled, played cards and other things, then signed a lease," Howard said. He signed a lease for a portion of the building in November 1973, with an option to lease the remaining space.

"A business like ours is rarely planned," the executive said. "They grow like topsy." The move to a new location provided an opportunity to plan an efficient plant layout. The company began to move exhibits to the new site in May 1974, moved west of the remaining inventory in July and completed the relocation by August.

"OUR PRIMARY concern was in the availability of personnel, not only office personnel but skilled trades," Howard said of relocation problems. Although the company lost some employes when it moved from the locations at 4132 W. Belmont, and 1820 W. Roscoe, Chicago, "our worries were instantly stilled when we moved in," Howard said. We found the labor supply surprisingly good." The company has 95 employes.

Transportation was another company concern, Howard said. The lack of mass transportation did not hamper recruiting, however, because most employes drive to work.

Howard said the move to suburbia "turns out to be the best thing we could have done." The company still has crews on the job in Chicago locations, he said.

Planning for Kemper Insurance Companies' move from Chicago to Long Grove began six years before the actual transition, said James S. Kemper Jr., president. Employes were notified of the plans in mid-1969, 2½ years notice.

Settled in the new location on Ill. Rte. 22, Kemper said, "On the whole, our moving out has been a very sound move." The company opens its facilities to community groups, invites local organizations to view its extensive art collection and offers employes a range of recreational activities such as boating and fishing.

THERE ARE ADDED costs and inconveniences to the company that relocates in a rural area, Kemper said. Employes who live in Chicago face a long commute, and the company shares the cost of bus service to the city with employes.

At first, Kemper had difficulty attracting minority employes in the suburban location. The company now recruits actively in Waukegan and other locations to attract minority employes. A community relations position was set up to establish ties with suburban communities and retain ties with Chicago organizations. The company didn't want to break away from the city, Kemper said.

Housing, which is a problem for some companies moving to the "sticks," did not hamper the transition. Employes found housing in the area, and many local residents were recruited.

Kemper believes the move was successful, depite the inconvenience of traveling time between city and suburbs. Some 1,200 employes work in the 500,000-square-foot facility, an improvement to the scattered, crowded city offices.

WHEN A CORPORATE executive decides it's time for the company to move on to the suburbs, plenty of time should be allowed for the transition. That's the advice of Theodore Bell, executive vice president of Employee Transfer Corp. (ETC), a subsidiary of Chicago Title and Trust Co. "There may be an impact on employes in making the decision," he said.

"Many companies figure it doesn't cost anything to move," Bell said. The company should investigate potential problems of the physical move and employe attitudes about the decision, Bell said. Companies try to retain competent personnel and to meet equal employment opportunity standards in the new location, he said.

Harold Otto, senior marketing engineer for Commonwealth Edison Co., Chicago, said the utility surveys industrial trends such as city-to-suburbs moves in the Metropolitan area, Although economic conditions slowed down the move to the suburbs, the Northwest suburbs will continue to attract new industry, Otto said.

"The important thing is that a building is available to meet the company needs," Otto said. The inventory of available industrial space in the Chicago metropolitan area is 55 million square feet, he said.

One-family home prices show decline

A September report by the National Assn. of Realtors Dept. of Economics and Research shows sales of existing single-family homes dropped during July.

The decline in housing sales indicates the industry recovery lacks the vigor of previous expansion periods, the department said.

The median sales price for an existing single-family home in July was $35,850. The figure slipped below the June median sales price of $36,200. Existing-home prices tend to drop at year-end, the department said, although the drop generally happens in August or September. Despite the early decline in prices, the July median sale price for an existing home was 8.5 per cent higher than the $33,030 reported for July 1974.

Fewer low-priced homes sold during July than the comparable month a year earlier and sales of higher-priced homes increased. The chart shows the trend.

The department reported median sales price information for two-, three-and four-bedroom homes. Homes four or more bedrooms, which accounted for 27.6 per cent of July existing single-family home sales, sold for the median price of $49,860. Three-bedroom homes, which account for approximately half the sales, had a median sale price of $34,400. Homes with two or fewer bedrooms sold for a median price of $25,260, and accounted for 17.3 per cent of sales.

The report is based on information given to the department by some 140 boards of Realtors in the U.S. The data reflects sales prices rather than offering prices.

IRS brochure explains new home tax credit

New home buyers are entitled to a credit against their federal income tax, says the Internal Revenue Service.

An explanation of the tax credit and its limitations is offered in a free IRS publication entitled, "Tax Credit for the New Home Buyer." A recent change in federal law allows certain homes which were previously ineligible to qualify a buyer for the credit.

The pamphlet explains that new home buyers will gain a credit against their federal income tax equal to five per cent of the purchase price of a new house, up to a maximum $2,000. Married persons filing separate returns are limited to $1,000 on each return.

THE HOME must be new and a buyer's principal residence to qualify for the tax credit. The home buyer attaches to his income tax return a certification signed by the seller that construction began before March 26, 1975, and that the purchase price is the lowest price offered following Feb. 28, 1975. The publication contains a suggested certification form.

The home must be purchased and occupied after March 12, 1975, and before Jan. 1, 1977, the booklet said. The residence must be purchased under a binding contract before Jan. 1, 1976, except in the case of buyer construction.

The publication explains that legislation enacted June 30 changed the lowest price requirement for the tax credit. Taxpayers who originally did not qualify because of the lowest price provision should check with the seller to determine whether the residence now qualifies, the IRS said.

The publication, number 591, is available free from the IRS. Write IRS, Box 1132, Chicago, Ill. 60690.

Two boycott bills 'harmful'

Congressional approval of two bills that would legalize secondary boycotts in the construction industry would hurt Illinois trade, said Gene Lamb, president of the Associated General Contractors of Illinois.

Lamb, a Champaign general contractor, said HR 5900 and S 1479 would "give the construction unions a stranglehold over every contractor in the nation, and every dispute would probably lead to a total walkout on the construction site."

"If this secondary boycott legislation passes and becomes law, we can look for massive work stoppages, more unemployment and higher construction costs," Lamb said. The prohibition of "common situs" picketing or secondary boycotts is written into the Taft-Hartley law.

A construction union that has a dispute with a subcontractor on a job site has the right to strike the employer, but may not extend the picket line to other contracting firms and unions on the site. The proposed legislation would amend the National Labor Relations Act to allow secondary boycotts.

Unions contend that all contractors working on a job site are participating in a joint venture and the contractors should be considered a single employer.

Lamb said the proposed legislation would allow unions to select subcontractors on a job site, eliminating competition among businesses and among union and nonunion workers.

Town homes add luxuries

The suburban town house has gone from utilitarian to the luxurious.

At Partridge Hill in suburban Hoffman Estates you can find sunken living rooms, cathedral ceilings, cultured marble vanities and central air conditioning. And all in a town house.

The town home described above shows the advancements made in the town house concept in recent years.

"We've taken the 'sameness' out of town house living," explained a spokesman for the Partridge Hill development.

The town house moved to the suburbs a decade ago but in the past it was considered a good price value but sometimes lacking in amenities.

At Partridge Hill the look of luxury has been added to the town home, such as The Claridge.

It has three bedrooms, 2½ baths, an attached two-car garage — all of the elements you expect to be found only in higher priced luxurious single family homes. The cathedral ceiling, sunken living room, central air conditioning, all are included for $52,900. The purchase price also includes wall-to-wall carpeting, washer & dryer and all major kitchen appliances.

The Claridge is one of eight different town homes ranging in price from $44,900 to $52,900.

Partridge Hill is a joint venture of First Savings Corp. and Partridge Group, Ltd. To see the Claridge model, take Northwest Tollway to Rt. 53. Exit south to Golf Rd. Exit west to Roselle Rd. Go south three blocks to Bode Rd. Exit west and go one mile to model.

New office opens in Mt. Prospect

Century 21—Countryside Real Estate says hello to Mount Prospect residents with its newest office located at 8 E. Northwest Hwy. The "National but Neighborly" Company will bring Mount Prospect the professional service that is necessary in todays fast paced "transferee" society whether the move is local or cross country. Century-21 has over 100 offices covering Chicago and suburbs, and over 1400 offices nationwide.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Where is the deed to your real property right now? Are you sure? Have you seen it since it served to convey title to you when you bought your property? Have you checked it since that day? Did you check it then?

As important a document as your deed is, it could be something less than as secure as you hope it is. It could be just a worthless piece of paper. What if a necessary signature was never obtained? What if the property description is faulty? What if an incorrect date is used in error? Relax! Such errors are extremely rare. These, and a host of other details, are handled carefully and correctly when you depend on us for help with your real estate deals.

Can we help you? It costs you nothing to phone or drop in for a preliminary discussion. Let's talk it over!

Town homes add luxuries

The suburban town house has gone from utilitarian to the luxurious.

At Partridge Hill in suburban Hoffman Estates you can find sunken living rooms, cathedral ceilings, cultured marble vanities and central air conditioning. And all in a town house.

The town home described above shows the advancements made in the town house concept in recent years.

"We've taken the 'sameness' out of town house living," explained a spokesman for the Partridge Hill development.

The town house moved to the suburbs a decade ago but in the past it was considered a good price value but sometimes lacking in amenities.

At Partridge Hill the look of luxury has been added to the town home, such as The Claridge.

It has three bedrooms, 2½ baths, an attached two-car garage — all of the elements you expect to be found only in higher priced luxurious single family homes. The cathedral ceiling, sunken living room, central air conditioning, all are included for $52,900. The purchase price also includes wall-to-wall carpeting, washer & dryer and all major kitchen appliances.

The Claridge is one of eight different town homes ranging in price from $44,900 to $52,900.

Partridge Hill is a joint venture of First Savings Corp. and Partridge Group, Ltd. To see the Claridge model, take Northwest Tollway to Rt. 53. Exit south to Golf Rd. Exit west to Roselle Rd. Go south three blocks to Bode Rd. Exit west and go one mile to model.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Where is the deed to your real property right now? Are you sure? Have you seen it since it served to convey title to you when you bought your property? Have you checked it since that day? Did you check it then?

As important a document as your deed is, it could be something less than as secure as you hope it is. It could be just a worthless piece of paper. What if a necessary signature was never obtained? What if the property description is faulty? What if an incorrect date is used in error? Relax! Such errors are extremely rare. These, and a host of other details, are handled carefully and correctly when you depend on us for help with your real estate deals.

Can we help you? It costs you nothing to phone or drop in for a preliminary discussion. Let's talk it over!

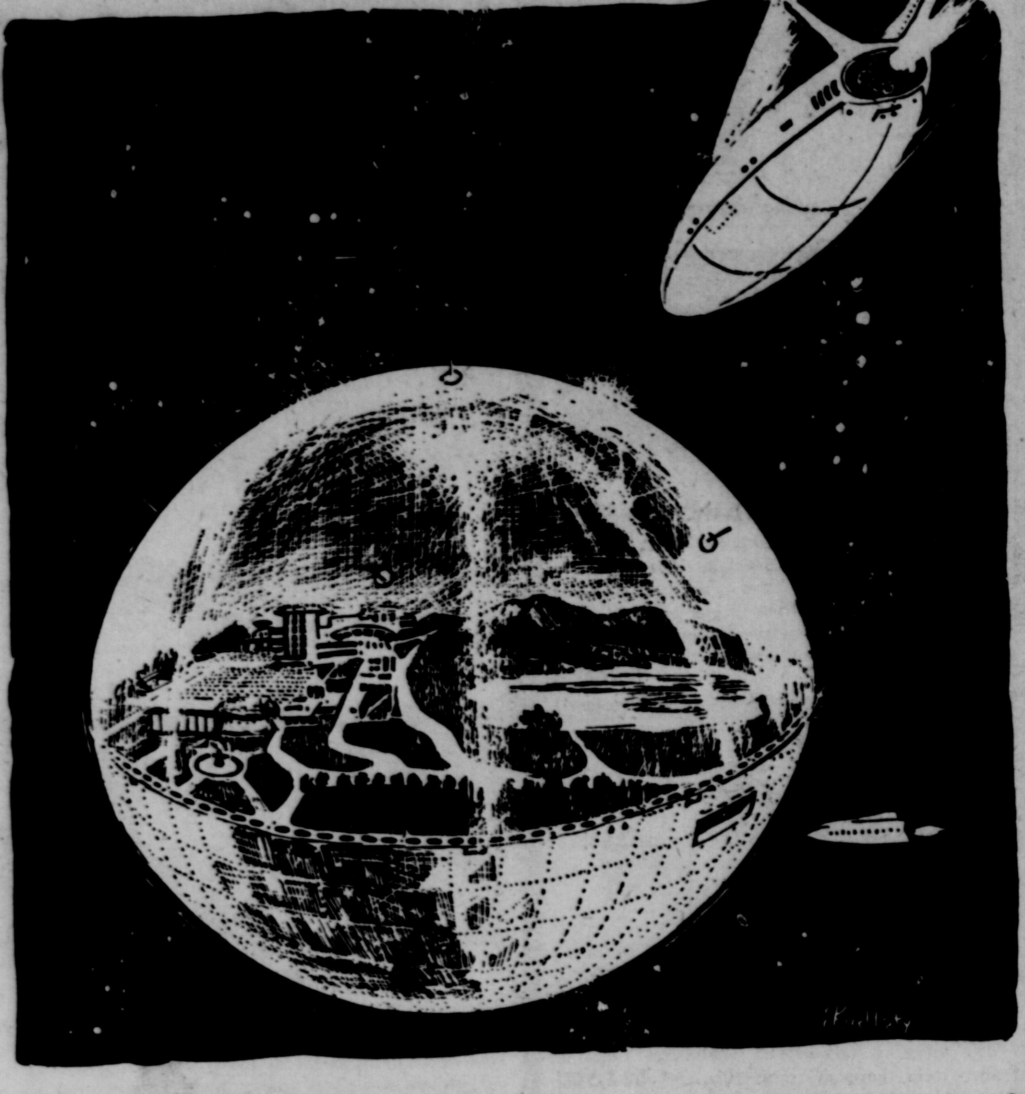
NASA outlook: Condos in outer space?

by TOM TIEDE



After sending more than 40 people into space in the last 15 years, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is now cautiously toying with the idea of sending hundreds, even thousands, in the next 15.

Mechanically rational concepts of space colonization are suddenly forming in some segments of the scientific community and NASA, ever eager for proposals that excite the public's imagination, and thereby loosen the pursestrings of Congress, is carefully but decidedly tuning in.

At first hearing the colonization concepts seem preposterous, the stuff of Flash Gordon comic panels. One proposal suggests NASA institute a program comparable to the lunar landing project to construct a giant space capsule capable ts housing 10,000 earthlings indefinitely.

The capsule, which would in fact be a self-contained world, would be furnished with a life-supporting atmosphere, with fields and streams, and small communities of homes, highways, motor vehicles, grass and domestic animals.

The time reference? Late in the 1980s.

Despite its boggling scope, NASA officials who have probed the colonization plan say it is technically feasible. In fact, members of a NASA committee formed to investigate "Outlooks For Space," agree in principle with private scientists who insist technology is already available, on paper, to create a colony of this kind. Space shuttle planes now under development could provide the people, advanced but applicable engineering could build the habitat, and a marriage of space and science could summon the energy.

To lend weight to its interest, NASA has already granted small sums of research money to the colonization proposal, all of it going to the theory's leading enthusiast, Princeton physicist Dr. Gerald O'Neill.

O'Neill, who generated what he calls "phenomenal interest" in colonization last year when he sponsored a student seminar to consider the matter, has just completed three months fleshing out his equations at a NASA station in California.

Two dozen U.S. academics assisted O'Neill in the summer study program. Conclusions are far from faultless, the group says, but "Colonization is no mere dream, if we want to do it we can do it."

O'Neill is the first to admit the nation may not in the end want to do it. Potential costs for one thing, are staggering, with guesses ranging from $22 billion (the moon project total) to $220 billion, a sum considered to be simply unacceptable as a politicl matter. Besides the money, moreover, there are other roadblocking considerations, not the least of which is growing public disenchantment with unprofitable space carnivals.

Given the latter concern, some academics believe space colonization should be in essence left to private enterprise, if it wants it. Freeman Dyson, of the Princeton Institute of Advanced Studies, and a longtime advocate of space colonization, says that political ramifications may unduly delay a governmental project of this sort, so he suggests it might instead "be undertaken by a few private nuts, some willing scientists, who would raise the necessary money and then assume all risks themselves." Freeman says a private venture would be a more modest but more practical first step.

Yet if there are differences of opinion even among advocates as to who should do what to foster space colonization, there is no such confusion as to its necessity. Dyson says the alternative to the expansion is to "eventually reduce our standard of living on earth to meager proportions."

Those most devoted to colonization feel small cities in space are the practical answers to decaying cities on earth. "By the year 2000," says a member of O'Neill's study team, "we'll be running out of every resource but people. Soon after there won't be enough of anything on earth, including room. Then we may not have any choice but to send some people elsewhere."

The "some people," according to O'Neill, could in time become considerably more than that. He foresees the first colony having as one of its responsibilities the erection of a second colony and on and on until millions are drifting about in the remarkable bubbles.

Since resources would be mined from space, the capsules (cylinders, donut-shaped, whatever) could be expanded in size from 60 to 80 square miles or more. At length, O'Neill supposes, almost everybody from a dying earth would live in space compartments that would, no doubt, be individually outfitted (one temperate, one for winter sports, etc.) to offer every accustomed hometown amenity.

Ridiculous? Frightening? Quite right. Thus it is that Jerry O'Neill has something of an alternative plan for the future of man. Accordingly, he proposes the creation of some space colonies on a cost-to-benefit profit for earth. One idea would be to charge space colonists with the task of constructing "satellite solar power" stations at fixed points above the earth.

O'Neill says his studies suggest that the energy generated for earth's use would not only be unlimited but reasonably priced. It follows, then, he says, that colonies mining space resources — power at first and thereafter everything from iron to food — might keep mother earth spinning even with the weight of all the worry that's piling up for tomorrow.

Building leased

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has reported the leasing last spring of the one story 10,000 square foot building at 850 Nicholas Boulevard, Elk Grove Village to Dena Corporation, formerly of Maywood. The building is being used for the manufacture and distribution of hair care products.

Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented the lessor and Richard Ross of Scribner and Company represented the lessee.

by TOM TIEDE

After sending more than 40 people into space in the last 15 years, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is now cautiously toying with the idea of sending hundreds, even thousands, in the next 15.

Mechanically rational concepts of space colonization are suddenly forming in some segments of the scientific community and NASA, ever eager for proposals that excite the public's imagination, and thereby loosen the pursestrings of Congress, is carefully but decidedly tuning in.

At first hearing the colonization concepts seem preposterous, the stuff of Flash Gordon comic panels. One proposal suggests NASA institute a program comparable to the lunar landing project to construct a giant space capsule capable ts housing 10,000 earthlings indefinitely.

The capsule, which would in fact be a self-contained world, would be furnished with a life-supporting atmosphere, with fields and streams, and small communities of homes, highways, motor vehicles, grass and domestic animals.

The time reference? Late in the 1980s.

Despite its boggling scope, NASA officials who have probed the colonization plan say it is technically feasible. In fact, members of a NASA committee formed to investigate "Outlooks For Space," agree in principle with private scientists who insist technology is already available, on paper, to create a colony of this kind. Space shuttle planes now under development could provide the people, advanced but applicable engineering could build the habitat, and a marriage of space and science could summon the energy.

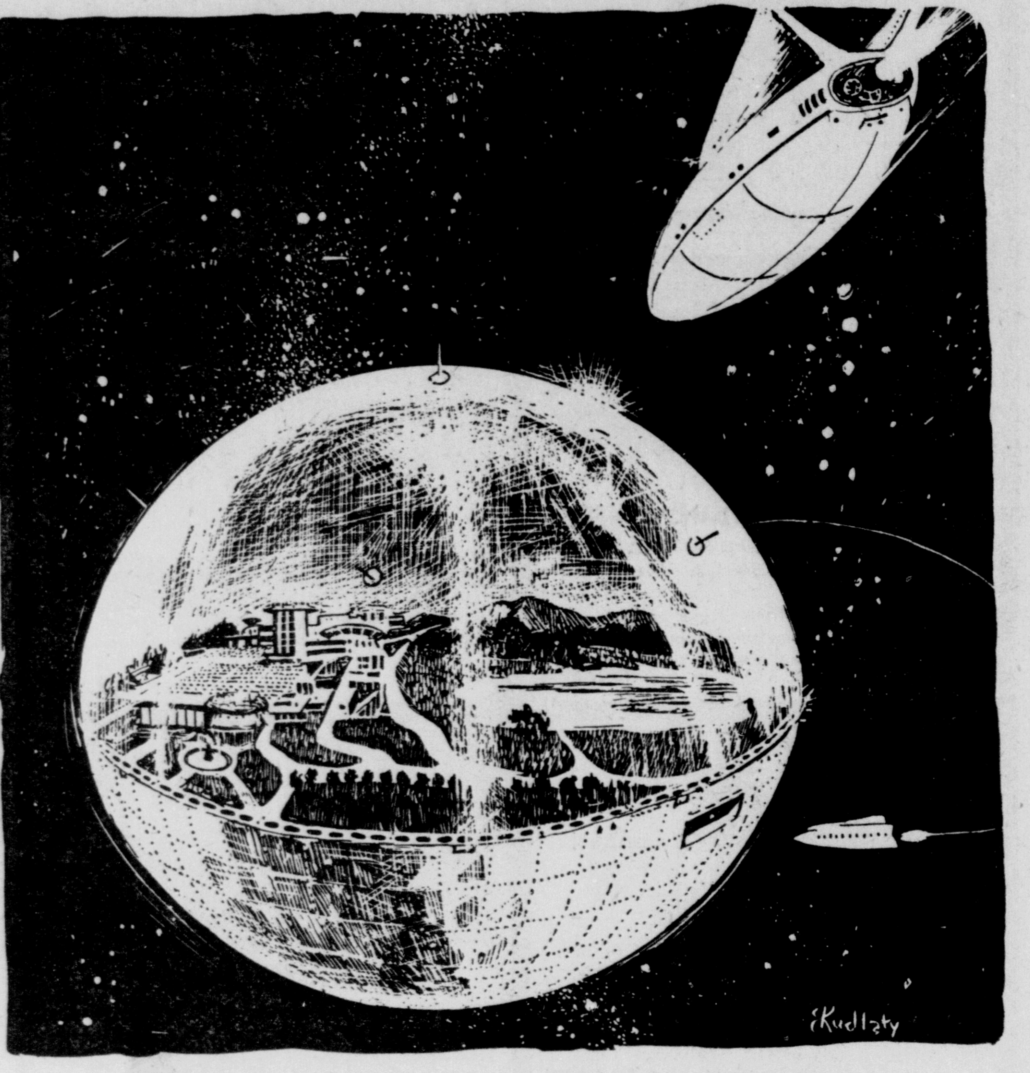
To lend weight to its interest, NASA has already granted small sums of research money to the colonization proposal, all of it going to the theory's leading enthusiast, Princeton physicist Dr. Gerald O'Neill.

O'Neill, who generated what he calls "phenomenal interest" in colonization last year when he sponsored a student seminar to consider the matter, has just completed three months fleshing out his equations at a NASA station in California.

Two dozen U.S. academics assisted O'Neill in the summer study program. Conclusions are far from faultless, the group says, but "Colonization is no mere dream, if we want to do it we can do it."

O'Neill is the first to admit the nation may not in the end want to do it. Potential costs for one thing, are staggering, with guesses ranging from $22 billion (the moon project total) to $220 billion, a sum considered to be simply unacceptable as a politicl matter. Besides the money, moreover, there are other roadblocking considerations, not the least of which is growing public disenchantment with unprofitable space carnivals.

Given the latter concern, some academics believe space colonization should be in essence left to private enterprise, if it wants it. Freeman Dyson, of the Princeton Institute of Advanced Studies, and a longtime advocate of space colonization, says that political ramifications may unduly delay a governmental project of this sort, so he suggests it might instead "be undertaken by a few private nuts, some willing scientists, who would raise the necessary money and then assume all risks themselves." Freeman says a private venture would be a more modest but more practical first step.



Yet if there are differences of opinion even among advocates as to who should do what to foster space colonization, there is no such confusion as to its necessity. Dyson says the alternative to the expansion is to "eventually reduce our standard of living on earth to meager proportions."

Those most devoted to colonization feel small cities in space are the practical answers to decaying cities on earth. "By the year 2000," says a member of O'Neill's study team, "we'll be running out of every resource but people. Soon after there won't be enough of anything on earth, including room. Then we may not have any choice but to send some people elsewhere."

The "some people," according to O'Neill, could in time become considerably more than that. He foresees the first colony having as one of its responsibilities the erection of a second colony and on and on until millions are drifting about in the remarkable bubbles.

Since resources would be mined from space, the capsules (cylinders, donut-shaped, whatever) could be expanded in size from 60 to 80 square miles or more. At length, O'Neill supposes, almost everybody from a dying earth would live in space compartments that would, no doubt, be individually outfitted (one temperate, one for winter sports, etc.) to offer every accustomed hometown amenity.

Ridiculous? Frightening? Quite right. Thus it is that Jerry O'Neill has something of an alternative plan for the future of man. Accordingly, he proposes the creation of some space colonies on a cost-to-benefit profit for earth. One idea would be to charge space colonists with the task of constructing "satellite solar power" stations at fixed points above the earth.

O'Neill says his studies suggest that the energy generated for earth's use would not only be unlimited but reasonably priced. It follows, then, he says, that colonies mining space resources — power at first and thereafter everything from iron to food — might keep mother earth spinning even with the weight of all the worry that's piling up for tomorrow.

Building leased

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has reported the leasing last spring of the one story 10,000 square foot building at 850 Nicholas Boulevard, Elk Grove Village to Dena Corporation, formerly of Maywood. The building is being used for the manufacture and distribution of hair care products.

Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented the lessor and Richard Ross of Scribner and Company represented the lessee.

Check out construction features

Corn beef and cabbage may be a tasty dish on the table, but their characteristic odor is out of place in the lobby and hallways of a modern condominium or rental apartment building.

So if you can smell cooking odors or any other unpleasant aromas in the halls, it's a sign that the building lacks a pressurized fresh air ventilating system. And if the halls are hot and muggy besides, that's a sign that the building isn't completely air conditioned.

"These are among the many construction features a smart condominium shopper should be looking for," notes Jack McGlinn, sales manager of the Village on the Lake condominium development in Elk Grove Village.

He points out that if the lobby and hallways of a building are pressurized and air conditioned, they'll be as comfortable as the living units themselves. And they'll remain pleasant-smelling, without the build-up of characteristic odor that's found in so many older buildings.

There are some other important construction features to check out, McGlinn advises:

Fire-resistant construction. A steel, concrete, and brick building is safer and can save up to 40 per cent on insurance premiums over ordinary brick and frame construction. This means the policy for the entire building should cost less, and your own household insurance policy should be less, too.

Exterior wall insulation. Typically, building using concrete block and brick for the exterior walls won't have any additional insulation. The builder relies on the dead air cavities in the concrete block to act as an insulator. This is often insufficient, and the results are cold and clammy outside walls that make the living unit uncomfortable.

But if the builder has put in extra insulation, such as three-inch fiber glass batts, the walls will be warmer in the winter and cooler in the summer, making the entire living unit more pleasant.

Double-glazed windows and sliding doors. You can lose a lot of heat in the winter and gain a lot of heat in the summer if glass areas are just single-glazed. Double-glazing provides insulation for comfort and cuts down on drafts.

Dead air space between units for sound-conditioning. In many buildings, adjacent units share a common wall, with the interior studs touching the wall surface on both sides. If there's a 10-inch dead air space between the studs of one wall and the studs of another, sound won't be as easily transmitted through the wall.

Central heating and air conditioning, with individual controls. The advantage, McGlinn said, is that the condominium association buys the gas energy for the system at a bulk price that is lower than individual metering would be. Each owner still has individual control of his or her own living unit's comfort.

The above are some of the less obvious features that condominium buyers should look into, he said. Although their importance may be overlooked at first, they become increasingly significant with time.

Village on the Lake offers all of these features in its two-bedroom condominium homes with prices beginning at $31,790. The community is being built by United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co. owner-developer of Old Orchard, Oakbrook Center, and River Oaks shopping centers. In addition to the homes, Village on the Lake includes a 35-acre lake for sailing and fishing, two tennis courts and an outdoor heated swimming pool.

Furnished models are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday. To reach Village on the Lake, take Arlington Heights Rd. to Biesterfield Rd. in Elk Grove Village, then go west two blocks to Wellington Ave.

Regional office to open

Realty World, a national real estate marketing program with a real estate office in Palatine, has opened its midwest regional office in Oak Brook, according to Henry A. Porterfield, president of the midwest region.

Henry Porterfield

Porterfield said the program currently includes 12 real estate offices in Woodstock, Oak Lawn, Tinley Park, Crystal Lake, Bensenville, Palatine, Addison, Hinsdale, Downers Grove, Hickory Hills and Lombard.

Early in October, Realty World-Midwest will announce its impact opening. At this time all member brokers will post their new office and lawn signs; will have elected officers to a brokers' council, the decision making body of the regional program; committees will be functioning and a television advertising campaign initiated.

Leasing transacted

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates is pleased to announce the leasing of the 4,075 square foot unit located at 1181 Tower Road in Tower Lake Industrial Complex, Schaumburg, to Solar Division of International Harvester.

Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented Solar and Greg Loesch of Lake Woods Realty represented the ownership. Both parties were represented by house counsel in the lease transaction.

The builder relies on the dead air cavities in the concrete block to act as an insulator. This is often insufficient, and the results are cold and clammy outside walls that make the living unit uncomfortable.

But if the builder has put in extra insulation, such as three-inch fiber glass batts, the walls will be warmer in the winter and cooler in the summer, making the entire living unit more pleasant.

Double-glazed windows and sliding doors. You can lose a lot of heat in the winter and gain a lot of heat in the summer if glass areas are just single-glazed. Double-glazing provides insulation for comfort and cuts down on drafts.

Dead air space between units for sound-conditioning. In many buildings, adjacent units share a common wall, with the interior studs touching the wall surface on both sides. If there's a 10-inch dead air space between the studs of one wall and the studs of another, sound won't be as easily transmitted through the wall.

Central heating and air conditioning, with individual controls. The advantage, McGlinn said, is that the condominium association buys the gas energy for the system at a bulk price that is lower than individual metering would be. Each owner still has individual control of his or her own living unit's comfort.

The above are some of the less obvious features that condominium buyers should look into, he said. Although their importance may be overlooked at first, they become increasingly significant with time.

Village on the Lake offers all of these features in its two-bedroom condominium homes with prices beginning at $31,790. The community is being built by United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co. owner-developer of Old Orchard, Oakbrook Center, and River Oaks shopping centers. In addition to the homes, Village on the Lake includes a 35-acre lake for sailing and fishing, two tennis courts and an outdoor heated swimming pool.

Furnished models are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday. To reach Village on the Lake, take Arlington Heights Rd. to Biesterfield Rd. in Elk Grove Village, then go west two blocks to Wellington Ave.

Regional office to open

Realty World, a national real estate marketing program with a real estate office in Palatine, has opened its midwest regional office in Oak Brook, according to Henry A. Porterfield, president of the midwest region.

Henry Porterfield

Porterfield said the program currently includes 12 real estate offices in Woodstock, Oak Lawn, Tinley Park, Crystal Lake, Bensenville, Palatine, Addison, Hinsdale, Downers Grove, Hickory Hills and Lombard.

Early in October, Realty World-Midwest will announce its impact opening. At this time all member brokers will post their new office and lawn signs; will have elected officers to a brokers' council, the decision making body of the regional program; committees will be functioning and a television advertising campaign initiated.

Leasing transacted

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates is pleased to announce the leasing of the 4,075 square foot unit located at 1181 Tower Road in Tower Lake Industrial Complex, Schaumburg, to Solar Division of International Harvester.

Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented Solar and Greg Loesch of Lake Woods Realty represented the ownership. Both parties were represented by house counsel in the lease transaction.

Real estate facts

by Virgil E. Grand

President, Northwest Suburban Board of REALTORS®

A recent survey of apartment dwellers in seven cities across the country revealed that, while most renters are happy to be living in apartments, they still regard apartment living as a transitional stage before buying a home.

Men and women interviewed for the survey — especially those in younger age groups — said they are living in apartments "for now," but virtually all felt certain they would move to a single-family home some day.

Most older people (late 50s and early 60s) interviewed had moved from a single-family dwelling to an apartment after their children left home.

The general opinion of all, the survey found, was that a home is necessary or at least highly desirable for a family with children. In addition to certain physical features — a back yard where children can play or a basement in which a workshop or hobby area can be set up — a home is desirable because people associate it with stability and permanence.

So, while an apartment is fine for a transitional way of life, according to the survey, a house is something that almost everyone desires when they're ready to become established and put down roots.

If you're currently an apartment dweller and eventually plan to buy a home, here are some reasons why you should consider purchasing as large a home as you possibly can afford.

Many real estate professionals agree that the best and safest real estate buy for a small investor is a home. And, in the present economy, allocation of a larger proportion of income to home purchase makes sense.

For one thing, family income is likely to grow more quickly than the expenses of home ownership. Thus, while initial mortgage payments may be steep, they will decrease relative to income as time passes.

Secondly, as prices continue to rise, the appreciation in dollars will be greater for people who own more expensive homes because they will benefit from greater leverage.

As an example: a $50,000 house with a $40,000 mortgage might rise in value to $60,000, for a $10,000 profit on the $10,000 investment. The same 20 per cent increase in a $60,000 house with a $48,000 mortgage would result in a $12,000 profit.

Furthermore, incomes are taxed more heavily all the time. But a large part of the payment on a mortgage receives favorable tax treatment; in fact, most payments in the early years of a mortgage are deductible. So, the larger the payments, the greater the tax shelter.

It isn't smart, of course, to strap yourself financially when purchasing a home — and lenders probably wouldn't allow it anyway. But, as a Realtor, I urge home buyers to consider buying as large a home as possible to build equity and savings, while at the same time enjoying life in a fine home.

FIVE NEW residential buildings are now under construction at Surrey Park, a community of "octominiums" being developed by Charles G. Matthies, Inc. in Arlington Heights.

Phase II construction underway

Five new residential buildings are now under construction at Surrey Park, a community of uniquely styled "octominiums" being developed by Charles G. Matthies, Inc. in Arlington Heights. The new construction signals the beginning of Phase II of the development which opened in October of 1974 and is now 75 per cent sold out of Phase I, at a total of $1¼ million in sales.

"A major part of our sales success has been due to the fact that the octominium concept attracts prospective homebuyers by giving them the best of both worlds — it satisfies their urge for the atmosphere and comforts of a single family home, and yet provides the maintenance free aspects of condominium style living," said Matthies. Surrey Park, when completed, will comprise 432 units, including 15 of the eight-unit, two-story octominiums.

"The octominiums have been designed to incorporate as much of the appearance and feel of a single family home as possible," said Matthies. Each building is distinctive, the architecture ranging from Chalet to Georgian, Colonial, Mansard and Williamsburg. The variations in brick, roof lines, and window treatments ensure the community's diverse appearance.

One of the most appealing features of the octominium design, according to Albert Collins, sales manager at Surrey Park, is the fact that every unit is located on a corner of the building, offering a view from two sides. Another popular feature is the large, garden-style, private roof deck or patio for each residence.

All of the residences at Surrey Park are two-bedroom, two-bath homes priced from $36,500. Special features in each home include a master suite with separate dressing area with vanity; wall-length closets in both bedrooms; a large, 25-foot storage closet; and entry foyer with guest closet; an eat-in kitchen; a dining area and attached garage.

Amenities included in the purchase price of each Surrey Park octominium include individually controlled electric heating and air conditioning; insulated glass windows; a Couch intercom security unit; master TV antenna system; kitchen with self-cleaning oven, ducted air exhaust unit, 15.7 cubic foot self-defrost refrigerator/freezer, dishwasher, hardwood cabinets, formica counter tops, stainless steel double sinks and disposer; choice of 12 decorator paint, appliance and ceramic tile colors; hook up for a washer and dryer; and ceramic tiled bathrooms with cultured marble vanity tops.

The octominiums are situated over the 26.3 acre site, surrounding a central three-acre lake, the latter featuring ice skating in winter and fishing in summer. Two of three planned tennis courts and one of two planned swimming pools, each with its own bathhouse, opened this summer.

Surrey Park is located within walking distance of shopping facilities. The Chicago and Northwestern commuter station is five minutes away and Woodfield Mall is four minutes away. Chicago's loop is easily accessible via the nearby entrances to the Northwest Tollway and Route 53.

Surrey Park is located at 1404 South New Wilke Road, one block north of Algonquin Road (Route 62) in the southwest corner of Arlington Heights. Furnished models are open daily from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Centex land sold

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates announce that over 650,000 square feet of land has been sold in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park during the first six months of 1975 to 10 companies.

Included in the list of purchasers are Midco Equipment Co., Structural Sales Co., Granrath Concrete Co. and Belmont Machine Co. All of the purchasers have buildings under construction or are in for permits. James H. Dana of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented ownership in all the sales. Kaplan Goode & Company represented by Steven Forsgren was the cooperating broker in the Midco Equipment Company transaction.

Lakeview is best-selling model

Open floor plans, full basements and spacious second-floor entrance halls are proving popular at Lakeside Villas in Wheeling, a $10.5 million Zale Construction Company development where only 28 townhomes remain to be sold.

According to Albert Zale, president of the construction firm, the abovementioned features are apparently what is making a best-selling model out of the development's three bedroom, 1½-bath Lakeview. Those remaining are priced from $45,100. Other models at Lakeside Villas range from $43,200 to $46,900.

Said Zale, "People seem to like the fact that in the Lakeview, the living room is directly off the entrance foyer and that the breakfast room is oriented to the back yard and has a large window. They mention traffic pattern and kitchen design."

Lakeview buyers Bob and Patricia Abene singled out the model's "L-shaped" living room and dining area as another reason for their purchase. "Our furniture fit it best," Mrs. Abene commented.

Financing is another plus at the development, the Abene's agreed. For as little as five per cent down, 7¾ per cent 30-year mortgages are available. No commission is charged and Zale Construction Company is paying all points.

The Lakeview includes an entrance hall with guest closet, 12'2" by 17' living room, a 9' by 11'6" dining room, an 11' by 16' kitchen and breakfast room with pantry and a powder room. Upstairs is the upper level entrance foyer, two secondary bedrooms measuring 9'2" by 11'5" and 10' by 12'6", a linen closet, the 12'8" by 16'5" master bedroom suite with walk-in closet and the large family bath.

Lakeside Villas has a large lake, spacious contemporary-designed clubhouse with see-through fireplace, resident lounge, kitchen for large parties, game room equipped for billiards and ping pong and men's and women's shower facilities. Outside surrounded by an expansive deck, is the olympic-sized heated swimming pool and the children's spray pool. Homes include fully sodded and landscaped lawns, attached garage, full basement, central air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting, storms and screens, gutters and downspouts and all major kitchen appliances.

Lakeside Villas is located on Hintz Rd. just west of Schoenbeck Rd. in Wheeling. To visit the furnished models, which are open from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day but Thursday, take Schoenbeck Rd. north from Palatine Rd. or south from Dundee Rd to Hintz Rd. Turn west and follow the signs.

Baird & Warner named agent

Baird & Warner, Inc., has been named managing and leasing agent for the Candlewood Apartments at 1515 Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, it was announced today by William D. Sally, CPM, vice president and general manager of the company's property management division.

Candlewood consists of 283 one- and two-bedroom apartments in eight buildings, with a pool and playground on the grounds. Rents range from $235 to $275 per month.

The property is under the supervision of Sanford Ross, assistant vice president of Baird & Warner's Arlington Heights office.

Net profits up for U.S. Homes

U.S. Home Corporation reported recently that in its second quarter ended August 31, 1975, net income was $1,508,000 or 15 cents per share compared with net income of $1,168,000 or 12 cents per share in the same quarter last year. Revenues in the second quarter of this year were $78,379,000 compared with $93,782,000 last year. The announcement was made jointly by Charles Rutenberg, chairman, and Ben F. Harrison, president and chief executive officer.

For the six months ended August 31, 1975, net income was $1,577,000 or 16 cents per share compared with $3,098,000 or 31 cents per share in the first half of last year. Revenues in the first six months of this year were $143,179,000 compared with $172,255,000 last year.

Commenting on the results, Mr. Harrison said, "While the sale of certain assets, such as shopping centers and rental apartments, did have a positive impact on earnings, our home building operations also operated in the black, generating more than half of the total net income in the quarter."

The company also announced that during the quarter it had renewed its open line credit agreement with 19 banks, including six of the nation's 10 largest, with total commitments of $140 million. The company has the right under the terms of the agreement to increase total commitments to $150 million.

Leader adopts new program

A new program designed to solve the problems of attracting and retaining competent sales personnel was recently adopted by Leader Realty Executives, Inc.

Leader president James Bickers said the system offers money and executive status to the salesperson. The high turnover rate for sales people may be cut from a 50 to 60 per cent annual rate to a 10 per cent annual rate by the program, he predicts.

A realty agent generally splits sales commissions with his company, Bickers said. The Leader system allows sales person to keep the entire sales commission after payment for his share of office expenses and a corporate fee.

"We make less on each sale" Bickers said. He figures the corporation will gain revenues as the number of sales personnel and sales offices increases.

"It's not a gimmick," Bickers said. "Superstars" should gain additional income from commissions and they are free to develop individual sales and promotions programs," he said.

Robert Schade, secretary-treasurer of the firm, predicts the incentive program will mean added professionalism and service to customers. The company has offices in East Dundee, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Lakeview is best-selling model

Open floor plans, full basements and spacious second-floor entrance halls are proving popular at Lakeside Villas in Wheeling, a $10.5 million Zale Construction Company development where only 28 townhomes remain to be sold.

According to Albert Zale, president of the construction firm, the abovementioned features are apparently what is making a best-selling model out of the development's three bedroom, 1½-bath Lakeview. Those remaining are priced from $45,100. Other models at Lakeside Villas range from $43,200 to $46,900.

Said Zale, "People seem to like the fact that in the Lakeview, the living room is directly off the entrance foyer and that the breakfast room is oriented to the back yard and has a large window. They mention traffic pattern and kitchen design."

Lakeview buyers Bob and Patricia Abene singled out the model's "L-shaped" living room and dining area as another reason for their purchase. "Our furniture fit it best," Mrs. Abene commented.

Financing is another plus at the development, the Abene's agreed. For as little as five per cent down, 7¾ per cent 30-year mortgages are available. No commission is charged and Zale Construction Company is paying all points.

The Lakeview includes an entrance hall with guest closet, 12'2" by 17' living room, a 9' by 11'6" dining room, an 11' by 16' kitchen and breakfast room with pantry and a powder room. Upstairs is the upper level entrance foyer, two secondary bedrooms measuring 9'2" by 11'5" and 10' by 12'6", a linen closet, the 12'8" by 16'5" master bedroom suite with walk-in closet and the large family bath.

Lakeside Villas has a large lake, spacious contemporary-designed clubhouse with see-through fireplace, resident lounge, kitchen for large parties, game room equipped for billiards and ping pong and men's and women's shower facilities. Outside surrounded by an expansive deck, is the olympic-sized heated swimming pool and the children's spray pool. Homes include fully sodded and landscaped lawns, attached garage, full basement, central air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting, storms and screens, gutters and downspouts and all major kitchen appliances.

Lakeside Villas is located on Hintz Rd. just west of Schoenbeck Rd. in Wheeling. To visit the furnished models, which are open from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day but Thursday, take Schoenbeck Rd. north from Palatine Rd. or south from Dundee Rd to Hintz Rd. Turn west and follow the signs.

Baird & Warner named agent

Baird & Warner, Inc., has been named managing and leasing agent for the Candlewood Apartments at 1515 Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, it was announced today by William D. Sally, CPM, vice president and general manager of the company's property management division.

Candlewood consists of 283 one- and two-bedroom apartments in eight buildings, with a pool and playground on the grounds. Rents range from $235 to $275 per month.

The property is under the supervision of Sanford Ross, assistant vice president of Baird & Warner's Arlington Heights office.

U.S. Home Corporation reported recently that in its second quarter ended August 31, 1975, net income was $1,508,000 or 15 cents per share compared with net income of $1,168,000 or 12 cents per share in the same quarter last year. Revenues in the second quarter of this year were $78,379,000 compared with $93,782,000 last year. The announcement was made jointly by Charles Rutenberg, chairman, and Ben F. Harrison, president and chief executive officer.

For the six months ended August 31, 1975, net income was $1,577,000 or 16 cents per share compared with $3,098,000 or 31 cents per share in the first half of last year. Revenues in the first six months of this year were $143,179,000 compared with $172,255,000 last year.

Commenting on the results, Mr. Harrison said, "While the sale of certain assets, such as shopping centers and rental apartments, did have a positive impact on earnings, our home building operations also operated in the black, generating more than half of the total net income in the quarter."

The company also announced that during the quarter it had renewed its open line credit agreement with 19 banks, including six of the nation's 10 largest, with total commitments of $140 million. The company has the right under the terms of the agreement to increase total commitments to $150 million.

Leader adopts new program

A new program designed to solve the problems of attracting and retaining competent sales personnel was recently adopted by Leader Realty Executives, Inc.

Leader president James Bickers said the system offers money and executive status to the salesperson. The high turnover rate for sales people may be cut from a 50 to 60 per cent annual rate to a 10 per cent annual rate by the program, he predicts.

A realty agent generally splits sales commissions with his company, Bickers said. The Leader system allows sales person to keep the entire sales commission after payment for his share of office expenses and a corporate fee.

"We make less on each sale" Bickers said. He figures the corporation will gain revenues as the number of sales personnel and sales offices increases.

"It's not a gimmick," Bickers said. "Superstars" should gain additional income from commissions and they are free to develop individual sales and promotions programs," he said.

Robert Schade, secretary-treasurer of the firm, predicts the incentive program will mean added professionalism and service to customers. The company has offices in East Dundee, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Ample mortgage funds predicted

Ample funds for financing home purchases are available through September, says John L. Markay, partner in Gladstone, Realtors with offices in Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Franklin Park, Villa Park, Westchester, Berkeley and LaGrange. Markay is in agreement with a heavy majority of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service members who responded to a recent survey.

But a somewhat smaller majority of survey respondents foresaw that federal government borrowing to underwrite the anticipated budget deficit will affect mortgage money supply adversely, later in the year.

"An adverse effect was predicted by 58.7 per cent of the RELO members who responded," Markay said. Gladstone is one of more than 770 member firms that serve more than 8,000 cities and towns throughout the U.S. and Canada and in several nations overseas.

"Another 21.3 per cent predicted little or no effect of the U.S. budget deficit on mortgage funds, while 20 per cent didn't venture an opinion," Markay continued. "While these real estate professionals weren't overwhelmingly pessimistic about the supply of mortgage money, the possibility of tight money or higher interest rates, or both, in several months should be considered by people about to make a decision to buy new homes.

"In other words, if a family is ready to buy, financing should be arranged promptly, while mortgage funds are in good supply."

RELO, whose members help families on the move to new communities find new housing with a minimum of delay and inconvenience, surveys a cross section of member brokers each quarter on conditions in the real estate marketplace. The mid-year survey just concluded elicited information on home-purchasing financing in the 12 months through June, 1975, and predictions on conditions in coming months.

Most responding members reported their home buyers experienced the greatest difficulty in obtaining mortgage financing in September-December, 1974. A scattering of members pinpointed June, July or August, 1974, or January, February or March, 1975 as the "most difficult" months.

Improvement in the availability of mortgage funds in local markets covered by the respondents was noted most frequently in January, 1975, followed by February and March, 1975.

John Markay

An overwhelming 84 per cent of RELO members responding reported ample mortgage funds available in their markets in April-June, 1975. Fourteen per cent characterized availability as "fair" and only two per cent as "tight."

Looking forward to July-September, 1975, ample funds were predicted in their localities by 73 per cent, a fair supply was foreseen by 23 per cent and tight money by four per cent.

Of the 58.7 per cent of the survey respondents who expected mortgage money supply to be adversely affected by federal deficit borrowing, about a quarter thought effects would be noted by the end of August, 1975. The remainder predicted federal competition in the money market would be encountered by mortgage borrowers in fall, 1975, or early winter, 1975-76.

Dunne speaks at seminar

In an effort to co-operate with the tax payers of Cook County, Dr. Dennis P. Dunne, director of communications of the Assessors Office of Cook County, spoke at a seminar sponsored by Apartment Information Service Company.

The highlight of the proceedings was the question and answer period which followed Dr. Dunne's speech. "Besides learning about real estate taxes in general," Dr. Dunne remarked, "people are interested in discussing their own particular problems. Mr. Tully tries to make his office as accessible as possible."

Apartment Information Service Company is a new service formed to assist owners of small apartment buildings manage their own property more profitably. Among some of the other notables in attendance were Rep. James P. McCourt, (R-11th) and Sen. Michael I. Brady (D.-11th).

Beauty shop leases space

Rainy Day People Haircutters Beauty Shop is slated to open this October in Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, Schaumburg, according to developer-leasing/management agent J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc. of Des Plaines.

The center's latest tenant is affiliated with the established Rainy Day People Beauty Shop in Arlington Heights.

Woodfield Commons is located at the southwest corner of Golf and Meacham Roads, Schaumburg — approximately 1,000 feet west of Woodfield Mall Shopping Center.

If only all townhomes were like Willow Woods.

What makes a townhome at Willow Woods so unusual is that it looks like a home. It's built entirely of brick. With an attached garage. A private fenced yard, complete sodded lawn and foundation plantings.

Inside, it feels like a home. Because it includes amenities like carpeting and drapery, individually controlled heat and air conditioning units, Westinghouse dishwasher, refrigerator and range, disposal, dark-tone wood kitchen cabinets, 1½ baths with vinyl decorator walls, utility room, insulated windows with screens and sliding glass doors in the master bedroom.

As part of the Village of Streamwood, Willow Woods is convenient to parks, a pool, recreation center, schools, shopping and transportation. In fact, we've got everything you need. And no other townhouse comes close.

You Could Put Off Building Until Next Year. Or Build a Capp Home Now.

In today's world, finding a new home you can afford is a nightmare. But if you have a lot, or can get one, you're on your way to what you want.

- Finish-It-Yourself makes the difference and saves thousands. Capp does the heavy work, erects the house and completely encloses it. Then you take over, and save yourself thousands. You can get everything you need, right down to the last nail, from us.
- There's still time to build this year—before inflation forces you to settle for less. The cost of housing is going up again next year. If you order your Finish-It-Yourself House now, you can avoid these increases.
- 79 models to choose from, or make changes to. You can modify any of our 79 models to suit your family, your way of life or your budget.
- You can count on Capp quality. We've been building quality homes for almost 30 years, and we're too proud to change now. You'll also get the service you want, when you want it.
- Don't put it off. Put it up! Send for your free 104 page full color Idea Book today. Do it now!
- Mail the coupon or call your local Capp sales representative.

At The Crossings, each day brings a new discovery.

The Crossings isn't an ordinary townhome community in an ordinary town. In fact, living there brings constant new discoveries.

Just a simple bike ride down one of the meandering, tree-lined roads will uncover a peaceful way to spend a Sunday afternoon—complete with shady country estates, cool streams, and glimpses of livestock from nearby farms.

You'll find farm-fresh vegetables and fruits all season long in the Buffalo Grove area. Roadside stands are a convenience—not a commodity.

Something as insignificant as a mushroom farm or as rustic as the nearby antique village of Long Grove makes every day a new and different experience.

But best of all, living at The Crossings means you'll discover all this and more, every day. The nearness of unspoiled country acres, yet the convenience of recreation in your own backyard. Swimming; tennis; a private country club with a health spa and townhomes built on lots that include creeksides and lakeviews.

Why not see what an out-of-the-ordinary townhome community has to offer. Come back to the country. Discover the Crossings.

2 and 3 bedroom townhomes in Buffalo Grove, with garage and basement from $47,500. 7¾% financing available on selected townhomes.

Models open 7 days a week, 10AM to 6PM. Phone: 634-0660. From NW Tollway take Rt. 53 to Dundee Rd. exit. Follow Rt. 53 signs north for 5 miles to entrance.

JOHN PORCELLI, sales manager at Hoskins Ford, 175 N. Arlington Heights Rd. in Elk Grove Village, stands before this Chevelle which has been split in half to show the various moving parts as well as the interior of the car. A catalytic converter, a complete engine and several movies explaining car parts are also on display through Sept. 29 at the dealership.

Building leased

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates reports the leasing of the one story 72,500 square foot building located at 1800 Touhy, Elk Grove Village, to J. J. Tourek Manufacturing Company. The new facility will be used to supplement an existing building in Chicago. The Elk Grove property will ultimately be the main production facility.

Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates and Mac Reynolds of Van Vlissingen & Company were cooperating brokers in the long term lease transaction valued in excess of $1,500,000.

Attorneys in the transaction were Robert Patterson of Hopkins, Sutter, Melroy, Davis & Crowmartie representing J. J. Tourek Manufacturing Company and out of state counsel representing all other parties in the transaction.

Joel James

Top lister named

Joel James, associate with Jack L. Kemmerly Real Estate, located in Streamwood, was top lister for the month of August as announced by Jack L. Kemmerly, president of the firm.

James attended Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa and the University of Iowa, Iowa City.

James and wife Gwen Ann reside in Bartlett.

Lieberman offers incentive plan

An incentive program for all sales associates has been announced by Lieberman Inc., Realtors for their Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg offices. A trip to London, four other trips, and many other valuable prizes may be awarded.

According to President Stan Lieberman, "This is not a contest because our salespeople are not competing against each other but are working to earn incentive points which potentially allows all of them to win trips or other prizes." The incentive program began September 1 and will run through November 30, 1975. All of the trips are for two people, include air fare where applicable, hotel accommodations and some meals.

The prizes are as follows: One week in London, one week in Florida, a weekend in Las Vegas, a weekend at the Playboy Club at Lake Geneva, a weekend at the Lincolnshire Marriott, a black and white TV set, tape recorder and dinner for two at Le Gourmet.

Already several sales associates have earned enough points through listings and sales to qualify for prizes. All prizes will be announced at the firm's annual holiday dinner/dance in December.

Dunbar Lakes has room for more.
More of everything you like to do.

At Dunbar Lakes there's room to ride a bicycle on winding paths. Room to stroll beneath tall trees. Room to sail on your own lake. Room to spread out on the grass for a picnic.

And now the Dunbar Lakes sports complex is open, which gives you a place to swim, play tennis and work out in a health club.

There's room for more inside our homes, too. Our two and three bedroom townhomes are spacious and comfortable. And each comes complete with air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting, one-and-a-half baths, washer, dryer and deluxe kitchen appliances, including a dishwasher. They all include attached garages and many have full basements.

Prices start at just $31,490, and you can collect the amount of your 1975 homebuyer's tax credit in cash the day you buy.

Come to Dunbar Lakes this weekend. You'll see more of everything.

ARTHUR RUBLOFF & COMPANY Managing Agents

Palatine

Dear Apartment Shopper,

Inverleith residents are discerning. They are from other apartments and expect a change for the better. They know our brick and concrete construction provides quieter, safer living. They expect no waiting to play in our tennis courts as this is not a giant apartment complex. They do expect their management to care and be receptive to their needs and in return are more considerate of their building and each other. Needless to say, they expect the usual amenities, dishwasher, carpeting, balcony, etc. and would put up with nothing less. Although they may be able to afford more, they know that an apartment almost 1,200 sq. feet, with two bedrooms, and two baths is real value.

If you too, are discerning, please come and see for yourself.

Sincerely,
Inverleith

P.S. Inverleith is a distinctive new building set in 13 acres of park like setting. Minutes to golf, forest preserve and C&NW, located on Quentin Rd. ¼ mi. S. of Rt. 14. Models open daily 11 to 5, or call 359-6633.

ARTHUR RUBLOFF & COMPANY Managing Agents

Dear Apartment Shopper,

Inverleith residents are discerning. They are from other apartments and expect a change for the better. They know our brick and concrete construction provides quieter, safer living. They expect no waiting to play in our tennis courts as this is not a giant apartment complex. They do expect their management to care and be receptive to their needs and in return are more considerate of their building and each other. Needless to say, they expect the usual amenities, dishwasher, carpeting, balcony, etc. and would put up with nothing less. Although they may be able to afford more, they know that an apartment almost 1,200 sq. feet, with two bedrooms, and two baths is real value.

If you too, are discerning, please come and see for yourself.

Sincerely,
Inverleith

P.S. Inverleith is a distinctive new building set in 13 acres of park like setting. Minutes to golf, forest preserve and C&NW, located on Quentin Rd. ¼ mi. S. of Rt. 14. Models open daily 11 to 5, or call 359-6633.

Introducing downtown Arlington Heights'

More like Garden Terraces

Imagine . . . an apartment where both your living room and bedroom open onto a sunny, private patio or balcony through expansive sliding glass doors. What a beautiful way to have breakfast or entertain friends . . . overlooking a tranquil, landscaped courtyard and lush green lawns.

All the conveniences of an established community... only steps away!

Just outside the Courtyards of Arlington Heights' park-like setting, the amenities of the village of Arlington Heights are conveniently at hand—the main business district, movie theater, banks, municipal services and all the stores and shops one would expect of a fine established community. In addition, several Park District facilities are close by—tennis courts, swimming pools and year-round recreational programs. And Downtown Chicago is only 40 minutes away via nearby commuter trains of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad.

RENTALS STARTING AT $215

Introducing downtown Arlington Heights'

More like Garden Terraces

Imagine...an apartment where both your living room and bedroom open onto a sunny, private patio or balcony through expansive sliding glass doors. What a beautiful way to have breakfast or entertain friends... overlooking a tranquil, landscaped courtyard and lush green lawns.

All the conveniences of an established community... only steps away!

Just outside the Courtyards of Arlington Heights' park-like setting, the amenities of the village of Arlington Heights are conveniently at hand—the main business district, movie theater, banks, municipal services and all the stores and shops one would expect of a fine established community. In addition, several Park District facilities are close by—tennis courts, swimming pools and year-round recreational programs. And Downtown Chicago is only 40 minutes away via nearby commuter trains of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad.

RENTALS STARTING AT $215

Deluxe one and two-bedroom apartments include:

- Patio or balcony
- Air conditioning
- Wall-to-wall carpeting
- Tappan appliances including dishwasher
- Kitchen pantry
- Cultured marble vanities and window sills
- Master TV antenna
- Insulated glass sliding doors
- Use of convenient laundry rooms on premises

Evans reaches million mark

Robert Evans

For the fourth time, Robert Evans of Quinlan and Tyson's Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect area office has sold $1 million in real estate.

Evans went over the magic figure in August, it was announced by Daniel Caporusso, office sales manager.

A licensed real estate broker, Evans previously topped $1 million in 1971, 1972 and 1974. He now has a career sales total of more than $6 million with Quinlan and Tyson.

Evans, who holds the G.R.I. designation, was named to the firm's President's Circle in 1974 for his outstanding achievements.

Evans and his wife, Betty, have a son, Charles, and live in Des Plaines.

Merrill Packard named manager

Merrill Packard

Merrill "Sandy" Packard is now manager of the Jack L. Kemmerly Real Estate office located in Buffalo Grove.

Packard has been with Kemmerly Real Estate for 5½ years, one of those as manager of the Streamwood office.

Packard has taught real estate courses at Conant High School for the past few years. He is a graduate of the Arizona School of Real Estae in Scottsdale, Arizona.

He and his wife Gertrude live in Hoffman Estates. They have six children.

Midas celebrates first anniversary

"October will officially mark our first anniversary," said Kenneth Ryan, manager of the Midas Automotive Center in Palatine. Castady hits 1½ million

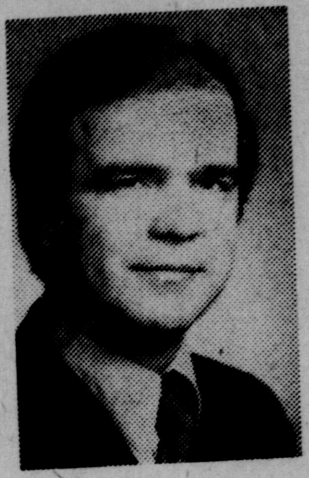
Terence A. Bolger, president of T. A. Bolger, Realtors has announced that Elk Grove sales associate George



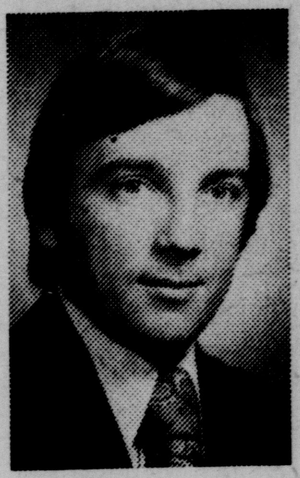
George Castady

Castady leads the company in sales at the end of the first half of 1975 with just over 1½ million dollars in sales volume.

Castady, who joined Bolger Realtors Elk Grove staff 16 months ago, was also named "Sales Leader of the Month" for the sixth month in a row. He graduated last year from Chicago Bible College and lives in Elk Grove with his wife Jeanette and their three children.

Dvorak named sales leader

Joe Dvorak was named "Salesman of the Month" for July by John Wotring, vice president of T. A. Bolger,



Joe Dvorak

Realtors, Schaumburg office. Dvorak started in real estate sales in February 1975, and has already sold over three-quarters of a million dollars worth of real estate.

Prior to real estate sales, he was in equipment financing and leasing sales. He and his wife, Carol, presently live in Schaumburg.

Three join staff

firm's Buffalo Grove area office.

They are Joanne M. Ryan, Kay Hynds and Estelle Weirich.

Their appointments were announced by Robert Griffith, sales manager of the office.

Q&T's Buffalo Grove Area office in August was doubled in size to accommodate more sales representatives to handle the ever-increasing amount of business, Griffith said.

Mrs. Ryan has almost three years of experience selling real estate in the Buffalo Grove area. She has been a resident of the area for 10 years.

Mrs. Ryan and her husband, James W., have one son and four daughters. The family lives in Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Hynds, a licensed real estate broker, has been selling northwest suburban real estate since 1971. She has completed one course leading to her G.R.I. designation.

A member of St. Hilary's Women's Club and the Cambridge Women's Club, Mrs. Hynds attended the University of Iowa and Barat College. She graduated from New Trier High School.

A resident of Buffalo Grove for nine years, Mrs. Hynds has five sons. She resides in Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Weirich, a realtor with two years of experience in the area, is active in the St. Mary's Women's Club and the Carmen Parents Club.

She and her husband, Patrick, have three daughters. The family lives in Long Grove.

Castady hits 1½ million

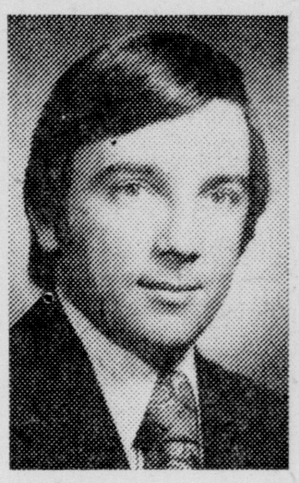
George Castady

Castady, who joined Bolger Realtors Elk Grove staff 16 months ago, was also named "Sales Leader of the Month" for the sixth month in a row. He graduated last year from Chicago Bible College and lives in Elk Grove with his wife Jeanette and their three children.

Dvorak named sales leader

Joe Dvorak was named "Salesman of the Month" for July by John Wotring, vice president of T. A. Bolger, Realtors, Schaumburg office. Dvorak started in real estate sales in February 1975, and has already sold over three-quarters of a million dollars worth of real estate.



Joe Dvorak

Prior to real estate sales, he was in equipment financing and leasing sales. He and his wife, Carol, presently live in Schaumburg.

Three join staff

Kay Hynds

They are Joanne M. Ryan, Kay Hynds and Estelle Weirich.

Their appointments were announced by Robert Griffith, sales manager of the office.

Q&T's Buffalo Grove Area office in August was doubled in size to accommodate more sales representatives to handle the ever-increasing amount of business, Griffith said.

Mrs. Ryan has almost three years of experience selling real estate in the Buffalo Grove area. She has been a resident of the area for 10 years.

Mrs. Ryan and her husband, James W., have one son and four daughters. The family lives in Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Hynds, a licensed real estate broker, has been selling northwest suburban real estate since 1971. She has completed one course leading to her G.R.I. designation.

A member of St. Hilary's Women's Club and the Cambridge Women's Club, Mrs. Hynds attended the University of Iowa and Barat College. She graduated from New Trier High School.

A resident of Buffalo Grove for nine years, Mrs. Hynds has five sons. She resides in Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Weirich, a realtor with two years of experience in the area, is active in the St. Mary's Women's Club and the Carmen Parents Club.

She and her husband, Patrick, have three daughters. The family lives in Long Grove.

Philip LoPresti

Philip F. LoPresti has joined the staff of Gladstone, Realtors' Elk Grove Village office as a sales associate. LoPresti is a graduate of De La Salle Institute and attended Southwest Community College. He studied real estate at the Gladstone School of Real Estate and has passed the State of Illinois examination for a Real Estate Salesman's license.

A Chicago resident, LoPresti is an active member of St. Michael's Young Men's Club. Among the sports he enjoys are softball, boating, water skiing, camping and fishing. He and his wife, Marcia Anne, have one son.

Auto managers to meet tonight

The Automotive Business Managers Association of greater Chicagoland will hold their monthly meeting tonight at Orgo's Restaurant in Hillside, 6:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Mr. James Hendricks of the Employers Association of Greater Chicago.

Dvorak takes post at Lincoln Federal

The announcement was made by Lincoln Federal Executive Vice President Thomas A. Kinst.

Dvorak previously served for 24 years with Second Federal Savings of Chicago, attaining the rank of assistant vice president and administrative assistant to the president.

He is a past president of the Public Relations Society for Savings and Loan Associations.

Dvorak has served as member and chairman of the finance committee of the American Cancer Society and a member of the finance committee of the Boy Scouts of America. He has also been active with the Girl Scouts, Lung Association, Heart Fund, Chamber of Commerce, Real Estate Board and the Board of Financial Institutions.

In North Riverside, where he and his family live, he was elected general chairman of the village's Golden Jubilee and is an appointed public official. He was instrumental in the development of a recreational complex now under construction in the village.

Sid Goldman lists $400,000

Sid Goldman

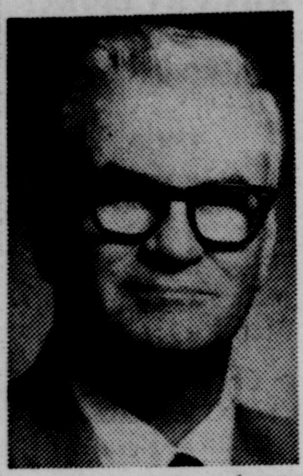
Goldman has been a salesman with Kemmerly Real Estate for the past 15 months and sold over a million dollars in real estate his first year.

A graduate of Northwestern University, Goldman lives in Palatine with his wife Sylvia and their two sons.

Jack L. Kemmerly has 10 offices in the northwest suburbs with another office to open in Lake Zurich in January.

Harold Collins joins sales staff

Century 21-Countryside Real Estate is happy to announce the addition of Harold "Hal" Collins to its sales staff. He and his wife Gertrude are long time residents of Mt. Prospect.



Harold Collins

He has been active in real estate in the northwest suburban area for many years and holds the GRI designation. Collins was a major in the United States Air Force and is a retired Command Pilot. In his first full month with Century 21-Countryside Real Estate he had sales in excess of $250,000.

Century 21-Countryside has two offices in the M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service located in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Philip LoPresti

Philip F. LoPresti has joined the staff of Gladstone, Realtors' Elk Grove Village office as a sales associate. LoPresti is a graduate of De La Salle Institute and attended Southwest Community College. He studied real estate at the Gladstone School of Real Estate and has passed the State of Illinois examination for a Real Estate Salesman's license.

A Chicago resident, LoPresti is an active member of St. Michael's Young Men's Club. Among the sports he enjoys are softball, boating, water skiing, camping and fishing. He and his wife, Marcia Anne, have one son.

Auto managers to meet tonight

The Automotive Business Managers Association of greater Chicagoland will hold their monthly meeting tonight at Orgo's Restaurant in Hillside, 6:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Mr. James Hendricks of the Employers Association of Greater Chicago.

Dvorak takes post at Lincoln Federal

The announcement was made by Lincoln Federal Executive Vice President Thomas A. Kinst.

Dvorak previously served for 24 years with Second Federal Savings of Chicago, attaining the rank of assistant vice president and administrative assistant to the president.

He is a past president of the Public Relations Society for Savings and Loan Associations.

Dvorak has served as member and chairman of the finance committee of the American Cancer Society and a member of the finance committee of the Boy Scouts of America. He has also been active with the Girl Scouts, Lung Association, Heart Fund, Chamber of Commerce, Real Estate Board and the Board of Financial Institutions.

In North Riverside, where he and his family live, he was elected general chairman of the village's Golden Jubilee and is an appointed public official. He was instrumental in the development of a recreational complex now under construction in the village.

Sid Goldman lists $400,000

Sid Goldman

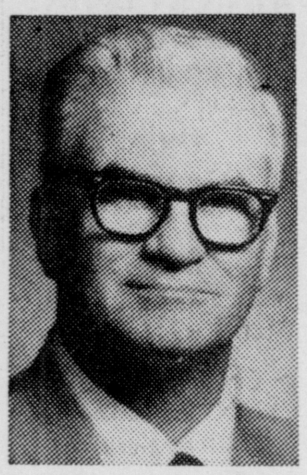
Sid Goldman, associate with the Jack L. Kemmerly Real Estate office located in Buffalo Grove, has sold and listed over $400,000 in real estate in the month of August, as announced by Jack L. Kemmerly, president of the firm.

Goldman has been a salesman with Kemmerly Real Estate for the past 15 months and sold over a million dollars in real estate his first year.

A graduate of Northwestern University, Goldman lives in Palatine with his wife Sylvia and their two sons.

Jack L. Kemmerly has 10 offices in the northwest suburbs with another office to open in Lake Zurich in January.

Harold Collins joins sales staff



Harold Collins

Century 21-Countryside Real Estate is happy to announce the addition of Harold "Hal" Collins to its sales staff. He and his wife Gertrude are long time residents of Mt. Prospect.

He has been active in real estate in the northwest suburban area for many years and holds the GRI designation. Collins was a major in the United States Air Force and is a retired Command Pilot. In his first full month with Century 21-Countryside Real Estate he had sales in excess of $250,000.

Century 21-Countryside has two offices in the M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service located in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

COMBINED LOCATION AND DESIGN STUDY INITIATED

The Illinois Department of Transportation acting through its District One office, has begun a study to re-evaluate a proposed improvement of Dundee Road (F.A.S. Route 115), from Rand Road (U.S. Route 12) west to Illinois Route 59, a distance of approximately 6.5 miles in northwestern Cook County. Informational meetings will be held with the general public and interested agencies at various stages of the project. This improvement will be designed in accordance with all Federal and State of Illinois requirements. As alternate alignments are sufficiently developed, both Public Meetings and a Public Hearing will be held.

Persons or interested agencies wishing to be informed of these informational meetings as well as the Public Hearing, may write the Illinois Department of Transportation, Location Studies Section, 1000 Plaza Drive, Schaumburg, Illinois, 60172.

COMBINED LOCATION AND DESIGN STUDY INITIATED

The Illinois Department of Transportation acting through its District One office, has begun a study to re-evaluate a proposed improvement of Dundee Road (F.A.S. Route 115), from Rand Road (U.S. Route 12) west to Illinois Route 59, a distance of approximately 6.5 miles in northwestern Cook County. Informational meetings will be held with the general public and interested agencies at various stages of the project. This improvement will be designed in accordance with all Federal and State of Illinois requirements. As alternate alignments are sufficiently developed, both Public Meetings and a Public Hearing will be held.

Persons or interested agencies wishing to be informed of these informational meetings as well as the Public Hearing, may write the Illinois Department of Transportation, Location Studies Section, 1000 Plaza Drive, Schaumburg, Illinois, 60172.

Refurbish furniture

Does your outdoor furniture need refurbishing? If it's metal, check for cracks in the old finish. Moisture may have seeped into the cracks and caused rust to form on the metal. Remove any cracked and peeling paint away all traces of rust and corrosion. Wipe the surface with a solvent-dampened rag. The National Paint and Coatings Association recommends spot-priming in areas that have been sanded to bare metal. After the prime coat dries, apply an exterior metal enamel.

Refurbish furniture

Does your outdoor furniture need refurbishing? If it's metal, check for cracks in the old finish. Moisture may have seeped into the cracks and caused rust to form on the metal. Remove any cracked and peeling paint away all traces of rust and corrosion. Wipe the surface with a solvent-dampened rag. The National Paint and Coatings Association recommends spot-priming in areas that have been sanded to bare metal. After the prime coat dries, apply an exterior metal enamel.

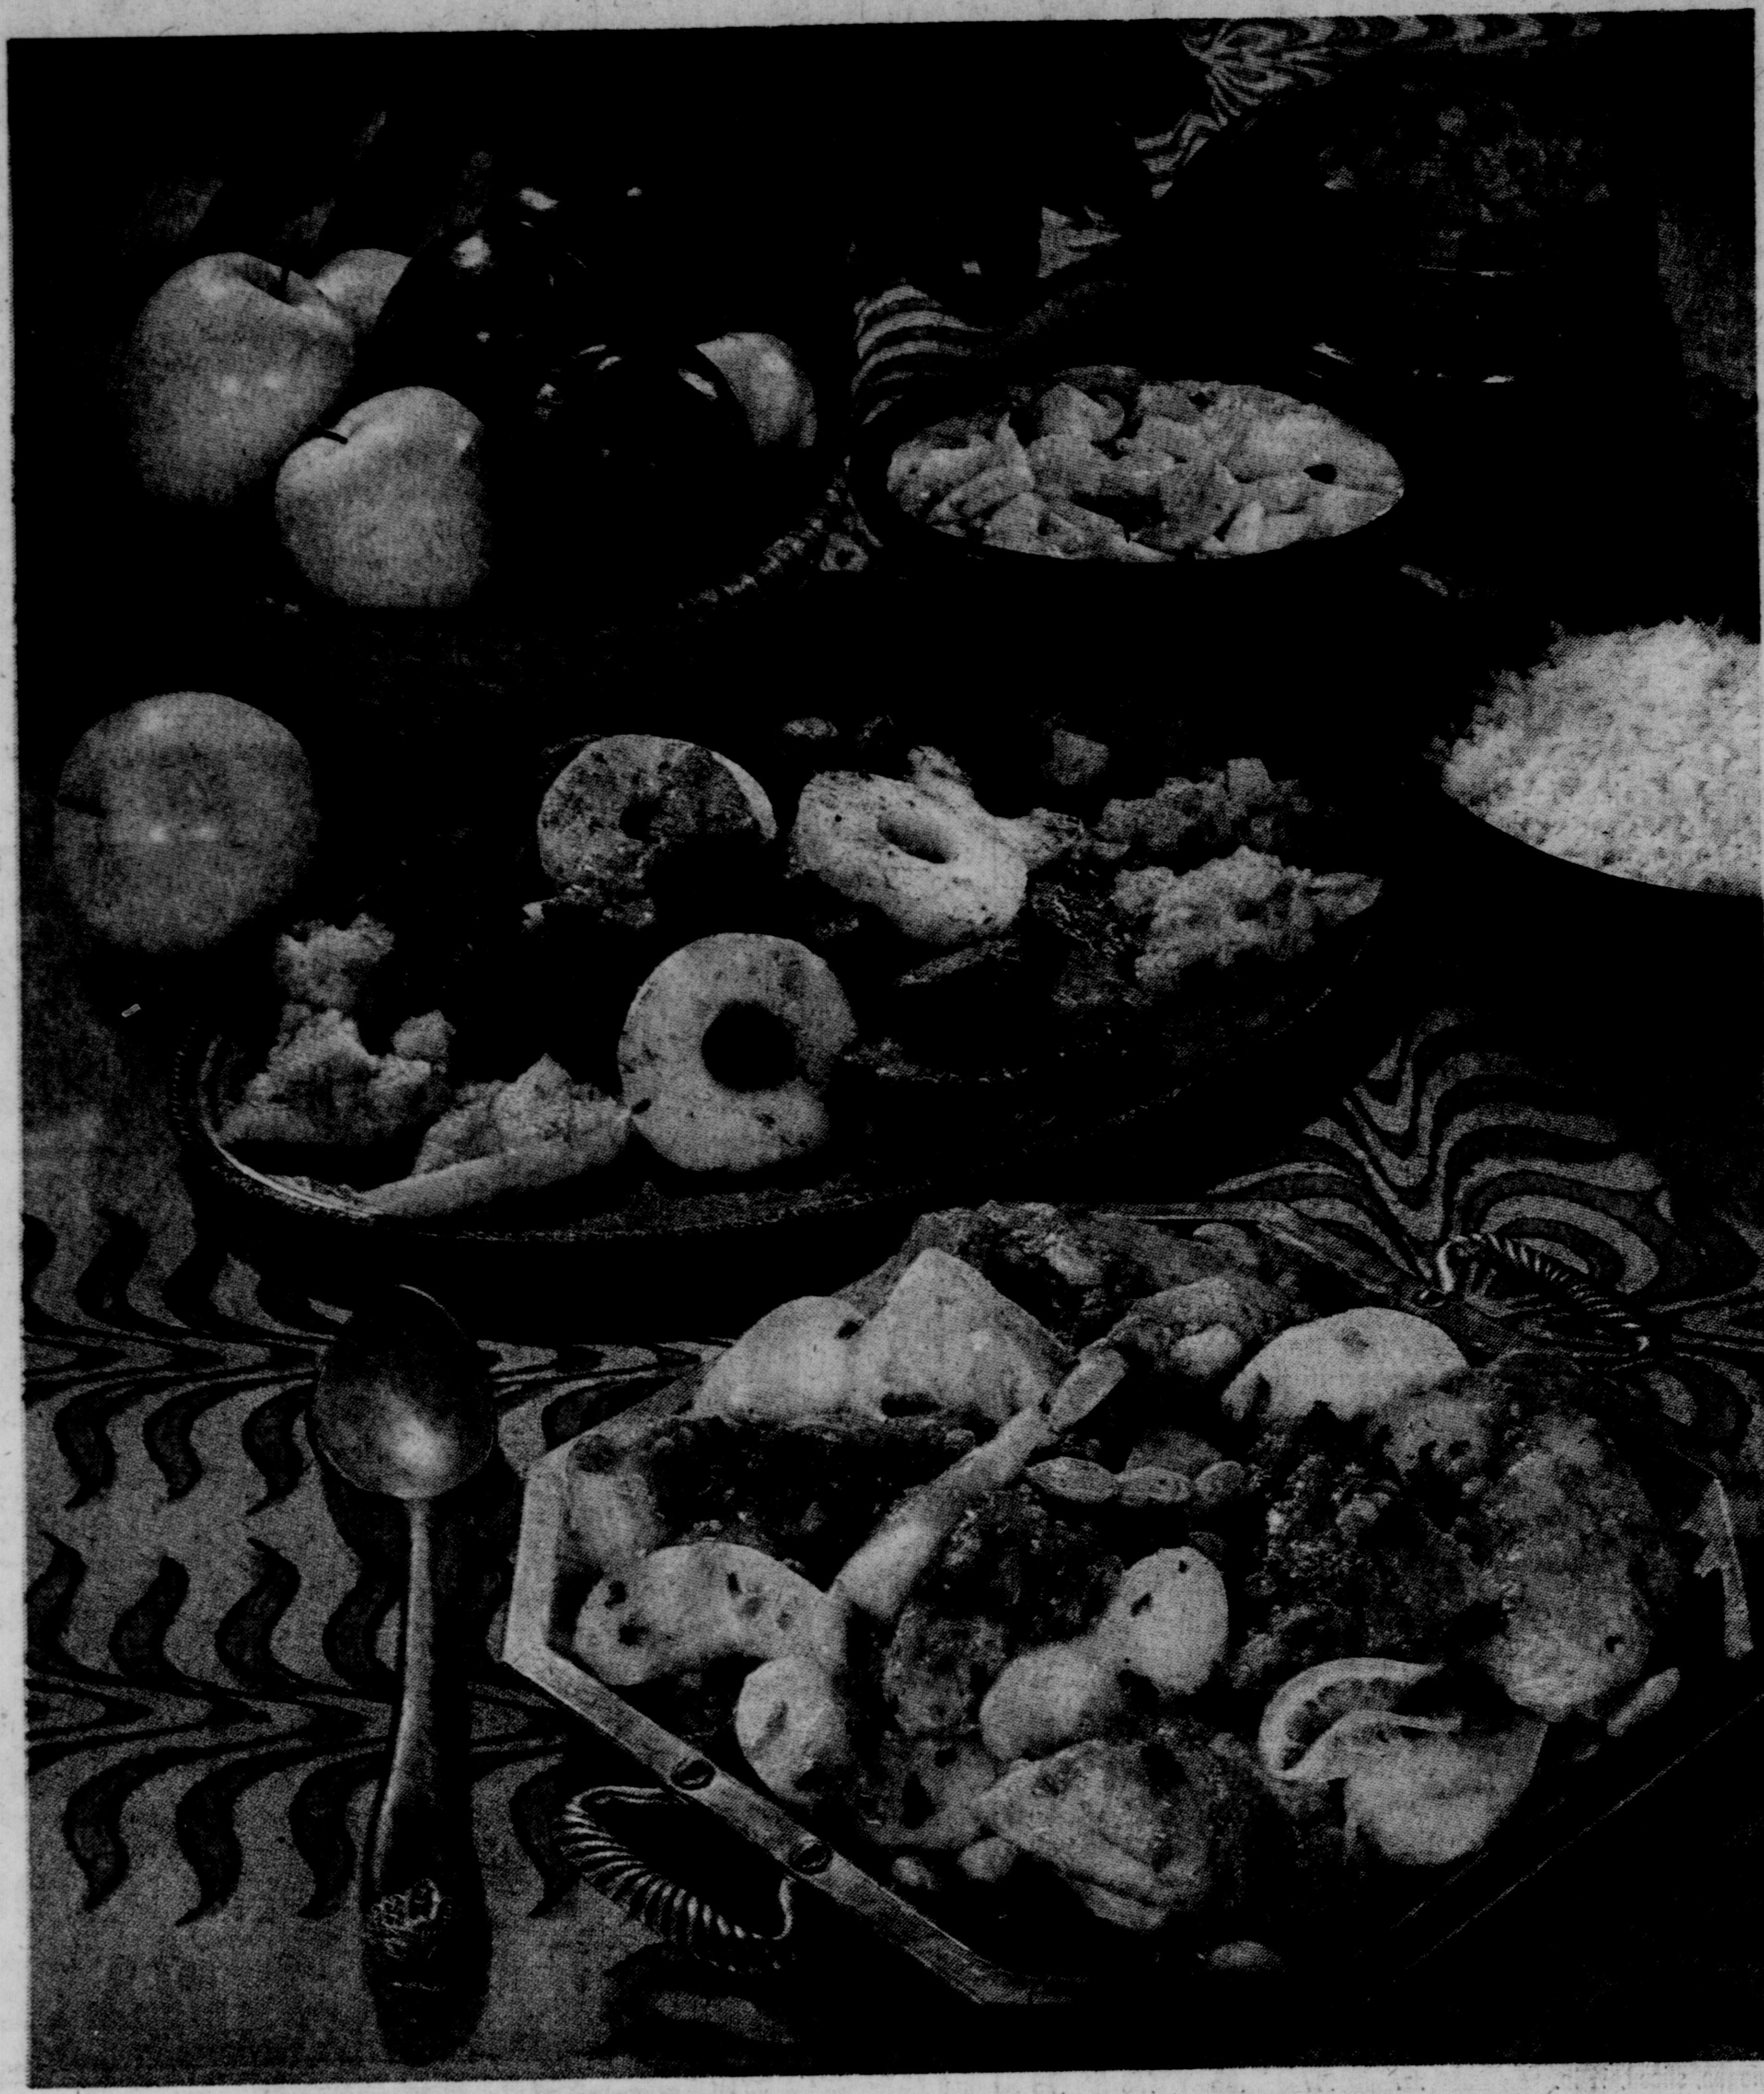
American Apples with a foreign accent



With apples in plentiful supply this year, it is only sensible to incorporate them in the menu. Exotic and unusual, these Western adaptations of foreign main dishes and desserts offer the fresh apple flavor in a unique combination of foods and spices.

APPLE-BANANA BAKE

1 apple
¼ cup sliced dates
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon salt
2 medium bananas
2 tablespoons melted butter

Pare, core and coarsely chop apple. Combine in small saucepan with dates, water, lemon juice, honey and salt. Bring to a boil, and simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Peel bananas, cut in halves lengthwise, then crosswise, and place in shallow baking dish. Brush with butter, and top with apple mixture. Drizzle with remaining butter. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees) 8 to 10 minutes just until bananas are tender. Makes 4 servings.

MOROCCAN CHICKEN with APPLES

2 tablespoons blanched almonds
2 tablespoons oil
6 frying chicken pieces (about 1½ pounds)
¼ cup sliced green onion
1 (8 ounce) can whole tomatoes
1 teaspoon brown sugar
½ teaspoon thyme, crumbled
½ teaspoon salt
3 drops tabasco sauce
½ lemon, sliced (4 to 6 slices)
2 medium-sized apples
½ tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Toast almonds in 1 teaspoon oil in a 10-inch skillet with a cover, stirring frequently. Remove almonds from pan and set aside. Add remaining oil to skillet, and brown chicken pieces until golden, sprinkling with onion when almost browned. Combine tomatoes, sugar, thyme, salt and tabasco, and pour over chicken. Top with lemon slices. Heat to boiling, cover, and turn heat low. Simmer 15 minutes. Meanwhile, pare and core apples, and cut in 8ths to measure 2 cups. Add apples to chicken, and cook 10 minutes longer. Remove chicken and apples to heated serving platter. Mix cornstarch with a tablespoon cold water, and stir into liquid remaining in skillet. Cook, stirring, until clear and thickened. Pour over chicken, and sprinkle with parsley and toasted almonds. Makes 4 servings.

IRANIAN BEEF with APPLE-BANANA BAKE

2 pounds lean stewing beef, cut in 2-inch cubes
1 tablespoon oil
1 (6-inch) cucumber
1 beef bouillon cube, crumbled
1 teaspoon dill weed
½ teaspoon oregano, crumbled
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 medium-large apples
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
1 (8 ounce) container plain yogurt
Hot cooked rice
Apple Banana Bake

Brown beef slowly on all sides in oil. Pare and coarsely grate cucumber to measure ⅔ cup. Combine with crumbled bouillon cube, dill weed, oregano, garlic powder and salt, and pour over beef. Bring to a boil, turn heat low, and cover. Simmer 1 hour 30 to 40 minutes, until beef is tender. Pare and core apples. Cut into half-inch thick rings. Add to beef last 10 minutes of cooking. Remove beef and apples to serving dish with a slotted spoon, and keep warm. Stir cornstarch into yogurt. Add to liquid remaining in pan, and cook, stirring, until sauce boils and thickens. Pour over beef. Serve with hot cooked rice and Apple Banana Bake. Makes 4 servings.

APPLE-SHRIMP CURRY

1 (13 ounce) can evaporated milk
½ cup water
¼ cup flaked coconut
2 apples
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
⅓ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup thinly sliced celery
¼ cup raisins
3 cups shrimp, frozen, fresh or canned or
1 (12 ounce) package frozen shrimp, peeled and deveined
2½ teaspoons curry powder
1 clove garlic, pressed
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
3 level tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Hot cooked rice
Chopped peanuts
Fresh Apple Chutney

Combine milk and water, and pour over coconut. Let stand 30 minutes, then drain well, squeezing out all liquid. Reserve liquid for curry, and coconut for Fresh Apple Chutney. Pare, core and coarsely dice apples. Melt butter in skillet. Add onion, celery, and raisins and saute until vegetables are tender. Add apples, shrimp, curry powder, garlic, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring over moderate heat just until apples are tender. Sprinkle with flour, and stir in. Add the reserved coconut milk and lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Serve over hot cooked rice, topping each serving with chopped peanuts. Pass Apple Chutney separately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Note: Curry may be accompanied by any desired condiments such as: raisins, coconut, diced cucumber, chopped tomatoes or onion, sliced radishes, peanuts or almonds, etc.

FRESH APPLE CHUTNEY

2 apples
½ cup bottled chutney
¼ cup flaked coconut
¼ cup sliced green onion
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt

Pare, core, and coarsely grate apples. Mix with all remaining ingredients. Makes 2 cups chutney sauce.

Speaking about food

Litton: close the urban-rural gap

Consumers are suspicious of food price increaes because prices go up suddenly, unlike the gradual price increase of most other products and services, said U.S. Cong. Jerry Litton-Missouri.

In statements printed in the Congressional Record last autumn, Litton said that the demand for food in the United States is extremely inelastic — meaning that consumers still buy comparably the same quantities of food regardless of increases or decreases in price. (There is, after all, a certain amount of food each person must eat to live and a certain point where each person can't eat any more food.)

"In the case of food, increases in price are not offset by corresponding decreases in purchases because people must eat," Litton said.

"WITH LESS FOOD to go around and people trying to buy as much as always, this quickly bids the price up. Since increases in price are not offset by corresponding decreases in purchases, we have food shortages," he said.

Litton said a one per cent decrease in food supply results in a three to four per cent increase in price. He also said that the farmer received 74 cents an hour for his labor in 1971 and 81 cents an hour in 1972 — well below the minimum wage set up by the government.

One of the major reasons Americans had lower food prices in the 1950s and 1960s was because of the "extremely low return the farmer received," said Litton.

In the 1960s the average after-tax income of farm people was 67 per cent as much as the non-farm average. "This is in spite of the heavy investment the farmer must have in his business," Litton said.

The "investment" includes such items as modern machinery, livestock, feed, seeds, fertilizer, gasoline, veterinary services and hired help. And with the prices of these items increasing, the amount of debt owed by the farmer has increased nearly 500 per cent in the last 20 years, Litton said.

"UNFORTUNATELY, there is a general feeling in Congress and perhaps in the cuntry that legislation which helps the farmer must hurt the consumer, and that legislation aimed at solving urban problems is not to be supported by Congressmen from rural areas," he said.

Litton said he wanted better understanding between rural and urban America.

Herald food price survey

Although sugar prices rose sharply earlier this summer, they appear to have stabilized somewhat and at levels substantially lower than six months ago when a five-pound bag retailed at $2.89.

A Herald Monday survey of five area chain markets also showed a moderate decline in poultry and beef prices from last month. Eggs continued to creep up in cost, as did pork, both probably due to decreases in production reported by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

At Dominick's lean ground beef was down 20 cents from a month ago and potatoes decreased 50 cents. However, prices on all dairy products increased and eggs were up 20 cents since the last survey.

Beef and poultry were down at Eagle and pork held steady compared with last month. Moderate increases in price were seen throughout the dairy and egg section, but prices were still somewhat lower than those at the other stores surveyed.

Lean ground beef was up a dime at Kohl's, but other beef cuts showed moderate declines from late August. Comparable trends at Dominick's and Eagle were seen in the dairy and egg departments. Potatoes dropped 10 cents but still topped prices at the other stores.

At The Treasury beef and pork were up substantially from last month with poultry holding steady. Apples were a good buy and Folger's two-pound can of coffee dipped to $1.99.

Cabbage was only a dime a pound at the Budget Food Store and pears were only 19 cents a pound. Cereals and dry goods were also generally lower than at the other stores surveyed.

Speaking about food

Litton: close the urban-rural gap

Consumers are suspicious of food price increaes because prices go up suddenly, unlike the gradual price increase of most other products and services, said U.S. Cong. Jerry Litton-Missouri.

In statements printed in the Congressional Record last autumn, Litton said that the demand for food in the United States is extremely inelastic — meaning that consumers still buy comparably the same quantities of food regardless of increases or decreases in price. (There is, after all, a certain amount of food each person must eat to live and a certain point where each person can't eat any more food.)

"In the case of food, increases in price are not offset by corresponding decreases in purchases because people must eat," Litton said.

"WITH LESS FOOD to go around and people trying to buy as much as always, this quickly bids the price up. Since increases in price are not offset by corresponding decreases in purchases, we have food shortages," he said.

Litton said a one per cent decrease in food supply results in a three to four per cent increase in price. He also said that the farmer received 74 cents an hour for his labor in 1971 and 81 cents an hour in 1972 — well below the minimum wage set up by the government.

One of the major reasons Americans had lower food prices in the 1950s and 1960s was because of the "extremely low return the farmer received," said Litton.

IN THE 1950s, the average after-tax income of farm people averaged only 54 per cent as much as the average for non-farm people.

In the 1960s the average after-tax income of farm people was 67 per cent as much as the non-farm average. "This is in spite of the heavy investment the farmer must have in his business," Litton said.

The "investment" includes such items as modern machinery, livestock, feed, seeds, fertilizer, gasoline, veterinary services and hired help. And with the prices of these items increasing, the amount of debt owed by the farmer has increased nearly 500 per cent in the last 20 years, Litton said.

"UNFORTUNATELY, there is a general feeling in Congress and perhaps in the cuntry that legislation which helps the farmer must hurt the consumer, and that legislation aimed at solving urban problems is not to be supported by Congressmen from rural areas," he said.

Litton said he wanted better understanding between rural and urban America.

The how-to of picking apples

There is a bumper apple crop this year and a plentiful supply, according to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. Many varieties are available to choose from. Generally the sweeter, less tart and more attractive varieties are considered eating apples, while the tarter, less attractive ones are selected for cooking purposes.

The Delicious, for example, is considered as an eating apple, while the Rome Beauty reigns as a cooking apple, although Delicious can be cooked and Rome Beauties eaten as is. Other apples are considered to be all-purpose, such as Jonathan, Staymans and Grimes Golden.

Not enough red color, too much green, scars from limb "rubs," and too much russet (rough skin of brownish color) are factors which detract from the eye appeal of the apples and therefore influence the grading. Yet these apples do have menu value, and because of their lower grade often are very attractive apple bargains which can be included in the budget to great advantage.

SIZE, TOO, IS considered to be a major factor. Small apples obviously will not yield as much fruit due to the core and peeling waste, and thus are less preferred than those of just right size.

Ripeness is also important. Over-ripeness causes apples to taste bland and be mushy, while immature apples tend to be stringent, overly tart and sometimes almost woody. A mature apple should be firm, not yield to pressure, have a hard sound when "thumped" by the forefinger, and squeak when the hand is rubbed over the skin.

by Charles Flynn

That you can do anything with crepes is almost universally accepted by chefs. They can be adapted for any meal, as appetizers for a party or a late snack at night. In many cities there are creperies which perform a complete restaurant function with the thin French pancakes and all kinds of fillings.

Crepes aren't difficult to make, although it takes a bit of practice. You can bake them in advance, freeze for future use or keep refrigerated for several hours before filling. Most important in their preparation is a clean pan (it's best to have a crepe pan used for nothing else) and the right heat.

To make 24 crepes, stir together 1 cup flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1/8 teaspoon salt. Separately beat 2 eggs, then add 1½ cups milk and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Add egg-mixture all at once to dry ingredients, beating until smooth. Allow to stand 1 to 2 hours to increase flavor.

CREPE PANS usually are either 5-inch or 6-inch and this recipe is for the latter. For one crepe, spoon 2 tablespoons batter into a hot, lightly buttered skillet. Rotate pan quickly to spread batter thinly and evenly. Cook until down side sets, about 1 minute, then flip and cook another minute. Remove and stack crepes flat one on top of the other on a warm plate until all are cooked. Keep crepes warm.

Here's an interesting dessert filling. Whip an 8-ounce package of softened cream cheese until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in 1 cup confectioners' sugar.

Stir in ½ cup creme de cocoa with cheese, then whip 1 cup cream and fold in. Fill each warm crepe with 3 tablespoons filling and serve 1 or 2 to each person.

This chocolate mousse also makes a delightful dessert crepe filling. Melt 6 ounces semisweet chocolate, 3 tablespoons sugar, and 3 tablespoons water in double boiler until sauce is smooth and thick. Remove from heat and cool for a few minutes. Add 3 well beaten egg yolks, a little at a time. Let mixture cool at room temperature (do not refrigerate). Stir now and then.

When mixture is quite cool whip 1½ cups heavy cream until stiff and blend into chocolate mixture. Crepes should be cool for this dessert. Spoon 2 tablespoons filling down center of each of 12 crepes. Roll and place seam side down on serving plates.

The how-to of picking apples

There is a bumper apple crop this year and a plentiful supply, according to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. Many varieties are available to choose from. Generally the sweeter, less tart and more attractive varieties are considered eating apples, while the tarter, less attractive ones are selected for cooking purposes.

The Delicious, for example, is considered as an eating apple, while the Rome Beauty reigns as a cooking apple, although Delicious can be cooked and Rome Beauties eaten as is. Other apples are considered to be all-purpose, such as Jonathan, Staymans and Grimes Golden.

Not enough red color, too much green, scars from limb "rubs," and too much russet (rough skin of brownish color) are factors which detract from the eye appeal of the apples and therefore influence the grading. Yet these apples do have menu value, and because of their lower grade often are very attractive apple bargains which can be included in the budget to great advantage.

SIZE, TOO, IS considered to be a major factor. Small apples obviously will not yield as much fruit due to the core and peeling waste, and thus are less preferred than those of just right size.

Ripeness is also important. Over-ripeness causes apples to taste bland and be mushy, while immature apples tend to be stringent, overly tart and sometimes almost woody. A mature apple should be firm, not yield to pressure, have a hard sound when "thumped" by the forefinger, and squeak when the hand is rubbed over the skin.

Gourmet features crepes and fillings

by Charles Flynn

That you can do anything with crepes is almost universally accepted by chefs. They can be adapted for any meal, as appetizers for a party or a late snack at night. In many cities there are creperies which perform a complete restaurant function with the thin French pancakes and all kinds of fillings.

Crepes aren't difficult to make, although it takes a bit of practice. You can bake them in advance, freeze for future use or keep refrigerated for several hours before filling. Most important in their preparation is a clean pan (it's best to have a crepe pan used for nothing else) and the right heat.

To make 24 crepes, stir together 1 cup flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1/8 teaspoon salt. Separately beat 2 eggs, then add 1½ cups milk and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Add egg-mixture all at once to dry ingredients, beating until smooth. Allow to stand 1 to 2 hours to increase flavor.

CREPE PANS usually are either 5-inch or 6-inch and this recipe is for the latter. For one crepe, spoon 2 tablespoons batter into a hot, lightly buttered skillet. Rotate pan quickly to spread batter thinly and evenly. Cook until down side sets, about 1 minute, then flip and cook another minute. Remove and stack crepes flat one on top of the other on a warm plate until all are cooked. Keep crepes warm.

Here's an interesting dessert filling. Whip an 8-ounce package of softened cream cheese until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in 1 cup confectioners' sugar.

Stir in ½ cup creme de cocoa with cheese, then whip 1 cup cream and fold in. Fill each warm crepe with 3 tablespoons filling and serve 1 or 2 to each person.

This chocolate mousse also makes a delightful dessert crepe filling. Melt 6 ounces semisweet chocolate, 3 tablespoons sugar, and 3 tablespoons water in double boiler until sauce is smooth and thick. Remove from heat and cool for a few minutes. Add 3 well beaten egg yolks, a little at a time. Let mixture cool at room temperature (do not refrigerate). Stir now and then.

When mixture is quite cool whip 1½ cups heavy cream until stiff and blend into chocolate mixture. Crepes should be cool for this dessert. Spoon 2 tablespoons filling down center of each of 12 crepes. Roll and place seam side down on serving plates.

Healthy diet blueprint

by LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

(Third of six parts)

The main objectives of a healthy diet plan can be put into five categories.

- To provide sufficient calories as the source of energy for your body.
- To provide sufficient protein, adequate in all of the amino acids, to provide the basic building blocks for the body's processes of building tissues, hormones, enzymes and carrying out essential body functions.
- To provide a minimum of 50 grams of carbohydrate a day sufficient to enable the body to carry out its chemical processes without causing a chemical imbalance.
- To provide a minimal amount of fat, which can hardly be avoided anyway, to enable the absorption of the fat-soluble vitamins, principally vitamins D and A. The small amount of fat necessary should include very small amounts of the polyunsaturated fats.

A healthy diet should limit the proportion of fat and cholesterol. Your fat intake should be less than 35 per cent of the total calories ingested. Less than 10 per cent of the total calories should come from saturated fats while approximately 10 per cent of the total calories should be polyunsaturated fat. The cholesterol should not exceed 300 milligrams a day.

- A sufficient variety of foods should be included in the menu to provide adequate amounts of all the vitamins and minerals.

Nutritionists have considered all these facts and generalized our food into four basic groups. The idea is that you should obtain sufficient foods from each of the four basic groups to have a fairly balanced diet. These four fasic groups are the dairy products, the meat group, the cereal and bread group.

The dairy products group means milk and milk products. They are the major source of calcium in our diet and also provide phosphorus. You can get a large amount of phosphorus from other products, but it's more difficult to obtain the calcium. In addition, the milk products provide an important diet source of complete protein, meaning that the protein will include all the essential amino acids. The butterfat in any of these milk products naturally contains vitamins A and D. In recent years, dairy products have been enriched with A and D to increase the amount of these vitamins in the usual diet of the greatest number of people.

IF YOU NEED to control the amount of fat in your diet, and most people do, you can use the low-fat items; fortified skim milk, buttermilk, nonfat dry milk powder, and uncreamed cottage cheese.

The meat group includes all the mammal meats (beef, pork and lamb), fish, shellfish and poultry.

Plan your meat group to avoid too much saturated fat and to provide sufficient amounts of polyunsaturated fat. You can do this by rotating the items so that one-third comes from mammal meat, one-third from fish, and one-third from poultry.

Do you want to use meat substitutes? You might, with the worldwide shortage of items in the meat group. The milk group is an obvious meat substitute for protein.

THE BEAN GROUP should not be used alone, at least for growing children. But it is all right if you also use the proper amount of the dairy group for complete proteins, or include plenty of cereals in the diet. For planning purposes, estimate that you will need twice as much cooked mature bean seeds as you would need of meat (raw weight).

Eggs contain good protein, but they also contain a lot of cholesterol and usually considerable amounts of saturated fat. Two eggs weigh three and-a-half ounces (100 grams), and since they are 12 per cent protein you would need three eggs to equal the amount of protein in a serving of the meat group.

The third basic food group includes cereals and bread. You should think of this group as the vitamin B, vitamin E and mineral group. It is also a major source of bulk in the diet, important amounts of protein and polyunsaturated fats within the bread and cereal group. Because milk products are used in making bread items, they actually provide both cereal and milk products for the diet.

THE FOURTH important food group includes vegetables, fruits, melons and berries. This group is rich in vitamins A and C.

Cook's recipes fit all occasions

by LOIS SEILER

A POUND of butter is used in the sugar cookie refrigerator dough prepared by Bobbie Kelly, Arlington Heights. The dough is rolled as thin as possible, dusted with sugar and nutmeg and cut in the desired shapes.

Versatile for use any time of year are the recipes chosen by Bobbie Kelly of Arlington Heights. Her favorites include a crispy sugar cookie, an unusual appetizer and an elegant dessert.

She acquired the cookie recipe while living in New England and adapts it to the seasons by varying the cookies' shapes and decorations.

Thin and crispy with a definite nutmeg flavor, they are an excellent accompaniment for strawberries served with brown sugar and sour cream.

Pork Ginger Rolls are a unique appetizer made with a cream cheese pastry filled with a flavorful Oriental-type mixture. As the recipe makes 90, it is excellent for a big cocktail party and also perfect to precede a pepper steak dinner.

A "FREEZER SPECIAL" is the way Bobbie refers to her delightful Nesselrode Pie. Rich yet light, it is ideal for summertime or the holidays. Bobbie likes to keep one on hand in the freezer for any festive occasion.

Baking and antiquing are this cook's favorite hobbies and these two are combined in Bobbie's search for old cook books. Baking daily, her family is always assured of a tasty dessert, which pleases her husband, Ed, and daughters Kim, Kitty, Chris and Colleen.

SUGAR COOKIES

1 pound butter, at room temperature
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
5 cups flour
Pinch of salt
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda dissolved in 3 tablespoons milk

Put all ingredients into a large bowl and mix with hands until a smooth dough is formed. Excess mixing doesn't hurt the quality. Form into a ball, dust with flour and chill thoroughly before using. Then break into convenient-size pieces, probably adding a little flour to each piece of dough to make it easier to handle and roll out.

Roll out on a floured board as thin as possible and dust with granulated sugar and nutmeg. Cut into desired shapes, depending on the season of the year. Bake at 350 degrees about 12 minutes or until light brown. Makes five to six dozen cookies.

Ground almonds or nuts of any sort may be added to all or part of dough. Bobbie often adds ground almonds to half of the batch and cuts the dough with a flower-shaped cutter, placing half of a candied cherry on top. Others are decorated with chocolate bits melted and forced through a paper cornucopia. These cookies may be frozen.

PORK GINGER ROLLS

Cream cheese pastry:
1 cup butter
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups unsifted flour

Beat butter, cheese and salt together until smooth and blended. Work in flour to make a smooth dough. Flatten dough in foil to form an 8 by 6-inch rectangle. Chill overnight.

Filling:
1 pound ground lean pork
½ cup flaked crabmeat or finely-chopped shrimp
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup minced water chestnuts
2 tablespoons minced green onions
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger root or ½ teaspoon ground ginger
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 small clove garlic, crushed
1 egg, unbeaten
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Cook and stir pork in skillet a few minutes only until it looks white — not dry or crumbly. Add remaining ingredients, mix well and cool thoroughly.

Divide pastry into four pieces. Work with one piece at a time, keeping the remaining dough in refrigerator until ready to use.

Between waxed paper, roll each piece into a rectangular shape, about 9 by 12 inches. Cut in half lengthwise and spread each piece with filling. Press filling lightly into dough. From long side, roll up tightly like a jelly roll. Mosten edges, press to sal and chill for one hour in refrigerator.

Place seam-side down on a cookie sheet. Brush with a mixture of one egg yolk beaten with 2 teaspoons milk or cream. Bake at 375 degrees about 30 to 35 minutes. Cool and cut in one-inch slices. Makes about 90.

NESSELRODE PIE

3 egg whites
¼ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup coarsely-chopped blanched almonds, toasted
1/3 cup maraschino cherries, cut in fourths
2 tablespoons maraschino cherry syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/3 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1½ cups heavy cream, whipped
1 9-inch baked pastry shell

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add granulated sugar gradually and beat until stiff. Fold in almonds, cherries, cherry syrup and vanilla.

Fold confectioners' sugar into whipped cream. Then fold this into first mixture. Pour into cooled pastry shell. Freeze until firm. Defrost pie a half hour before serving. Top with whipped cream and garnish with additional cherries and almonds. Serves 6 to 8.

you need to do to meet your protein, vitamin and mineral requirements. It does not tell you how much food you need to satisfy your requirements. Having sufficient calories in the diet is just as important to a well-balanced diet as having sufficient protein, vitamins and minerals. Remember that calories, not vitamins, are the source of energy. The calorie needs will depend on each individual's living habits, including levels of physical activity and age.

A number of rules have been formulated as to how many calories a person needs. They can only be a general guide, since the only important figure is how many calories you or members of your family need. you can tell whether you're getting enough calories or not by your energy level and by the presence of body fat. If you're restricting your calorie intake and you feel tired, it's likely you need more calories. Increased amounts of fat deposits you can feel or see underneath the skin indicate you're getting more calories than you need.

Sealed records challenged

Adoptees search for their roots

by MONICA PERIN

"We're not looking for moms and dads, but answers to our questions," the young redhaired mother explained intently to her visitor.

Donna Cullom of Evanston was trying to describe the drive that most adopted people have to discover their roots — and she was also trying to dispel the many popular myths that this compulsion is neurotic or that it represents rejection of the person's adoptive parents.

An adoptee herself, Mrs. Cullom is the founder of Yesterday's Children, an organization which helps adoptees search for their biological parents and which has filed a lawsuit in federal district court in Illinois challenging the state law which keeps adoption records forever closed to adoptees.

SHE BEGAN THE story of Yesterday's Children with her own story.

"I was the fifth of eight children in my biological family. I was adopted when I was 4½ — my sisters and brothers all went to different families. I went to a really super home. I always knew I was adopted, and I was curious about my natural family, even though I loved my mother and father dearly and had everything I could want.

"My first real identity crisis came as a teenager. I wondered about my past. I asked my mother a lot of questions, and she told me a lot, but there was a line I didn't go over. I loved my mother very much and I felt protective of her. I didn't want to hurt her.

"Later I got married — the second crisis point. I wanted to be able to tell my husband my genealogical history. I didn't even know my national ancestry.

"WELL, I KEPT putting off talking to my mother about it because I didn't want to hurt her, but I wondered about my nationality, where I got my red hair, my religion, my medical background.

"Then I had my first son, who looks just like me, but who did I look like? This is the third point of awareness, when you have children. After all, you're wiping out a whole genealogy — I can't tell my children anything, and they can't tell theirs.

"I was determined then that I simply had to know. I called the town (on her amended birth certificate) and reached the daughter-in-law of the doctor who delivered me. She suggested calling a funeral director in town, and he knew the family and got back to me. I didn't know my name, but it had been a large family in a small town."

DONNA CULLOM HAD a reunion with her natural family, and it did not change her relationship with her adoptive family nor did the meeting cause distress to her natural family. (Ninety-five members of her group have found their biological parents so far, and none have been told to "go away.")

But the end of her search did not bring an end to her problems as an adoptee — a situation which is a central issue in the lawsuit.

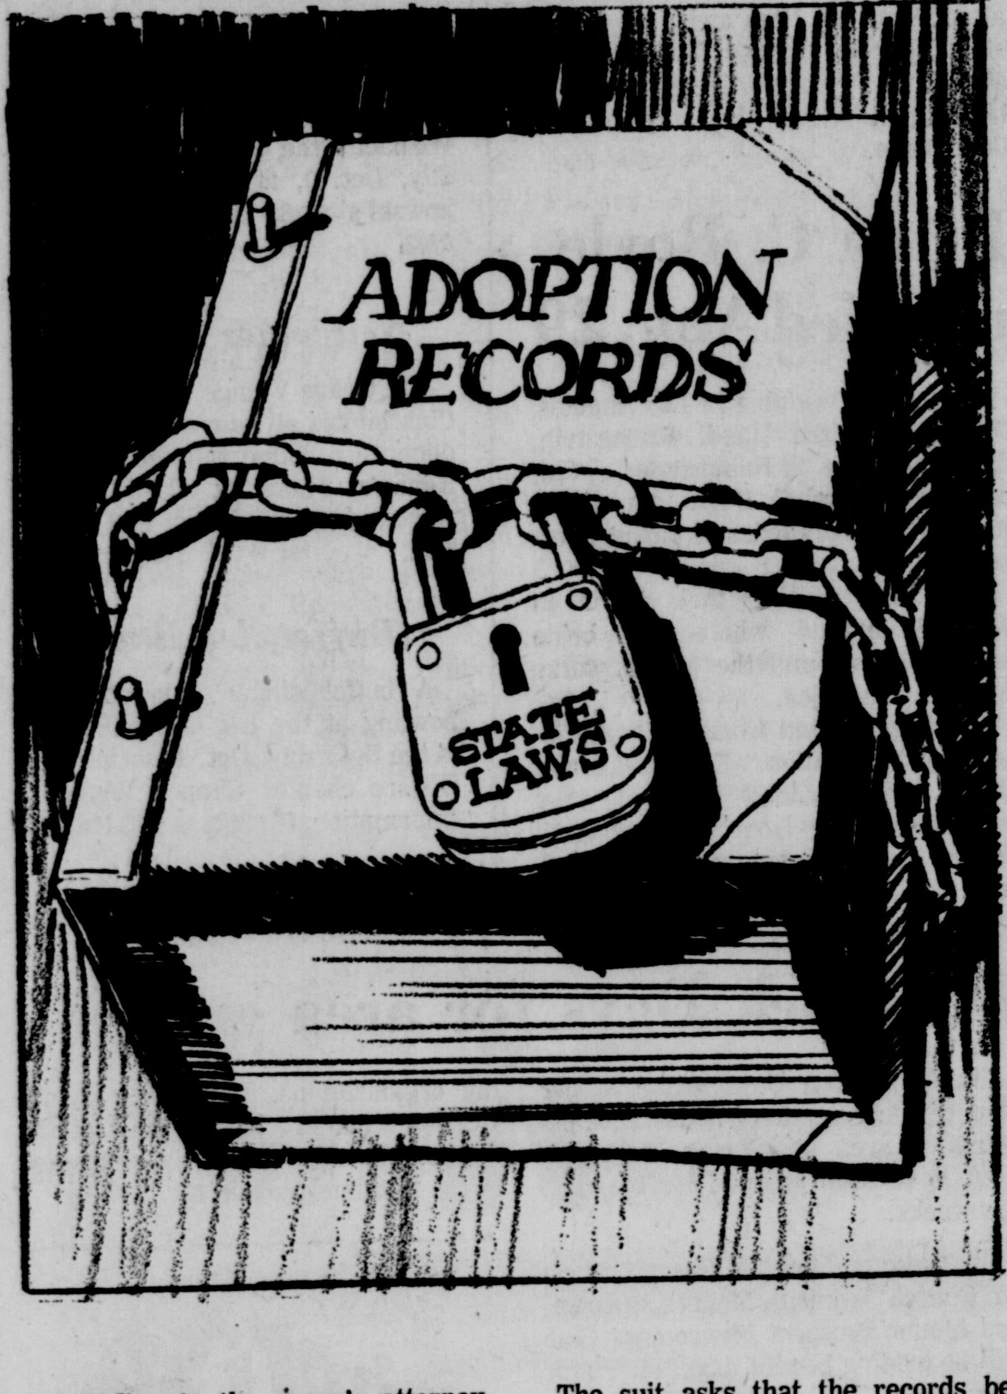
"I had to get a passport, and my amended birth certificate was not good enough. I had to go through unbelievable red tape to prove my citizenship.

"This was the last straw. I thought, I've been a citizen — a good citizen — of this country all my life and now all of a sudden, this. I finally got the passport, but only after a lot of frustration and bother because of the sealed records — it's ridiculous. At 32, why were they trying to protect me? I already knew my natural family anyway."

OTHER ADOPTEES have been denied scholarships, security clearances and other things that are routine for non-adoptees, she added.

So in 1974 Donna Cullom founded Yesterday's Children, now with 800 members nationwide, to help adoptees search for their biological families and to get adoption records opened.

"But most of the people who could change it would have nothing to do with us — we were called very vicious things — neurotic, maladjusted, ungrateful. We realized the only way was judicial action, so in February we filed the lawsuit."



According to the group's attorney, Patrick Murphy, the suit asks that the state law sealing adoption records be declared unconstitutional on grounds it violates due process and the right of adoptees to know who their family is.

MURPHY AND MRS. Cullom argue that in being refused this information and in being subjected to the kinds of problems as she had getting a passport, adoptees are being discriminated against. The two expect that the case will ultimately be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The suit asks that the records be made available only to adult adoptees — a distinction that is often blurred over by opponents. One organization that opposes opening the records says it would destroy the institution of adoption because natural parents would be able to track down their child later on and cause trouble, and that children would find out unpleasant facts at too early an age. But neither natural parents nor minor adoptees would have access to the records.

As for protecting the confidentiality of the natural mother, another argument of opponents of open records, Mrs. Cullom says adoptees "are very discreet — they don't go knocking on the door." She added that many natural mothers call Yesterday's Children because "they wonder how the child is and did they do the right thing. They often feel great guilt and would like to know what happened to the child."

MRS. CULLOM recognizes that "adoptive parents feel very threatened" by an adopted child searching for biological parents, but she says, "their fears are unfounded. It is very rare that an adopted child rejects them (adoptive parents). We're not looking for moms and dads."

Especially important to many adoptees is to know more about their medical background. In Mrs. Cullom's case, her son suffered a hereditary eye defect for four years unknown to her and her husband until she found her family and learned about the problem.

While Yesterday's Children battles for legal access to their identity, and the defendants (Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and the Attorney General) and other opponents seek to keep that identity secret, one private agency has developed what it considers a "realistic" approach which seems close to meeting the desires of both sides.

AT LUTHERAN CHILD and Family Services, the identity of natural parents is revealed with their consent. They are urged to consider the possibility of an eventual reunion with their children when they give them up, and at that time or later they may give their consent to be identified.

In addition, a comprehensive history of the child's family — medical, sociological, personality, family tree, occupations of relatives, what they looked like, everything but family name and location, is gathered and supplied to adoptive parents.

According to the agency's director, Mrs. Betty Schultz, the agency also works with the adoptive family in advance "so they will realize an adoptee's strong need to know his origin is not a repudiation of them, that adoptees are not looking to replace their adoptive family — and they're not psychopaths."

THE OVERALL approach, Mrs. Schultz said, recognizes both the current legal obligations as well as the human feelings involved. The procedure also puts this agency and its clients in a state of preparedness for smooth transition if the records are opened.

Mrs. Schultz said some adoption agencies are "opening to this idea more, but others are quite closed." Mrs. Cullom said that "most of the agency officials I've talked to say they personally sympathize with us, but none will come out publicly in support of us."

Predictions are mixed as to how vigorously the state will fight the lawsuit and from what quarters will come the stiffest resistance — private or public agencies.

But Donna Cullom believes open records will come, as it has already in three states. She points to sociological studies which confirm it as the better way and to the success it has had in other countries. She is already looking down the road to a time when adopted children might keep their original names and simply add on their adopted names.

"Let me be proud of my ancestry," she asks.

Good Housekeeping's male editor

He knows what women want

by IRA BERKOW

"John Mack Carter has spent the last 15 years telling women how to raise their children, how to have a satisfactory sex life and how to entertain on a shoestring. Now he is going to tell them how to keep house," commented Newsweek Magazine last February.

That was when Carter had been named to be editor of Good Housekeeping Magazine, and thus became the first male to be top editor at all three leading women's publications. He had previously edited McCall's and Ladies' Home Journal.

It would seem he is the contemporary Oracle of Delphi, having plumbed dark mysteries that eluded the likes of Dr. Sigmund Freud, who once asked, "My God, what is it that women want?"

THE QUESTION remains pertinent, and perhaps the growing strength of the women's liberation movement makes it even knottier than ever.

In his shades-drawn, lamp-lit, carpeted mid-Manhattan office, Carter now sat behind his broad, heavy desk; he took the question Freud had posed and lit his pipe. His small brown eyes, dimpled cheeks, furrowed brow and tight, curly hair disappeared behind a few puffs of pipe smoke. Only his long-sleeved white shirt and black knit tie seemed to remain.

Momentarily, his head returned to view, and with an answer. It was the stuff of oracles and genies.

"Women," he said, slowly, "want what they've always wanted."

There was a pause. Then he went on.

"AND I THINK the reaction against Betty Ford's quote is a good example that they still want what they've always wanted," said the 46-year-old Carter. (The President's wife had said that she would accept her daughter having pre-marital sex, though Mrs. Ford added that she would want to know the man and want to have a full communication with her daughter.)

"Despite all of the liberation discussion today," said Carter, "most of us in this country are slow to change. We value our traditions. Pre-marital sex is not one of those traditions.

"Mrs. Ford's comments struck deep into the protectiveness of women across the country. They don't want to be challenged on their most basic beliefs.

"BUT I'M NOT sure Betty Ford doesn't share those beliefs. I don't think she condoned this activity, pre-marital sex. Her reaction was one of love for her daughter, and this love would supersede any kind of activity her daughter would become involved in. It was a warm, close, feeling response."

Carter's most dramatic confrontation with the feminist movement came as editor of Ladies' Home Journal when a radical group of a 100 or so women stormed the offices, sat on the desks and smoked his cigars (he smokes cigars, too) for 11 hours. It was an attempt to publicize their position that topics such as abortion, homosexuality and the equalness of women in work ought to be a greater part of the magazine's content.

Carter said that, after his anger had subsided, he found that the incident did raise his consciousness, and he did accede to some of their points. But Carter said that his surveys found that for the majority of women in this country, being a wife, mother and homemaker is still the primary business.

"AND IT'S A tragedy when an individual in this activity is made to feel dissatisfied with this important role," he said. "Generally, I think women are more satisfied with their lives than men are, especially by middle age.

"Most men at that time are asking themselves if their lives have mattered. Women are not as troubled by this. They know damn well — their accomplishments are tangible. I particularly mean child-bearing and child-rearing. For the most part, men have their accomplishments in some file cabinet."

Carter said that he has come to his unusual editorial positions because of his abilities as an editor, and not necessarily because of his insights into the feminine psyche. He adds that he relies on his primarily feminine staff for assstance.

"ABOUT THE ONLY headstart I had on all this was that I have a twin sister and so I grew up lock-step with her," said Carter, a Murray, Ky., native.

"And we usually got along fine, except that in high school she tried to direct and regulate my dating life.

"She even told me what girls I shouldn't ask out because she said they wouldn't accept. That really irritated me."

Irritated you because she hurt your feelings? he was asked.

"No," said Carter, "irritated me because it turned out she was right."

New hope for asthma sufferers lies in control

by GAY PAULEY

Asthma is the respiratory ailment that makes life a 24-hour day of misery for nine million people in the nation.

Doctors who treat it don't use the word cure. They talk of new hope with the word control.

Two physicians, still in their 30s and specializing in the disease, and one of their "prize" patients dropped in the UPI office to talk about progress in recent years and new avenues of treatment. They have been holding symposiums for other physicians.

The doctors were Sheldon Laurence Spector, 36, a Detroit native, and Fred Leffert, 34, born in Brooklyn, both on the staff of the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center, Denver, Colo.

THE HOSPITAL specializes in research and treatment, and as a national center for chronic respiratory diseases including asthma, severe allergies, tuberculosis and immunological disorders. It admits patients from all over the nation, some from abroad, without regard of faith, age or ability to pay.

With the doctors was Sister Mary Romauld, born in Ludlow, Mass., who began her career as a teacher with the Felician Sisters. She developed severe asthma in the 1960s but recalled "from age five I wheezed." Her attacks grew so severe that she was told in 1966 she no longer could teach.

Her massive doctor "hunt" ended when she read about National Jewish Hospital in a Catholic newspaper.

Sister Mary was admitted, given an intensive diagnostic workup, and medication to control the disease-allergy shots plus steroids. She spent two years at the hospital, was on one of the medications for five years, on another for 10, but went back to school, this time as a student.

SHE EARNED HER master's degree in social work and now is a medical social worker at St. Joseph's Hospital, in Bangor, Maine.

For two years now, she has been off medication entirely — "desensitized," she said, and breathing freely. The Bangor climate agrees with her.

Is climate a major factor? Dr. Spector said, "That's kind of a misconception about the disease. Climate can affect, but we believe the basic treatment is more important. If you have a good basic program, you can live almost anywhere. It's pretty difficult in our times to avoid car exhaust and smog."

Spector specializes in treating adults, Leffert in children. Statisfically, they said, one of every seven — or 31 million persons in the United States — suffer from some sort of allergy. About 13 million have hay fever, nine million asthma, and of the total 22 million asthma — hay fever victims, seven million are children.

Asthma isn't always allergy-caused, however. Dr. Spector defined it as "an abnormal state in which the lungs over-react to a variety of factors. You can have asthma without allergy, and an allergy without asthma."

ONE THING IS certain in treatment — "Smoking is a no-no," said Dr. Leffert. "Nicotine can change metabolism, have interaction with drugs. Smoking just has so much action on the lungs."

At National Jewish, work toward control of asthma, which can and does kill, is through test tube research and patient case histories. Doctors are studying among other things immunological responses.

The two said a lot of drug manufacturers are in research, working for medication that can be taken by inhalation and avoid side effects. But they warn about self-prescribed over-the-counter treatment — "Sometimes they can be dangerous," said Spector.

"We don't use the word cure," he said. "We say control. We have our failures too. We don't walk on water out there."

Sealed records challenged

Adoptees search for their roots

by MONICA PERIN

"We're not looking for moms and dads, but answers to our questions," the young redhaired mother explained intently to her visitor.

Donna Cullom of Evanston was trying to describe the drive that most adopted people have to discover their roots — and she was also trying to dispel the many popular myths that this compulsion is neurotic or that it represents rejection of the person's adoptive parents.

An adoptee herself, Mrs. Cullom is the founder of Yesterday's Children, an organization which helps adoptees search for their biological parents and which has filed a lawsuit in federal district court in Illinois challenging the state law which keeps adoption records forever closed to adoptees.

SHE BEGAN THE story of Yesterday's Children with her own story.

"I was the fifth of eight children in my biological family. I was adopted when I was 4½ — my sisters and brothers all went to different families. I went to a really super home. I always knew I was adopted, and I was curious about my natural family, even though I loved my mother and father dearly and had everything I could want.

"My first real identity crisis came as a teenager. I wondered about my past. I asked my mother a lot of questions, and she told me a lot, but there was a line I didn't go over. I loved my mother very much and I felt protective of her. I didn't want to hurt her.

"Later I got married — the second crisis point. I wanted to be able to tell my husband my genealogical history. I didn't even know my national ancestry.

"WELL, I KEPT putting off talking to my mother about it because I didn't want to hurt her, but I wondered about my nationality, where I got my red hair, my religion, my medical background.

"Then I had my first son, who looks just like me, but who did I look like? This is the third point of awareness, when you have children. After all, you're wiping out a whole genealogy — I can't tell my children anything, and they can't tell theirs.

"I was determined then that I simply had to know. I called the town (on her amended birth certificate) and reached the daughter-in-law of the doctor who delivered me. She suggested calling a funeral director in town, and he knew the family and got back to me. I didn't know my name, but it had been a large family in a small town."

DONNA CULLOM HAD a reunion with her natural family, and it did not change her relationship with her adoptive family nor did the meeting cause distress to her natural family. (Ninety-five members of her group have found their biological parents so far, and none have been told to "go away.")

But the end of her search did not bring an end to her problems as an adoptee — a situation which is a central issue in the lawsuit.

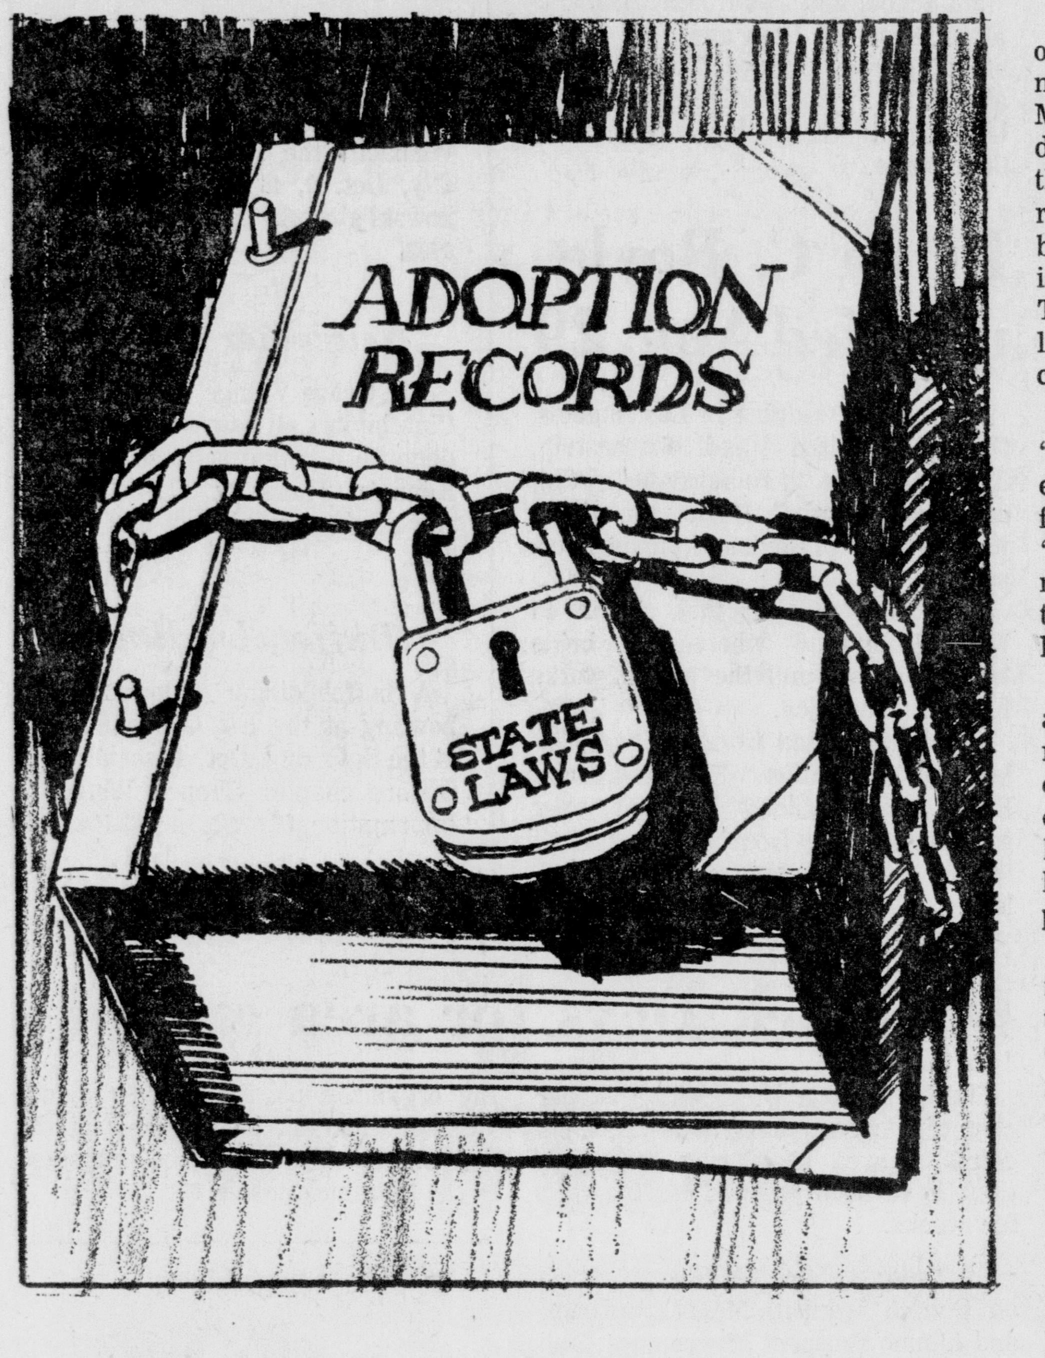
"I had to get a passport, and my amended birth certificate was not good enough. I had to go through unbelievable red tape to prove my citizenship.

"This was the last straw. I thought, I've been a citizen — a good citizen — of this country all my life and now all of a sudden, this. I finally got the passport, but only after a lot of frustration and bother because of the sealed records — it's ridiculous. At 32, why were they trying to protect me? I already knew my natural family anyway."

OTHER ADOPTEES have been denied scholarships, security clearances and other things that are routine for non-adoptees, she added.

So in 1974 Donna Cullom founded Yesterday's Children, now with 800 members nationwide, to help adoptees search for their biological families and to get adoption records opened.

"But most of the people who could change it would have nothing to do with us — we were called very vicious things — neurotic, maladjusted, ungrateful. We realized the only way was judicial action, so in February we filed the lawsuit."



According to the group's attorney, Patrick Murphy, the suit asks that the state law sealing adoption records be declared unconstitutional on grounds it violates due process and the right of adoptees to know who their family is.

MURPHY AND MRS. Cullom argue that in being refused this information and in being subjected to the kinds of problems as she had getting a passport, adoptees are being discriminated against. The two expect that the case will ultimately be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The suit asks that the records be made available only to adult adoptees — a distinction that is often blurred over by opponents. One organization that opposes opening the records says it would destroy the institution of adoption because natural parents would be able to track down their child later on and cause trouble, and that children would find out unpleasant facts at too early an age. But neither natural parents nor minor adoptees would have access to the records.

As for protecting the confidentiality of the natural mother, another argument of opponents of open records, Mrs. Cullom says adoptees "are very discreet — they don't go knocking on the door." She added that many natural mothers call Yesterday's Children because "they wonder how the child is and did they do the right thing. They often feel great guilt and would like to know what happened to the child."

MRS. CULLOM recognizes that "adoptive parents feel very threatened" by an adopted child searching for biological parents, but she says, "their fears are unfounded. It is very rare that an adopted child rejects them (adoptive parents). We're not looking for moms and dads."

Especially important to many adoptees is to know more about their medical background. In Mrs. Cullom's case, her son suffered a hereditary eye defect for four years unknown to her and her husband until she found her family and learned about the problem.

While Yesterday's Children battles for legal access to their identity, and the defendants (Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and the Attorney General) and other opponents seek to keep that identity secret, one private agency has developed what it considers a "realistic" approach which seems close to meeting the desires of both sides.

AT LUTHERAN CHILD and Family Services, the identity of natural parents is revealed with their consent. They are urged to consider the possibility of an eventual reunion with their children when they give them up, and at that time or later they may give their consent to be identified.

In addition, a comprehensive history of the child's family — medical, sociological, personality, family tree, occupations of relatives, what they looked like, everything but family name and location, is gathered and supplied to adoptive parents.

According to the agency's director, Mrs. Betty Schultz, the agency also works with the adoptive family in advance "so they will realize an adoptee's strong need to know his origin is not a repudiation of them, that adoptees are not looking to replace their adoptive family — and they're not psychopaths."

THE OVERALL approach, Mrs. Schultz said, recognizes both the current legal obligations as well as the human feelings involved. The procedure also puts this agency and its clients in a state of preparedness for smooth transition if the records are opened.

Mrs. Schultz said some adoption agencies are "opening to this idea more, but others are quite closed." Mrs. Cullom said that "most of the agency officials I've talked to say they personally sympathize with us, but none will come out publicly in support of us."

Predictions are mixed as to how vigorously the state will fight the lawsuit and from what quarters will come the stiffest resistance — private or public agencies.

Bride carries mom's Bible for her Aug. 24 wedding

Mr. and Mrs. David Franson

Carrying her mother's Bible surrounded by fern, stephanotis and baby's breath, Carol Jernberg, daughter of the Roy K. Jernbergs, Arlington Heights, was married to David Franson. He is the son of the Manfred B. Fransons, Mount Prospect.

A peach, yellow and orange color scheme was featured for the 4 p.m. Aug. 24 ceremony in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights.

For her wedding, Carol wore an old-fashioned gown of ivory organza trimmed in lace and pearl.

Her sister, Donna was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Carrie Scherpelz, Champaign; Debbie Burkey, Arlington Heights; Carol Robb, Bloomington, Ind.; and the groom's sister, Patty. They wore old-fashioned gowns of peach floral print trimmed in ivory lace. Yellow carnations, peach baby's breath and ferns were carried in baskets.

JOHN SCHERPELZ, Champaign, was best man. Also serving the groom were Terry Reeder, Park Ridge; Dave Bays, Schaumburg; his brothers John and Tom; and Carol's brother, Ken.

A reception for 165 guests followed at the Hobson House in Long Grove. The couple then left for a vacation in Door County, Wis.

Carol is a '72 graduate of Arlington High School and David is a '71 graduate of Prospect High and a '74 graduate of Harper College. Both are now attending Taylor University in Upland, Ind., where they are making their home.

Pair resides in Kalamazoo

Living in Kalamazoo, Mich., while the bridegroom completes his senior year at Western Michigan University are Mr. and Mrs. John Horst Rosenkranz. They were married Aug. 23 in Wausau, Wis., hometown of the bride, the former Judith Ann Lucht. The groom is from Arlington Heights.

Their wedding was performed at 3 p.m. in Bible Truth Assembly with a luncheon reception following at the same location.

Judith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Lucht of Wausau, chose her cousin, Mrs. Charles Palmer of Minnetonka, Minn., as matron of honor.

JOHN'S BROTHER, Tom Rosenkranz, was best man, with another brother, Mike, and the bride's brother, Richard, as ushers. John, Tom and Mike are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Rosenkranz of Arlington Heights.

The bridegroom is majoring in food distribution at Western Michigan, sponsored by the Jewel Co., Inc. Judith attended North Central Technical Institute, Wausau, before her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rosenkranz

Brian C. Boyle married Aug. 29

An Aug. 29 wedding in Los Angeles, Calif., united Randi Rubenstein, daughter of the A. Rubensteins of Chicago, and Brian C. Boyle, son of the junior Harry C. Boyles of Mount Prospect.

They are making their home in West Hollywood where the bride teaches school and the groom works for Sisely America.

Randi graduated from National College of Education, Evanston, and Brian also attended National after graduating from Prospect High School and studying at Harper College.

Dominick Days for area groups

Six Dominick's Days with five per cent of the customers' sales receipts going to area sponsoring organizations have been planned for the next few weeks.

On Tuesday, Sept. 30, Grace Lutheran Church Women, Mount Prospect, and Mount Prospect Newcomers Club will be holding benefit days. St. Viator High School will benefit Wednesday, Oct. 1, and on Tuesday, Oct. 14, the Golden Years Rolling Meadows Chapter.

Wednesday, Oct. 15, Alpha Chi Omega alumnae and Prospect Heights Band Boosters will hold their day.

Slips to participate in the benefit days are available from the sponsoring organizations. Emergency identification slips will be available at the stores. The slips are to be presented to the Dominick cashiers.

Dry flowers simple way

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: While many dry flowers the way you describe, I went to a class for drying flowers which recommended two drying methods which are quite simple, if you want an arrangement for the winter months. In the first method, you spread a mixture of half borax with half sand or cornmeal in the bottom of a shallow cardboard box. The flowers are put face down on this then covered with an inch of the same mixture.

This works fine for larkspur, delphinium, Queen Anne's lace, shasta daisy, pansy, zinnia and marigold. It takes a week for the flowers to dry.

The second was the hot sand treatment. You sift dry, fine sand over the bottom of a box, put the flower heads down on the sand and cover with about two more inches of sand. Then the box is put in the brightest, hottest spot of sun you can find. Small zinnias, marigolds and pansies do well with this. With any of the flowers, the foliage has to be stripped from the stems. — Mrs. G. H. Embree

Dear Dorothy: What kind of ground meat do you buy for meat loaf or patties? —Gladys Bruder

Ground chuck suits this family fine. There is less fat than in regular hamburger meat — and when broiling patties or making meat loaf, what fat there is can usually be drained off.

Dear Dorothy: I'm sure you know how four little boys can mess up their clothes. Finally tried your old faithful, baking soda, on the many crayon marks. Just rubbed it on the marks, then laundered. Stains all gone. — Olivia Cardwell

Dear Dorothy: I find an old toothbrush invaluable for scrubbing the knobs on the stove, the electric can opener and so on. Yes, I do wash it in the dishwasher so it's sterilized each time.—Patty Brice

For a cooler attic

The temperature in attics that lack a pwwered ventilator often rises to 135 to 150 degrees fahrenheit on sunny days. A ventilator can keep it at about outdoor temperatures. (UPI)

Turns itself on and off

A powered attic space ventilator with an automatic temperature control turns itself on or off, according to its thermostat setting. (UPI)

Kirk fun fair

A fun fair with games chosen especially for handicapped children will take place Saturday, Oct. 4, at Kirk Center, 520 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

The fair, sponsored by Lambda Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. All proceeds go to Kirk Center as part of the chapter's service project.

Among the games will be a fish pond, lollipop tree, bean bag, bumper car, Zodiac wheel, mini-high streaker, tic-tac-toe and zoo parade.

Refreshments will be sold by the chapter, which also plans a cakewalk and a "pocket lady" during the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. David Franson

Bride carries mom's Bible for her Aug. 24 wedding

Carrying her mother's Bible surrounded by fern, stephanotis and baby's breath, Carol Jernberg, daughter of the Roy K. Jernbergs, Arlington Heights, was married to David Franson. He is the son of the Manfred B. Fransons, Mount Prospect.

A peach, yellow and orange color scheme was featured for the 4 p.m. Aug. 24 ceremony in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights.

For her wedding, Carol wore an old-fashioned gown of ivory organza trimmed in lace and pearl.

Her sister, Donna was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Carrie Scherpelz, Champaign; Debbie Burkey, Arlington Heights; Carol Robb, Bloomington, Ind.; and the groom's sister, Patty. They wore old-fashioned gowns of peach floral print trimmed in ivory lace. Yellow carnations, peach baby's breath and ferns were carried in baskets.

JOHN SCHERPELZ, Champaign, was best man. Also serving the groom were Terry Reeder, Park Ridge; Dave Bays, Schaumburg; his brothers John and Tom; and Carol's brother, Ken.

A reception for 165 guests followed at the Hobson House in Long Grove. The couple then left for a vacation in Door County, Wis.

Carol is a '72 graduate of Arlington High School and David is a '71 graduate of Prospect High and a '74 graduate of Harper College. Both are now attending Taylor University in Upland, Ind., where they are making their home.

Pair resides in Kalamazoo

Living in Kalamazoo, Mich., while the bridegroom completes his senior year at Western Michigan University are Mr. and Mrs. John Horst Rosenkranz. They were married Aug. 23 in Wausau, Wis., hometown of the bride, the former Judith Ann Lucht. The groom is from Arlington Heights.

Their wedding was performed at 3 p.m. in Bible Truth Assembly with a luncheon reception following at the same location.

Judith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Lucht of Wausau, chose her cousin, Mrs. Charles Palmer of Minnetonka, Minn., as matron of honor.

JOHN'S BROTHER, Tom Rosenkranz, was best man, with another brother, Mike, and the bride's brother, Richard, as ushers. John, Tom and Mike are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Rosenkranz of Arlington Heights.

The bridegroom is majoring in food distribution at Western Michigan, sponsored by the Jewel Co., Inc. Judith attended North Central Technical Institute, Wausau, before her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rosenkranz

Brian C. Boyle married Aug. 29

An Aug. 29 wedding in Los Angeles, Calif., united Randi Rubenstein, daughter of the A. Rubensteins of Chicago, and Brian C. Boyle, son of the junior Harry C. Boyles of Mount Prospect.

They are making their home in West Hollywood where the bride teaches school and the groom works for Sisely America.

Randi graduated from National College of Education, Evanston, and Brian also attended National after graduating from Prospect High School and studying at Harper College.

Wednesday, Oct. 15, Alpha Chi Omega alumnae and Prospect Heights Band Boosters will hold their day.

Slips to participate in the benefit days are available from the sponsoring organizations. Emergency identification slips will be available at the stores. The slips are to be presented to the Dominick cashiers.

Dry flowers simple way

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: While many dry flowers the way you describe, I went to a class for drying flowers which recommended two drying methods which are quite simple, if you want an arrangement for the winter months. In the first method, you spread a mixture of half borax with half sand or cornmeal in the bottom of a shallow cardboard box. The flowers are put face down on this then covered with an inch of the same mixture.

This works fine for larkspur, delphinium, Queen Anne's lace, shasta daisy, pansy, zinnia and marigold. It takes a week for the flowers to dry.

The second was the hot sand treatment. You sift dry, fine sand over the bottom of a box, put the flower heads down on the sand and cover with about two more inches of sand. Then the box is put in the brightest, hottest spot of sun you can find. Small zinnias, marigolds and pansies do well with this. With any of the flowers, the foliage has to be stripped from the stems. — Mrs. G. H. Embree

Dear Dorothy: What kind of ground meat do you buy for meat loaf or patties? —Gladys Bruder

Ground chuck suits this family fine. There is less fat than in regular hamburger meat — and when broiling patties or making meat loaf, what fat there is can usually be drained off.

For a cooler attic

The temperature in attics that lack a pwwered ventilator often rises to 135 to 150 degrees fahrenheit on sunny days. A ventilator can keep it at about outdoor temperatures. (UPI)

Turns itself on and off

A powered attic space ventilator with an automatic temperature control turns itself on or off, according to its thermostat setting. (UPI)

Dear Dorothy: I'm sure you know how four little boys can mess up their clothes. Finally tried your old faithful, baking soda, on the many crayon marks. Just rubbed it on the marks, then laundered. Stains all gone. — Olivia Cardwell

Dear Dorothy: I find an old toothbrush invaluable for scrubbing the knobs on the stove, the electric can opener and so on. Yes, I do wash it in the dishwasher so it's sterilized each time.—Patty Brice

Kirk fun fair

A fun fair with games chosen especially for handicapped children will take place Saturday, Oct. 4, at Kirk Center, 520 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

The fair, sponsored by Lambda Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. All proceeds go to Kirk Center as part of the chapter's service project.

Among the games will be a fish pond, lollipop tree, bean bag, bumper car, Zodiac wheel, mini-high streaker, tic-tac-toe and zoo parade.

Refreshments will be sold by the chapter, which also plans a cakewalk and a "pocket lady" during the fair.

Warranty no guarantee buyer is problem-free

by Monica Wilch Perin

The Federal Trade Commission hearings on the new Consumer Product Warranties Act had been droning on monotonously with a lot of theoretical speculation about how this or that rule might work, or what modification might be better.

And several industry representatives had presented their equally monotonous protests about how unfair and burdensome the regulations would be and how swell they are already doing by consumers.

But the atmosphere suddenly became charged with realism when a consumer got up to testify about actual warranty experiences.

The man had bought a new car from an Arlington Heights Chrysler dealer. It leaked water through the air vents and windshield. But after eight return visits to the dealer service department and phone calls and letters to the manufacturer's regional office and Detroit headquarters, the car still leaked and the man didn't know what to do next.

THE INCIDENT points up the first problem with warranties, and one which may well not be changed by the new law: Even though a defect is covered by the warranty and the owner doesn't have to pay for repairs, if the authorized service department fails to correct the defect, the product owner is stuck with the aggravation and expense of repeated trips to the service facility and continuation of the defect.

This problem could be remedied by a proposed rule limiting the number of times or the length of time a manufacturer may have to correct the defect. After that, he would have to replace the product or refund the buyer's money. This provision is being adamantly opposed by industry. In any event, it's a sure bet no auto manufacturer is ever going to abide by a replacement or refund provision.

The man's testimony brought to mind another warranty-related problem reported to this office recently. A Schaumburg man bought a new car from a local Chevrolet dealer. Two months later while the man was on vacation, the car's engine was irreparably damaged by a defect.

WHILE THE warranty covered the defect, the man ended up with bills for towing, car rental to get his family home, long distance phone calls — and, incredibly, the cost of a set of hub caps to replace the originals which were stolen from the car while it was on the dealer's property being repaired.

Again, even though the warranty covers the defect, the defect may cause the product owner to incur other expenses which could well outstrip the repair bill. The warranty then becomes a frustrating limitation of the manufacturer's obligations — an escape hatch.

Some situations such as this might be covered by the law's provision on damages resulting from product failure. But manufacturers would be allowed to exclude themselves from responsibility as long as they clearly state it on the warranty.

ANOTHER PROPOSED rule would encourage manufacturers to set up informal complaint settling operations and would require that if such a procedure exists, it must be disclosed on the warranty. This is another point industry is balking at.

In the cases of the two consumers mentioned earlier, one followed instructions in his owner's manual about who to contact with his complaint and was ignored by those parties. In the second case, there apparently was no procedure outlined at all. The consumer made phone calls to the manufacturer on his own, to no avail.

The National Automobile Dealers Association has, in fact, established a consumer complaint panel, but it apparently is not publicized in manufacturer's warranty materials. In any event, it does not operate in Illinois due to local dealer opposition.

Hawaiians use plants well

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

Flowers and plants are integrated into the Hawaiian lifestyle. I discovered on my trip there last week for the American Horticultural Congress. Perhaps it is the subtle effect of flowers that creates the tranquil, happy, romantic mood of the Islands!

The Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu was fragrant with gala plumeria bursts — (frangipani, as we call them on the mainland, blossoms out-of-water and strung casually on coconut palm ribs.)

Next door at the Sheraton-Waikiki Hotel, a master Hawaiian designer had constructed gigantic eight-foot-high floral arrangements featuring sugar cane, heliconias, proteas and other exotic lovelies for our delight.

THOSE ATTENDING the congress were fortunate in having the Garden Club of Honolulu open several of its members' home grounds to us. When the bus took off for the garden tour without me, naturally I was crushed, until the club president, Mrs. Robert (Patsy) Wilson, chanced by, offering to drive and catch up with the group at the first garden stop.

On the way, Mrs. Wilson told us (as had others) about the high cost of home ownership in Hawaii. Many of the people merely lease the land on which their homes are built. It is not uncommon to spend $100,000 to $150,000 for a middle class home. A typical 2-bedroom house like one might find in Rolling Meadows, for example, would sell for $80,000 in Hawaii. The Hawaiian lots are small unless one is a millionaire.

We were exposed to the cream of the crop, visiting some very elegant estates. At one house I picked up a pod from an autograph tree which looked like an opened jack o 'lantern with brown frosting on the jagged tips and a morel mushroom in the center. I was told to pin the outside open until dry (then it looks like a star) and save it for a Christmas tree ornament as the Hawaiians do.

MOSS ROSES WERE used in hanging baskets in one yard decoration, but that was the only mainland-type plant I noticed.

Shefflera is almost overused everywhere. Ti is grown in most home gardens, as are papaya, plumeria, bird of paradise, but these have practical applications — the papaya is food, the plumeria in leis, birds in centerpieces, and ti in 101 uses including grass skirts, mats for food, decorative coverings, etc.

On a pomology tour arranged through the Lniversity of Hawaii, we ate our way through a banana plantation and a passion fruit orchard and stuffed on exotic fruits which are never exported, seldom savored outside the tropics, and which I knew I would never taste again. Here were strange, exotic, accordion-pleated "snow apples," raspberry-bumped cherries, and white, sour, pumpkin-shaped grapes.

We got our "P.H.D." in coconut-frond basket-weaving when members of the Queen Emma Civic Club gave an all-day demonstration and helped us try various native crafts, including lei-making and Hawaiian quilting, to benefit their scholarship fund for needy Hawaiians.

The obvious observation gleaned from the Hawaiian experience is that Hawaiians are very conscious of their environment, using ordinary plant materials around them in extraordinary ways. The plants and flowers in their yards are not strictly for landscaping, but are used in many different ways. (I saw one man using ti leaves as sun screens for his vegetable patch transplants.) It makes the visitor ask herself, "How can I better use, and make use of the plants in my home surroundings?"

Homemaker Fair Tuesday, Oct. 7

A Homemakers' Fair with a Bicentennial flair will be held Tuesday, Oct. 7, at First United Methodist Church, LaGrange.

Mrs. Vern Johnson of the Palatine Unit is assistant chairman of the Countryside fair which opens to the public at 10 a.m., calling at 2 p.m. Admission is 50 cents.

Craft items and a variety of home baked goods will be on sale, and at 1 p.m. a program on diamonds will be presented. Coffee and tea will be available and an area will be set aside for those bringing sack lunches.

The fair is being sponsored by the Suburban Cook County Homemakers Extension Association of which Mrs. Marvin Dunteman, Barrington, is president.

Groom has flu; couple cancels Las Vegas trip

Along with their wedding arrangements, Kathi Collins of Palatine and Larry Robertson of Hoffman Estates made plans to go to Las Vegas on their honeymoon.

The wedding took place Aug. 16 in Kingswood Methodist Church, Buffalo Grove, but the honeymoon trip had to be cancelled because the bridegroom became ill with flu at the reception and took a week to recover.

The newlyweds did, however, have a short, delayed honeymoon at Larry's parents' summer cottage in Hawkins, Wis. Their reception was held at Elk Grove VFW Hall.

Kathi is the daughter of Mrs. Marion L. Collins and Larry the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Robertson.

HIS THREE brothers were his attendants, Rick as best man and Dennis and Rodney as groomsmen. Kathi's cousin, Rayanne Hitzeman of Rolling Meadows, served as her maid of honor and Pat Oglesby, Lake Zurich, and Carol Robertson, Palatine, as bridesmaids. Carol is Larry's sister-in-law.

Both the bride and groom are completing studies at Harper College while working in the suburbs. Kathi is a lab technician for Kendall Research, Barrington, and Larry a design plumber for the Austin Co., Des Plaines.

The bride previously attended Palatine High School and Eastern Illinois University, and the groom, a graduate of Conant High, served four years in the Navy, two of them in Vietnam.

Hawaiians use plants well

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

Flowers and plants are integrated into the Hawaiian lifestyle. I discovered on my trip there last week for the American Horticultural Congress. Perhaps it is the subtle effect of flowers that creates the tranquil, happy, romantic mood of the Islands!

The Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu was fragrant with gala plumeria bursts — (frangipani, as we call them on the mainland, blossoms out-of-water and strung casually on coconut palm ribs.)

Next door at the Sheraton-Waikiki Hotel, a master Hawaiian designer had constructed gigantic eight-foot-high floral arrangements featuring sugar cane, heliconias, proteas and other exotic lovelies for our delight.

THOSE ATTENDING the congress were fortunate in having the Garden Club of Honolulu open several of its members' home grounds to us. When the bus took off for the garden tour without me, naturally I was crushed, until the club president, Mrs. Robert (Patsy) Wilson, chanced by, offering to drive and catch up with the group at the first garden stop.

On the way, Mrs. Wilson told us (as had others) about the high cost of home ownership in Hawaii. Many of the people merely lease the land on which their homes are built. It is not uncommon to spend $100,000 to $150,000 for a middle class home. A typical 2-bedroom house like one might find in Rolling Meadows, for example, would sell for $80,000 in Hawaii. The Hawaiian lots are small unless one is a millionaire.

We were exposed to the cream of the crop, visiting some very elegant estates. At one house I picked up a pod from an autograph tree which looked like an opened jack o 'lantern with brown frosting on the jagged tips and a morel mushroom in the center. I was told to pin the outside open until dry (then it looks like a star) and save it for a Christmas tree ornament as the Hawaiians do.
